To THE RIGHT REVEREND THE LORD BISHOP OF ROCHESTER.

MY LORD,

In dedicating this book to you I have much pleasure in doing so, not only from your being Bishop of the Diocese, but because you are the first Bishop who, for sixty years, has ruled over most of the ancient See.

I have long held that some substantial record of this ancient See should be placed in the hands of the public, and thus have included in my researches the parishes which formerly were connected with this See, namely, those now belonging to the new Diocese of Southwark, with their daughter parishes (1); those belonging to the Canterbury Diocese (2); those belonging to the Ely Diocese, with their Chantries (3); those belonging to the Oxford Diocese (4); one belonging to the Norwich Diocese, with its Chantry (5); one belonging to Chichester Diocese, with its daughter parishes (6); one belonging to Peterborough Diocese (7); and one belonging to St. Alban's Diocese (8).

1.—Those belonging to the new Diocese of Southwark which were all wholly in the old

CHARLTON.	LEE.
DEPTFORD.	LEWISHAM.
ELTHAM.	PLUMSTEAD.
GREENWICH.	EAST WICKHAM.
KIDBROOK.	WOOLWICH.

- 2.—Of those belonging to Canterbury Diocese, two:
 NORTON, STOURMOUTH,
 were only parishes to which the Bishop presented till 1846; the third,
 WEST WICKHAM,
 was in the Deanery of Dartford and Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester.
- 3.—Two in the Ely Diocese were peculiars of the Bishop, and had each of them a Chantry, FRECKENHAM, ISLEHAM.
- 4.—The two in the Oxford Diocese were in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester,
 HENLEY-ON-THAMES, MIXBURY.
- 5.—The one belonging to the Norwich Diocese was in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester,
 TANNINGTON CUM BRUNDISH
 (there was a Chantry at Brundish).
- 6.—The only one belonging to the Chichester
 Diocese was in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester, and perhaps was a peculiar. It was Rotherfield, of which the daughter
 Churches are:
 ERIDGE, ALL SAINTS, CROWBOROUGH,
 MARK CROSS, JARVIS BROOK.
- 7.—IBSTOCK, in Leicestershire, in the Peterborough
 Diocese, was in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester.

8.—ST. JOHN, NORTH WOOLWICH, being in the ancient parish of Woolwich, and in the County of Kent, was formerly in Rochester Diocese.

I have included in my researches the heads of Convents before the Reformation, and Chantry Priests and Prebendaries, as well as Incumbents, of Churches now no more, and the Military, Dockyard and Union Chaplains when obtainable. My sources of information have been almost solely the registers of the Archbishops of Canterbury and those of Rochester, Lincoln, Norwich, Chichester and Oxford, Calamy's "Life of Baxter," the Public Records and Parish Registers, with additions from the Archæologia Cantiana, etc., and for Mixbury the history of the Bicester Deanery, and Mr. Shindler's Cathedral Registers, which he has kindly allowed me to copy, and Burns' "History of Henley." I have to thank the different clergy for giving me access to their registers, and also the Registrars of the different Dioceses for allowing research. The lists of incumbents are generally complete from the fourteenth century, and while one cannot be surprised that there are some deprivations, we find there were few for immorality (only two or three during the whole period). Those deprived at the Reformation were far more at the accession of Queen Mary than in the times of her father, brother, and sister put together. At the time of the Commonwealth we find numerous Puritan usurpations. We find Richard Wyche burnt as a Lollard on Tower Hill, who had been Vicar of Deptford ; Lawrence Snelling, St. Paul's Cray, suspended for not reading the Book of Sports, and we have quoted the various objections used against Kentish Incumbents in Parliament from 'Proceedings in Kent,' to which we are largely indebted for the "Commonwealth Times." Hasted, whose lists of clergy are very poor (upon whom I have not much depended), tells us Revd. Robert Orme, Vicar of Woldham, 1689, was a nonjuror. I may add that my labours will be rewarded if I teach the antiquity of our established Church as others have done, and help to secure the solidity of your Lordship's ancient Diocese.

I am, my Lord,

Yours obediently,

C. H. FIELDING.

THE BISHOPS OF ROCHESTER.

---

604, Justus, sent by Augustine at the wish of Ethelred, King of Kent, to be Bishop over the Church he founded in Rochester, transferred to Canterbury, 624, where he remained till 627.

624, Romanus, sent by the Archbishop to Rome as his legate, and was drowned.

633, Paulinus, Archbishop of York, 625, the apostle of Northumbria; when driven out by the Northumbrians, he accepted Rochester. He was buried in the Cathedral. He was canonized 1074. St. Paul's Cray, really Pauline's Cray, was renamed after him (it was previously called Radulph's Cray).

644, Ythamar, a man of Kentish origin, buried in the Cathedral.

655, Damian.

669, Putta; Bede says he was a man instructed in ecclesiastical discipline, and content with simplicity rather than wise in worldly matters. The Mercians devastated his church, whereupon he accepted a certain church from their Bishop, and there ended his life.

676, Quichelm deserted the See because of its poverty, and was deposed by the Archbishop.

678, Gebmund, present at a Council, claimed variously for Berkhamstead and Brasted (probably the latter), whereat the observance of the Lord's day was enforced, with severe penalties amongst other things.

693, Tobias, a man of great learning in Latin, Greek and Saxon; buried in the Cathedral.

727, Aldwulf obtained Stoke for the Bishopric.

741, Dunno.

747, Earldulf obtained Frindsbury and Wicham.

765, Badenoth signed a paper at this date which gives lands in the castle to the Bishop.

774, Dioran; Egbert, King of Kent, bestowed Halling, and he and Offa, King of Mercia, Bromley, upon the Bishops of Rochester.

784, Wermund; Offa gave Trottescliffe to this Bishop, 788.

Before 811, Bermod; Ceonwulf, King of Mercia, gave Borstal to this Bishop, and in 838, Snodland. Ethelwulf gave him Holborough in 841.

844, Tadnoth.

Badenoth.

868, Cuthwulf.

880, Swithwulf or Suthwulf given Cuxton by King Ethelwulf.

895, Burrhic, King Alfred gave him Freckenham and Isleham and King Edmund gave him Malling between 940—946.

897, Cheolmund.

926, Kynefurd.

955, Elfstan or Ethelstan, Edgar bestowed Bromley again on this Bishop ; it must have been seized by the Crown since the days of Dioran.

995, Godwyn I, this is the date in the Diocesan Calendar. Thorpe puts him at 925 but since he says he succeeded Ethelstan and also tells us Ethelred gave him Woldham as Ethelred did not come to the throne till 979, he must have meant 995. Ethelred confirmed to him Bromley, in 998.

1046, Godwyn II, succeeded Godwyn I, the date is from the Diocesan Calendar.

1058, Syward, Abbot of Chertsey.

1076, Ernest, a Monk of Bec.

1077, Gundulf, also a Monk of Bec, recovered the possessions of the See of Rochester ; but gave too lavishly to the Monks ; founded the Abbey of West Malling ; is reputed to have been the architect of Rochester Castle Keep, the White Tower of London and St. Leonards Tower, West Malling, as well as the earlier portions of Malling Abbey. He may be said to have rebuilt the Cathedral where he is buried, died, March 7th or 8th, 1107.

1108, Ralph de Turbine, Abbot of Seez, made Archbishop 1114, consecrated Adela as Queen of England, at Windsor.

1115, Ernulf, Abbot of Peterborough. The Compiler of Textus Roffensis.

1125, John, Archdeacon of Canterbury.

1137, John de Seez.

1142, Ascelin, Prior of Dover.

1148, Walter de Canterbury ; thirty-five years Bishop.

1182, Gualeran, Archdeacon of Baieux ; buried in the Cathedral, died, August 29th, 1184.

1185, Gilbert de Glanville, Archdeacon of Lisieux ; about thirty-two years Bishop ; buried in the Cathedral, died, July 12th, 1214. The above are from the Temp Ep Roff, except some dates taken from the Rochester Calendar and the information is from Textus Roffensis.

1215, Benedict de Sansetun ; buried in the Cathedral, died, December 21st, 1226.

1227, Henry de Sanford, Archdeacon of Canterbury, buried in the Cathedral, died, February, 1237.

1238, Richard de Wendover, Rector of Bromley.

1251, Lawrence de St. Martin, buried in the Cathedral, died, June 2nd, 1274.

1274, Walter de Merton ; founder of Merton College, Oxford ; Lord High Chancellor of England (1264-1274) ; consecrated at Gillyngham ; drowned in the Medway, October 27th, 1277, buried in the Cathedral.

1278, John de Bradefield ; consecrated at Lambeth ; buried in the Cathedral, died, April 23rd, 1283.

1283, Thomas de Ingoldsthorpe ; Dean of St. Pauls ; buried in the Cathedral; consecrated at Canterbury, died, May 11th or 12th, 1291.

1292, Thomas de Wouldham. His will dated 1316, contains many bequests to the poor of the different parts of his diocese. In it he desires to be buried "in ecclesia cathedrali Roffensi vel alibi pro disposicione executorum meorum"; he was, however, not buried in the Cathedral, died, February 28th, 1216-7.

1319, Hamo de Hethe or Hythe, Prior of Rochester (1314-1319). His election was deferred two years and a half as the Pope wished to make a French priest, bishop, who was confessor to the Queen. In his Bishopric the registers of the Bishops of Rochester were first commenced. He may have started them when first made prior as there are entries as early as 1314. References before that date are merely excerpta principally from missing documents. He was 34 years Bishop and was the faithful friend and adviser of the unfortunate Edward II. He told him had he preached before him at Tonbridge he should have taken 'Haman' for his text referring to the King's too great fondness for Le Despencer. He so much favoured the Monks that he gave them several of the Bishops' livings, died, May 4th, 1352, buried in the Cathedral.

1353, John de Sheppey, Lord Chancellor of England, Prior (1333-1352); buried in the Cathedral, died, October 19th, 1360.

1362, William de Whittlesey, Archdeacon of Huntingdon; Bishop of Worcester (1364-1368), Archbishop of Canterbury (1368-1375), while he was Archbishop, exchange of livings was increased and Papal bulls were prohibited.

1364, Thomas Trilleck, Canon of Wells; Dean of St. Paul's; buried in the Cathedral.

1373, Thomas de Brinton, buried in the Cathedral.

1389, William de Bottlesham, Bishop of Llandaff (1386-1389).

1400, John de Bottlesham, buried in the Cathedral, died, April 17th, 1404.

1404, Richard Yonge, Bishop of Bangor (1400-1404); gave orders for all things to be removed from the altar of Saint Nicholas and to be transferred to the Church about to be built in the North part of the cemetery of St. Nicholas in 1418.

1419, John Kempe, Archdeacon of Durham, Bishop of London (1422-1426), Archbishop of York (1426-1452), Archbishop of Canterbury (1452-1454).

1422, John Langdon, carefully looked after the diocese as may be seen by his Registers.

1435, Thomas Brown, Dean of Sarum.

1437, William Wellys. There is a beautiful picture, at the beginning of this Bishop's Register, of the Bishop with the St. Andrew's Cross and him kneeling before it. This illumination was formed out of the W commencing his name.

1443, John Lowe, Bishop of Asaph (1433-1443) looked well after his diocese, severe to the followers of Wicliffe, buried in the Cathedral, died, September, 1467.

1468, Thomas Scott de Rotherham, Bishop of Lincoln (1472-1480), Archbishop of York (1480-1501). The Registers of him and his next three successors are wanting.

1472, John Alcock, Dean of Westminster, Bishop of Worcester (1476-1486), Bishop of Ely (1486-1501).

1476, John Russell, Archdeacon of Berks, Bishop of Lincoln (1480-1496).

1480, Edmund Audley, Canon of Wells and York, Bishop of Hereford (1492-1502), Bishop of Salisbury (1502-1505).

1493, Thomas Savage, Canon of York, Dean of Westminster, Bishop of London (1496-1502), Archbishop of York (1502-1508); in his day the Annals of the See commence again.

1497, Richard Fitzjames, Canon of Wells, Warden of Merton College, Oxford, Bishop of Chester (1504-1508).

1504, John Fisher suppressed Higham Nunnery; obtained from George Lord Bergevenny, for the See of Rochester the living of Ibstock in Leicestershire; supported Elizabeth Barton, called the Holy Maid of Kent, who had uttered pretended revelations condemning the king. He was made a cardinal by the Pope, but Henry VIII is said to have remarked "the Pope might send him like he had Wolsey a cardinal's hat, but he would take care he had not a head to wear it." He was executed on Tower Hill June 22nd, 1535, for denying the King to be the visible head of the Church of England.

1535, John Hilsey.

1540, Nicholas Heath, Bishop of Worcester 1544; deprived 1551; restored (1553-1555), made Archbishop of York; deprived and sent to the Tower 1560, but released by Queen Elizabeth, who criticised jocularly his harshness to her and let him live at his manor of Chobham in Surrey, in the Church of which place he was buried. Vicar of Hever (1531-1533), Rector of Clyffe (1535-1549), which he held with Rochester and Worcester.

1550, John Poynet, Bishop of Winchester (1551-1553), deprived.

1551, John Scory, Bishop of Chichester (1552-1554), kept his See of Chichester by renouncing his wife, but was afterwards deprived, Bishop of Hereford (1560-1586).

1554, Maurice Griffith, Chancellor to Bishop Hilsey, Vicar of Sutton-at-Hone April, 1536, Freckenham October, 1536, Archdeacon of Rochester 1537, Rector of St. Magnus, London Bridge, 1537. Prebend of Rochester 1546, Rector of Southfleet (1537-1558); held this last with his other appointments, including the Bishopric, appears from his register to have been very active in depriving the reforming clergy and appointing others.

1560, Edmund Gheast, Bishop of Salisbury (1571-1577).

1572, Edmund Freake, Bishop of Norwich (1575-1583), Bishop of Worcester 1584-1593).

1576, John Piers, Bishop of Salisbury (1577-1589), Archbishop of York (1589-1595).

1577, John Yonge, buried at Bromley 1605.

1605, William Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln (1608-1614).

1608, Richard Neale, Bishop of Lichfield (1610-1614), Lincoln (1614-1617), Durham (1617-1628), Winchester (1628-1632), Archbishop of York (1632-1642), Rector of Southfleet (1608-1610), Dean of Westminster (1605-1610).

1628, Walter Curle, Bishop of Winchester (1632-1642), Bath and Wells (1629-1632).

1630, John Bowle.

1638, John Warner : appears to have been allowed to exercise his episcopal functions till quite late in the Civil War times; founded Bromley College for twenty widows of loyal and orthodox clergymen, with a chaplain to minister to them; buried in Cathedral, died October 21st, 1666.

1666, John Dolben, Archbishop of York (1683-1688).

1683, Francis Turner, one of the seven bishops sent to the Tower, Bishop of Ely (1684-1689).

1684, Thomas Sprat was Dean of Westminster (1684-1713), which he held while Bishop.

1713, Francis Atterbury suspected of treasonable correspondence with the Chevalier de St. George, deprived, fled the country, and died in exile.

1723, Samuel Bradford, Bishop of Carlisle (1718-1723).

1731, Joseph Wilcocks.

1756, Zacharias Pearse, Bishop of Bangor (1746-1756), buried at Bromley, 1774.

1774, John Thomas.

1827, Hugh Percy, Bishop of Carlisle (1827-1856).

1827, George Murray. The Diocese was changed, and the Deaneries of Malling and Dartford were given to Canterbury, except certain parishes given to London, and Fordham Deanery to Ely; all peculiars were done away with, and the counties of Hertford and Essex (except Barking, East and West Ham, Little Ilford, Low Leyton, Walthamstow, Wanstead, Woodford and Chingford) were added to the Diocese.

1860, Joseph Cotton Wigram. In 1863 Charlton, Lee, Lewisham, Greenwich, Woolwich, Eltham and Deptford and the above parishes of Essex were added to the Diocese.

1867, Thomas Legh Claughton, Bishop of St. Alban's (1877-1890).

1877, Anthony Wilson Thorold, Bishop of Winchester (1891-1895), when he succeeded the counties of Hertford and Essex were taken away with the Parish of North Woolwich from the Diocese and the Parliamentary Divisions of East and Mid Surrey, except Newigate and Thames Ditton were added.

1891, Randall Thomas Davidson, Dean of Windsor and Domestic Chaplain to Queen Victoria (1883-1891), Bishop of Winchester (1895-1902), Archbishop of Canterbury (1903).

1895, Edward Stuart Talbot, Warden of Keeble College, Oxford (1870-1888), Vicar and Rural Dean of Leeds (1889-1895), Bishop of Southwark (1905).

1905, John Reginald Harmer, Bishop of Adelaide (1895-1905). He succeeded to the Diocese which had taken from it to form the new Diocese of Southwark, not only the Surrey portion of the Diocese, but also the parishes of Deptford, Greenwich, Lee, Lewisham, Charlton, Eltham, Plumstead and Woolwich, and the parish of West Wickham, which remained with Canterbury, but the Deaneries of East and West Dartford, North and South Malling, Shoreham and Tonbridge were added to the Diocese, together with the parish of Penge. The new Diocese thus once more, with the exception of the parishes mentioned, became that of West Kent, and was much the same as that described by Bishop Ernulf in the Textus Roffensis.

ST. MARGARET'S, ADDINGTON. ADDINTUNA.

The Church was in the Deanery and See and Archdeaconry of Rochester till 1846; it was then transferred to the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of North Malling; it became in 1905 again part of the See of Rochester and Deanery of North Malling and is one of the parishes of the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. There was a Church here in Domesday times and in Textus Roffensis we learn it was at that time a parish Church. The barge boards over the Church Porch are noticeable. Much of the Norman Church remains; and its extension to the Westward and Tower built later is plainly to be traced. There are four seventeenth century bells. The Flagon and Paten date from the eighteenth century; the Cup from the seventeenth. The Registers commence 1562. The ancient tombstones dating from the time of Edward III and the brasses and Watton monument deserve notice. The Patrons are the Lords of the Manor. The present patron is J. S. Whitburn, Esq.

AESCLINGHAM ST. PETER.

The ruin of the old Church may be still traced in the lower part of the walls of an oast and cottage on a farm still going by the name in Frendsbury parish. It paid 6 denarii as chapel fee to the See of Rochester. In the Valor Ecclesiasticus the living is given as worth iijs iiijd. Thorpe says it was thirty feet long and twenty feet in breadth, and was used as an oast-house. Becoming ruinous it was pulled down 1772. It is mentioned as Esclingham in Textus Roffensis.

ALL HALLOWS, HOO. HALGETES.

This Church paid 6 den to the See of Rochester as a Chapelry, according to Textus Roffensis. There are traces of the Norman Church. It was held as a chapel of St. Werburghs, Hoo, in early times. There is an ancient bell. The Old Communion Plate was done away with in 1835 for more modern by John Wotherston, the Vicar, who gave three silver plates to the parish. The registers, dreadfully mutilated, commence 1629, but the interesting old Church books date back to 1551. The Parish has always been in the See, Archdeaconry, and Diocese of Rochester. The patrons were the Monks of St. Andrew, Rochester, till the Reformation; when it became one of the presentations of the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. There are an ancient screen and two brasses which should be noticed.

ALLINGTON ST. LAWRENCE. ÆLINTUNA.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9d. as a Parish Church to the See of Rochester. It was in the See of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and Deanery of Malling till 1846; it was then transferred to the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling; in 1895 it became part of the Deanery of Sutton; in 1905 it was restored to the See of Rochester, and became part of the Deanery of North Malling and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge; in 1909 it was transferred to the Deanery of Cobham and Archdeaconry of Rochester. In 1854 the Church was almost pulled down and shamefully handled; many ancient tombstones having disappeared, notably one to Drayton, the Kentish botanist; the present Rector has made a little cruciform church of it, and tastefully decorated it inside. It has an ancient bell, and perhaps is the Church with one bell spoken of by Dickens in "Pickwick." The Cup and Paten Cover are Elizabethan. The Register commences 1630. The Patron has always been the Lord of the Manor, who has been some time past the Earl of Romney.

ST. PETER AND ST. PAUL, ASH. AEISCE.

There is a church mentioned here in Domesday, and it paid 9 denarii as a Parish Church to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the See of Rochester and its Archdeaconry; in 1846 the Rural Deanery of Rochester was broken up, and it became part of the Deanery of Cobham. It has now become part of the new Deanery of Shoreham. The Knights of St. John had the patronage till the Reformation, when it escheated to the Crown, and was granted to Sir Martin Bowes, whose heirs disposed of it in the next century to Sir Edmund Fowler, whose heirs sold it to Lady Lambarde, whose family still hold it. There are several monuments worthy of notice, notably a brass to Reginald de Ashe and those to the Hodsolls, on which are three wells, Hogs holes or Hodges holes, the origin of the name of the family which traces from here. There is a Norman Font, but the Church is generally of the Decorated period. There is a Holy Water Stoup at the North Door. There are six Bells. The Registers commence 1560. The Cup is Elizabethan. The Paten was given by the Rector, Revd. S. Atwood, who also gave an altar piece now removed, in 1713. The present Patron is W. G. Lambarde, Esq.

ST. MARTIN, ASHURST. AEISCHERSTE.

The Church is not mentioned in Domesday, but we find it paid 9 den as a Parish Church, from Textus Roffensis. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Rural Deanery of South Malling. In 1905 it was placed once more in the See of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Tunbridge Wells. A crucifix over the door was famous. There was a large Bell done away with in 1879. There was also a Church Bell sold in 1701, by the permission of the Bishop of Rochester (Sprat f. 261). There are now three bells, one ancient and two recast. The Church was restored in 1861. There is a modern support screen inside to help bear the weight of the square shingled tower and its curious dove-cote-like steeple: there is a curious recess or side chapel at the north of the Altar. A dial over the door has on it 143 and 1624, and the Rivers' coat of arms. There is a Jacobæan Cup. The Paten is eighteenth century; there are also a modern Flagon and Paten. The Registers date from 1692, and are fairly kept; in them there is an account of the Glebe and the Restoration of the Church internally, which last was done in 1701. There are no ancient monuments. The present Patron is Lord Sackville.

ST. PETER (AND ST. PAUL), AYLESFORD. AILESFORD.

This Church has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, it was in the Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it became part of the new Rural Deanery of Cobham. The church paid 9 den to the See of Rochester according to Textus Roffensis. The body of the Church is fourteenth century; it has been thoroughly renovated. The Church was in the gift of the brethren of Strood Hospital till the Reformation, when the patronage was bestowed on the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. The position of the Church Tower indicates it was built to defend the ford. The Paten and Cup are dated 1628; there is also a Paten presented by the Vicar in 1724-5, also a Flagon 1711, and an Alms Dish by Lady Taylor, and two small Alms Plates presented in 1859 by Thomas Franklyn. There are also eight Bells. There are some handsome monuments. The registers date from 1654.

ST. BLAISE.

This was an ancient Church in the woods nearly opposite Malling Union, in a detached portion of Aylesford Parish. There is no mention of it in the Textus Roffensis, Valor Ecclesiasticus or other records, but it is mentioned in 1475 in the will of Richard Crowcher, and also in that of William Sotheron in 1557. There are still part of the ruins above ground, from which it would appear to have been a small Church with nave and apse. It was in the gift of the brethren of Strood Hospital, but they do not appear to have had any clergyman inducted to it.

COSINGTON CUSITUNA.

A chapel was founded on this estate by Stephen de Cosington, temp Edward I. There is a ruin at the farm so called, but Thorpe and Philipott could only trace a ruin. No priest appears to have been inducted to it. There is a chapel mentioned here previously in Textus Roffensis.

TATTINGTON.

This was another chapel of Aylesford, which says: Thorpe he measured and found to be 39 ft. in length and 22 in breadth. Like Cossington and St. Blaise we find no records of those who ministered here; it has quite disappeared.

THE CARMELITE FRIARS.

Considerable remains of the old Priory may still be seen in the grounds of a modern house near Aylesford. The names of the Priors that can be still found are given below. The Chapel was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary. It was founded about 1240 by Lord Grey of Codnor, and was dissolved in 1538.

- 1240, Simon de Stokk.
- 1396, Richard de Maydenstane.
- 1500, William Arnold.

BEARMLINGAS. ST. MARGARET'S,
EAST BARMING OR GREAT BARMING.

There was a church here in Domesday, and it paid 9 den to the See of Rochester as a Parish Church we learn from Textus Roffensis. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling. In 1905 it was restored to the Diocese of Rochester, and placed in the Deanery of Malling and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. There is an Aumbry and Piscina, and the way to the Rood Screen half closed; there are traces of the Norman Church, but the principal part belongs to a later period. The church has been well restored. The Registers begin 1541, but some leaves have been torn off. The Cup is of the date 1639. There are a Paten inscribed 1812 and Flagon 1839, and a more modern Chalice and Paten: there are also a brass Alms Plate and pewter Flagon. The Patronage was in the hands of Leeds Abbey till the Reformation, since when the Crown has had it.

WEST BARMING, BARMLINGÆTAS OR BARNJET.

There was a Church here in the time of Textus Roffensis, but it was described as in a ruined state in 1586, and though traces of the lower courses of the wall may still be found in an Oast House there is nothing else left of the ancient Church. The Rectors can be traced to 1623, and then it was quite united to Nettlestead, and no one is named as Rector till 1789, even to it as a dual parish.

BAYHAM ABBEY.

This Monastery was founded for Premonstratensian Canons in 1200, and stood on the borders of Kent and Sussex, and in the Parishes of Frant and Lamberhurst. The Churches of Pembury and St. Nicholas, Deptford were in its gift. There are considerable ruins of this Abbey on the Marquis of Camden's estate near Tunbridge Wells.

We insert it here because its livings and most of its lands were in the Bishop of Rochester's Diocese, but the Bishop of Chichester was Visitor.

ST. GEORGE'S, BECKENHAM. BECCEHAM.

The first mention of a Church here is when we find it paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. It was in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was transferred to the See of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of West Dartford. In 1909 it became part of the new Deanery of Beckenham. The Church was almost re-built in 1887, and the only relic of the old Church left is a Piscina ; the new Church was completed in 1903. There are six Bells. The oldest Paten dates from 1633, and seems to have been a Cover to an old Cup no longer extant. The Flagon of the same date was presented by Humphrey Style. The first Plate was given by John Elwill, 1717 ; the second by Peter Burrell, 1734. The first and second Communion Chalices are dated 1812-13, the second and third Patens are of the date 1836-37, so also are two others. There is a Tankard with no hall mark. The living has been always in Private Patronage. The Registers, which are well kept, date from 1539. There are some interesting monuments. The Patronage was always in private hands. It has been for 140 years in the Cator family. John Cator is the present Patron.

CHRIST CHURCH, BIRLING.

This Church was consecrated for Divine Service in 1893; there is one bell of the same date, and also Communion Plate. It has not been separated from Birling Church.

BOCKINGFOLD CHURCH.

This Church stood in Yalding Parish, not far from Collier street it was Thorpe tells us in 1292 reckoned to Brenchley Parish. It became one of the possessions of the Priory of Leeds. It became attached to the chapelry of Newstead in Staplehurst, and this being placed first it was reckoned to the Sutton Deanery and the See of Canterbury, and as such is mentioned in the Valor Ecclesiasticus. The Rector of Staplehurst tells me there are no signs left of Newstead Chapel. The two places, if Newstead Farm is anywhere near where it stood, must have been five miles apart as the crow flies. The Presentation was held by the Abbey of Leeds till the Reformation, after which both Churches were disendowed and allowed to fall to ruin: no traces of Buckingfold are left. St. Margaret's, Collier street, has been erected not far from where it stood.

ST. MARTIN'S, BRASTEAD. BRAEDSTEDA.

This Church was in the See and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but as a peculiar of the Archbishop was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, after that date it remained in the Deanery of Shoreham, but was reckoned to be in the Archdeaconry of Maidstone and in the Diocese of Canterbury, and in 1905 it still remained in the Deanery of Shoreham, but was placed in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and See of Rochester; it has now become part of the new Deanery of Sevenoaks. There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 den chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church has little or no traces of the original building, but inside there are the ancient pillars of the south side and side aisle. There is a floreated piscina, and this with a handsome tower testify to the additions and alterations made in the decorated period on the building. The original S.W. Buttress still remains, but the north west one was removed owing to the settlement in this direction, and two others run up at right angles to give extra support. There is an altar tomb and a handsome monument also to Robert Heath amongst other memorials, and one also to Dr. Turton, physician to George III. There is an ancient Elizabethan Chalice 1565-6, and an old Paten Cover of James I. The Flagon is dated 1793. There are also a modern Cup and Paten. There is a peal here of six bells. The Brinstead Register commences 1557. The Archbishop is Patron.

ALL SAINTS', BRENCHLEY. BRÆNCESLE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and though it is mentioned in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester, as a Parish Church, yet we learn that it was, in 1207, looked upon as a Chapelry of Yalding by the Bishop's Registers. The Church was held to be in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the See of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Rural Deanery of South Malling, it has, in 1905, been placed in the Deanery of Tunbridge Wells, and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and again in the See of Rochester. The Church which has been restored dates with the Tower chiefly from the decorated period, and has an ancient porch approached by an avenue of well clipt yew trees. The north and south aisles are separated from the nave by a row of round pillars on each side. The Church has clerestory windows and a decorated Piscina, and a Norman octagonal Font. The presentation belonged to Tonbridge Priory till the Reformation, when it came to the Crown, which granted the advowson to Paul Sydnor, Esq., whose son disposed of it to the Wallers, of Groombridge, who parted with it to the Courthopes, with whom it still continues. The Communion Plate consists of two Chalices, and a Flagon and Paten. There are six Bells, three of the seventeenth century. The Chalices were obtained by change by a previous Vicar. The Registers commence 1539. The present Patron is G. C. Courthope, Esq.

ST. PETER AND ST. PAUL, BROMLEY. BROMLEGA.

Bromley was given by Offa, King of Mercia and Egbert, to the Bishops of Rochester, and with them it continued till 1846, when the Patronage of the Church was given to the Bishops of Worcester. At the same date the Church was transferred from the See of and Archdeaconry of Rochester and the Deanery of Dartford to the Diocese of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and the Rural Deanery of West Dartford. In 1905 the Patronage was restored to the Bishop of Rochester, and it was placed in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and the Rural Deanery of West Dartford. It has now been placed in the new Deanery of Bromley. The font is all that remains from Norman times. The present Church has been much altered, but is mostly fourteenth century work. Bromley paid 9 den chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. The Church was robbed of its plate in 1791, but a silver Cup with Paten cover were given to the Church at that date by George Norman. There are a silver Chalice dated 1807, with a Paten cover; two silver gilt Patens, one dated 1801-2, the other dated 1803, given by Robert Makepeace; a silver Flagon given by James Edward Newell 1854; a silver gilt Spoon, a brass Alms Dish, given by the Hellicar family 1873. The Bells, which are eight, are dated 1773. Amongst other monuments, of which there are many, are three Brasses; a curious one in ancient French to Henche, a former Vicar, and one to Bishop Yonge, of Rochester. The Registers of Baptisms date from 1558, Marriages from 1575, Burials from 1578. The latter Records include the Burials of Bishops Yonge (May, 1605) and Pearse (July 1774).

ST. MARY'S, BURHAM. BUREHAM.

There was a Church here at the time of the taking of the Domesday record, according to Textus Roffensis, it paid 9 den chrism to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it formed one of the parishes of the new Rural Deanery of Cobham. There are three Bells. The old Chalice has the date 1795, but the old Paten Cover has been lost. A new Church was opened in 1881, and since then the old Church has been only used as a Mortuary Chapel. A new Cup, Paten, and Flagon were given at that date by Mrs. Jane Catharine Peters. The old Church has one Norman window and some other traces of Norman work, there are also signs of early English work, but the greater part is decorated. The Registers date from 1625, they have been badly kept, and are in a most disorderly state. There is a solitary helmet in the Church and also a brass, but beyond these there is little of interest. The Advowson was granted by the Bishop to the Knights Hospitallers, and held by them till purchased in 1509 by Thomas Doucra, the last Master of their Preceptory at West Peckham; after his death it reverted to the Crown 32nd of Henry VIII, with which it continued till about 1670, since which it has been in private hands. The Bishop is, however, now Patron.

ST. THOMAS A BECKETT CHAPEL.

This Church being dedicated to St. Thomas à Beckett shows that it was built in later times than Textus Roffensis. The Church was in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Rochester, and Deanery of Malling till 1846. It was in that year joined to Canterbury and placed in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Deanery of South Malling, later on it became part of the Deanery of Tonbridge. In 1905 it was restored to Rochester and placed in the Archdeaconry and Deanery of Tonbridge. The Chalice with Paten Cover is of the date 1565-1566. There is one Bell. The Font with most of the Church is Early English. The tower, which is Perpendicular, is from renovations of late years the only solid remnant of the old Church. The altar rails are marked Michael Davis 1682. The Church was in the Patronage of the Knights of St. John till the Reformation, when it passed by grant to the Fanes, to whom it belonged till 1762, when it passed into the family of le Despencer. In 1597 it was united to form one parish with Tudely. Lord Falmouth is Patron of both wings.

ST. MARY'S, CHALK. CELCA.

There was a Church here in Domesday times. According to Textus Roffensis it paid 9 den chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was always in the See and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and till 1846 also in the Deanery of Rochester, at which date it became part of the new Deanery of Gravesend. The presentation was given in 1327 by Bishop Hamo de Heth to Norwich. In 1391 it was exchanged for Marthan in Norfolk with Cobham College, who held it till the Reformation, when it was granted to Lord Cobham, who in 32<sup>o</sup> Henry VIII. conveyed it to the Crown, with which it has remained except from 1<sup>o</sup> Queen Elizabeth till the end of Charles I. reign. There is a decorated porch with window and holy water stoup; above the doorway is a curious figure of a sitting monk with an upturned jug on his knees, his gaze is directed towards the figure of the Virgin, which once stood in the niche higher up. On each side of the entrance are archways that on the south are blocked; these together with a higher arch support the tower. The south wall shows arches which have been blocked, but pierced to admit decorated windows. There are a decorated Piscina and Sedilia. There are three Bells, one thought by Stalschmidt to be as early as 1348. There is an old undated Paten Cover and Chalice and a Sheffield Plate Dish. The Registers are lost down to 1768 owing to the Church being broken into and their being stolen: what remain are very imperfect till some 40 years ago.

ST. LUKE'S, CHARLTON. CERLUNTA.

There is a Church mentioned here in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. It was in the Deanery of Dartford, Archdeaconry and See of Rochester, when it became part of the Diocese of London, and formed part of the Deanery of Greenwich. In 1867 it was transferred back again to Rochester, and formed part of the Archdeaconry of Rochester and St. Alban's and Deanery of Greenwich; it soon after became part of the new Deanery of Woolwich. In 1905 it became part of the new Diocese of Southwark, and was placed in the Archdeaconry of Lewisham and Deanery of Woolwich. The Church was rebuilt 1630. It had certain later additions. There are four Bells, two dated 1685 and one 1713. The burial Registers date from 1867; all previous ones have been rendered illegible. The Flagon was the gift of Mrs. Craggs in 1711. Two Patens were given by Sir Richard Raynes in 1710. The Chalice is the gift of the Parish, and has a Paten Cover. There is another Chalice the gift of Mrs. Groves. Amongst other monuments is one to Spencer Percival, who was murdered in the lobby of the House of Commons. The Patronage was in the hands of the Abbey of Bermondsey till the Reformation, when it reverted to the Crown, with which it continued till the Restoration, when it became vested in the Lords of the Manor. Sir S. P. Maryon Wilson is the present Patron.

ST. MARY'S CHATHAM. CAETHAM.

The Church of Chatham is mentioned in the Domesday record, and it paid 9 den., according to Textus Roffensis, to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Diocese, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester. The Church was served from Leed's Abbey till the Reformation, and the Vicar was called the Clerk of Chatham. A stone Church was built here by Bishop Thomas de Woldham, 1316-1356; this was burnt down in 1786, when an ugly Georgian structure was erected, which was replaced by a new one in 1903. There is no vestige of the Saxon Church, but Roman bricks and foundations point to the early fabric. The Norman Church stood to the east of the present one. When the old porch was removed, Norman pavements, Norman water pipe, and the portion of a Norman Piscina were found. The south-west door, originally Norman, was removed here. In the nave are the old stair case, two side arches and the central arch. Of the Bells, two are ancient. One Flagon was given by Revd. J. Pyham, in 1636. There are also another Flagon and two Chalices, the former bought at the charge of the Parish in 1736. There is a second Flagon inscribed, 1752. Two silver Patens were also given by Mr. Pyham, and another of silver added in 1864. There is a large silver Alms Dish given by B. Ruffhead, Esq., in 1694, and there is a second given 1824. The Registers date from 1552. After the Reformation the Dean and Chapter of Rochester became Patrons. There are numerous monuments.

ST. MARTIN'S, CHELSFIELD. CELESFIELD.

This Church has been sadly restored with all kinds of material, but there are traces of Norman work in a window, and in the lance light windows of the North Chapel, and in the doorway from the present Vestry, which was formerly the north door. There is a squint from the Vestry showing there was a Chapel, which with the Chapel on the other side of the aisle proves the Church was originally cruciform, which is still marked by the position of the tower, which is square with a shingle spire. There are five Bells dated 1672. There is a Cup and Paten Cover of the date of 1639. There is also a Paten given by the Revd. J. E. Tarleton in 1835, and also a silver Dish, the gift of Brass Crosby, Esq., 1787. There are several monuments, of which the Robroke one is noticeable. The Patrons were at first the Lords of the Manor, then Private Patrons till, in 1874, All Souls' College, Oxford, became Patrons. The Register dates from 1538. The Church is mentioned in Domesday and Textus Roffensis. It was in the Dartford Deanery, Archdeaconry and See of Rochester till 1846, when it became part of the West Dartford Deanery, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and See of Canterbury; in 1905 it was restored to the See and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of West Dartford. It has now become part of the new Deanery of Bromley.

ST. BOTOLPH, CHEVENING.

The Church is of the Early English style and more modern ones, and there is no record of there being a Church here before the " Taxatio Papæ Nicolai IV," taken in 1291, in which it is mentioned. The Church has a south Aisle and Chancel ; there are two Piscinæ and credence shelves. There are two old Bells. The Chalice is inscribed 1660 ; the Paten is dated 1724. There are also a Paten presented by the Countess of Stanhope and a Flagon by the Earl of Stanhope in 1873. The Church was in the Diocese of Rochester and the Archdeaconry of Rochester and the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was transferred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury and the Archdeaconry of Maidstone. In 1905 it was re-transferred to the Bishopric of Rochester and placed in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Deanery of Shoreham. It is now in the Deanery of Sevenoaks. The Patronage has always been in the hands of the Archbishop. The Register commences 1561. The monuments are most interesting, especially the one in white marble (by Chantry) to Lady Hester Stanhope.

ST. HELEN'S, CLYFFE. CLIVE.

The antiquity of this Church has been pointed out by the learned Fuller, who claims that the Council of Cloveshoo, in 742, was held here. The Church is certainly mentioned in Domesday, and we find in Textus Roffensis it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but was as a peculiar of the Archbishop in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was reckoned to the Deanery of Gravesend. It now forms part of the new Deanery of Cliffe. There are eight Bells. There are two ancient tombstones with Flemish inscriptions. The old Norman window into the tower is worthy of notice. The Sedilia are extremely handsome. There is the ancient ironwork on the pulpit for the hour glass, but the glass is modern. Part of the old screen still remains. There is an old gilt Paten with an enamel of the Trinity, date about 1525. There is a Cup dated 1669, also two Patens and a Flagon of the date 1735, besides a modern Chalice and Paten. The Registers date from 1558. In them mention is made of the Spanish Armada and much interesting local information is given. The living has always been in the gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

ST. MARY MAGDALEN, COBHAM. COBBEHAM.

There was a Church here at the time of the taking of the Domesday record, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and was in the Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it became part of the newly-formed Deanery of Cobham. The Patronage was, for some time, in the hands of the Abbey of Bermondsey, but it after appears to have been in the nomination of Cobham College, and, generally, the Master held it from 1390 till 1504. After the Reformation it was held by various Patrons, and now is in the hands of the Earl of Darnley. The Registers commence 1634. There is a Cup and Paten Cover of the date 1634-5. Another Chalice was given by Sir Joseph Williamson, also another Paten Cover and a Flagon. There are five Bells. The Church, which is chiefly Early English and Decorated, is renowned for the great number of splendid Brasses which are in excellent preservation.

APULDREFIELD IN COBHAM.

There was a Chapel of this name mentioned in several wills.
 The Chapel was granted in 1391 to the Hospital at Strood, and was probably served from there. The following Chaplains, however, are found in the episcopal registers.

- 1330, John Tydlyngton (Hamo 133).
 1348, Robert Haut de Seymenberg (Hamo 241).

COBHAM BURY.

The Prebends from this had some special revenues from here and a governing position in the monastic body of Rochester, and afterwards in the Cathedral body. The following have been recorded in the episcopal registers.

John Cad.

COBHAM COLLEGE.

John de Cobham endowed a College for five Priests, one of whom should preside over them. The Churches of Chalk, Horton Kirby and Rolvenden, in Kent, and that of East Tilbury, in Essex, were in its gift. The Masters appear to have become Vicars of Cobham : there are Brasses to many of them in Cobham Church.

ST. JAMES', COOLING. CUILINGA.

The Church has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but from 1846 it has been reckoned to the then created Deanery of Gravesend, instead of the old Deanery of Rochester. It now forms part of the new Deanery of Clyffe. The Church is mentioned in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. The Patronage has always been in private hands. The Church was nearly wholly rebuilt in the decorated period, perhaps at the time of the fortifying of the Castle. There are two Squints, and three Sedilia inside and five outside the rails on each side. On the north side there seems to be an ancient Norman door built up. The decorated Font stands on a centre pedestal and four pillars; it has places for the salt and the candle; on the eastward side it has I.H.S.; on the others there are panels. There is a Piscina with two drain basons, highly ornamented. There are two Bells of the seventeenth century. There are some ancient Brasses. Outside the Church a group of family bodystones is described by Dickens in his "Great Expectations." The Communion Plate consists of Chalice and Paten, both dated 1684. The Registers commence 1707. Mrs. Shilcock is the present Patron.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE, COWDEN. CUDENA.

The earliest mention of a Church here is in the Textus Roffensis as to its paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of South Malling. It afterwards became part of the Rural Deanery of Tonbridge, and in 1905 formed part of that Deanery, and Archdeaconry and the See of Rochester. There is no apparent Norman work; perhaps the early decorated penetrates the old wall and the inner arch of the west window. The cusped lancelets and a circular window date from about 1300. The Church was greatly enlarged in 1837; the rood screen was unhappily removed in 1885. There are two Piscinæ in the north and south walls at the entrance to the chancel, and point to two altars having stood there against the rood screen. The pulpit is of the date 1623, on it is a stand for an hour glass of Sussex iron. The Chalice, with Paten Cover, are marked Cowden, in Kent. Another Chalice is inscribed as the gift of Richard Knight. The Registers date from 1566. There are five Bells, two of which belong to the sixteenth, and two to the seventeenth century, the fifth to the eighteenth. The Patronage was in the hands of the Staffords till the attainder of the last Duke of Buckingham. Afterwards it passed into the hands of the Sydneys, and then to various owners. Miss Nunn is the present Patron. There is an ancient Brass.

ST. PAULINUS, CRAYFORD, OR EARDE.

There was a Church here in the time of Domesday which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Archdeaconry and Bishopric of Rochester, and, as a peculiar of the Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was transferred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and the Deanery of East Dartford; in 1905 it became part of the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of East Dartford. It now belongs to the Dartford Deanery. The outer walls, north and south, show the Norman Church. The Nave is about 1150. The Tower is of the decorated period, as are also the Piscina and triple Sedilia. The nave is divided by an arcade running down the centre and terminating at the point of the chancel arch. There is a doorway in the outer wall of the north aisle. There are eight Bells, hung in 1876 in lieu of five older ones. The Chalice is dated 1634-5; the Flagon 1637-8. Two Patens are inscribed as the gifts of Madam Shorte, 1740. There are handsome monuments to Mrs. Marlar, William Draper and his wife, Robert Mansell, and one to Dame Elizabeth Shovel, wife of the famous Admiral, also in the churchyard is a witty one to Peter Izod, the Parish Clerk. The Registers commence at the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign, and the early ones are written in Latin. Entries of important persons are very profuse. The Patronage has always been in private hands. The Bishop is now Patron.

ST. MICHAEL'S, CUXTON, OR COCKLESTANE. CUCLESTONA.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Bishopric, Archdeaconry, and Deanery of Rochester, and in the gift of its Bishop. There is much old Norman work left in the Church. There is an ancient chest in the vestry. The Church is not built quite straight, and this, or the fact that the high altar was done away with, and the one in St. Mary's Chapel, which was round a corner, being used, gave rise to the saying :

He that would go to a Church miswent,
 Let him go to Cuxton in Kent.

There are five modern Bells, which replace two ancient ones. The Cup and Paten Cover are of the date 1618. A silver Paten in memory of Charles Colson, 1901 ; a plated Flagon, dated 1895. with a pewter Paten and Flagon form the rest of the Church Plate, The Registers date from 1700. The monuments to the Marshams, Lady Harley, and John Bodill are noticeable.

ST. MARGARET'S, DARENTH. DERENT.

There was a Church here in the Domesday time, and it paid 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. It was in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Shoreham as a peculiar of the Archbishop till 1846, when it became part of the Rural Deanery of Gravesend. There appears to have been a Saxon Church with Chancel and Nave. There is some Saxon work, as the double splayed window with semi-circular arch of Roman tiles testify, and the remains of a door. To the Saxon Church was added a Norman one, with an extended Chancel, a south Chapel, Nave, and south Aisle. The Norman Font, which has some grotesque figures, is very interesting. The Church was greatly altered in the 15th century. There are three Bells. There is a Flagon, the gift of Edward Davenport, 1682, and also an Alms Dish by the same donor, besides the Chalice and Paten. The Register dates from 1678. The Patronage was with the Priory of Rochester, till at the Reformation it passed to the Chapter.

HOLY TRINITY, DARTFORD. DERTEFORDE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford, and also in the presentation of the Bishop of Rochester till 1846, when it was transferred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury and the Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of East Dartford. In 1905 it was restored to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, as was also the Patronage to the Bishop, though during the period from 1846-1905 it had been with the Bishop of Worcester. It now has again become the head of a Dartford Deanery. The Tower of this Church in its lower stages is Norman, another stage was added in the fifteenth century. The north Chancel seems to have been erected in the Early English period, and the Chapel of St. Thomas à Becket being here seems to go to prove this. The south Aisle was finished in the beginning of the fourteenth century; in it there is a fresco of St. George killing the dragon. There is a room overlooking the Darenth above the porch which had a window from which the ford could be seen, and here it is supposed the Chaplain of Stampet Chantry stood and prayed for the safe passage of travellers. There are eight Bells, six of which were hung in 1702, a seventh in 1773, and the other in 1882. There are two Flagons of the seventeenth century, one of them dated. Two Chalices presented in 1734, and enlarged in 1750, pursuant to the will of the late Vicar, Revd. Chas. Chambers. Two small Patens of the same date and a silver Alms Dish, the gift of Jos. Allen, 1749. The Registers commence 1559 and 1565; in them the plague is often mentioned. A curious entry is "A mare of John Shrivell was buried the 25th of June, 1642," perhaps a ribald jest at the Church; there are some curious Latin entries, one where John Powle, the same name as the Vicar, is called faber murarius (was he an architect or a bricklayer?).

This Chapel stood in a burial ground on a hill to the east of the town. It was probably built in the thirteenth century, as it is not mentioned in Textus Roffensis, but its Chaplains begin in 1326. It was in the gift of the Abbess and Convent of Dartford.

ST. NICHOLAS, DEPTFORD, formerly called WEST GRENEWICH.

The Church is mentioned as paying 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester. The Parish was in the Diocese of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846; it became part of the Diocese of London at that time, but in 1867 it went back to Rochester. In 1877 it was placed in the Archdeaconry of Southwark, and in 1905 it became part of the Deanery of Greenwich, Archdeaconry of Lewisham, and Bishopric of Southwark. The Church has no old work about it except the Tower, but the curious skulls at the entrance of the Churchyard deserve notice. At the back of the Altar rises a high oak Reredos, in the centre of which are the ten commandments, and on one side of them a large figure of Moses, and on the other one of Aaron; on the top are two wooden candlesticks and the Royal Arms; there is also a carved oak Pulpit; much of the carved work is ascribed to Grinling Gibbons. The living was in the gift of the Abbey of Beyham. At the dissolution of that Abbey it was given by Henry VIII. to Cardinal Wolsey for his new college, but on his attainder it reverted to the Crown, with which it continued till the time of George I., when it came into the hands of the Wickhams and Drakes. The Bells are eight modern ones. There are a modern plated Flagon, Chalice, and Paten to replace the old ones which were stolen, also an Alms Dish, and besides there is a silver Font bequeathed to the Parish by Mr. Thos. Commins in 1847. The Registers date from 1563, and are fairly well kept. Amongst other entries two deserve notice, the first is: "William Hawkins, Esqre., was buried the ninth of October, 1589," against this is written "he was Captain of a ship against the Armada." The second is A.D. 1598: "Christopher Marlowe slaine by Francis Frazer ye 1 of June." This is the record of the death of the playwright Marlowe, who was killed in a brawl in the street of Deptford. The present Patron is T. T. Drake, Esq.

ST. PAUL'S, DEPTFORD.

The Church was built as it would appear by some pupil of Sir Christopher Wren, or after his design, and consecrated in 1730, but not made a separate parish till 1731. At the end of each gallery is a room, four altogether. There is a fine old Chair, probably taken from some Abbey and presented to the Church. The fine oak carving, especially that of the pulpit, is noticeable. There are three Bells, the oldest 1772 the others 1823 and 1825. The Church was repaired and decorated 1883. The Patronage of the living was originally in the hands of the Crown, but in 1775 John Thornton became Patron, and from him it passed to the Drake family, and thence to the Bishop. The Communion Plate consists of a large Flagon, two Chalices, and two Patens, and embossed Alms Dish (given to replace the plate that was stolen in 1857), from the subscriptions of friends. There are also six silver Plates, and a silver Mace with a figure of St. Paul, dated 1764. and inscribed with the names of various Rectors and Churchwardens. The Registers date from 1730. The present Patron is the Bishop.

ST. PETER'S, DITTON, OR DICTUNA.

It was in the Deanery and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling; in 1905 it was restored to the Bishopric of Rochester, and placed in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Deanery of Malling. The Patronage was in the gift of the Convent of Leeds till the Reformation, when it was in the hands of the King till James I. granted it to R. Shakerley, Esq., when it soon reverted again to the Crown, with which it continued till George I. granted it to the Earls of Aylesford. In 1905 it was restored to the Bishopric of Rochester and the Archdeaconry of Rochester, and now belongs to the Deanery of Beckenham. There is no mention of the Church in Domesday or Textus Roffensis, but portions of the Church, which has now been rebuilt, are of the thirteenth century; there are some stained glass windows of the date of 1636. ## SOUTH DARENT. SUDARENTE.

In Textus Roffensis we have mention of a Church which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. Harris speaks of this parish, and Thorpe says the Church stood near the mill on the right of a lane leading from Darenth to Deans Bottom, which, in his days had become a dwelling house. There is no mention made of any ministers.

ST. MARGARET'S AT HELLES.

This ancient Church, of which the remains were to be seen in the days of Thorpe, stood between Eynsford and Darenth ; it was held to be in the Parish of Darenth. From Archbishop Warham's Register in 1522 we learn that the Vicar of Darenth was to celebrate Mass there on every second Sunday in the month (unless that fell on a high festival), or get some other Priest to do so, and likewise on the Feast of St. Margaret. The dead belonging to this Precinct are to be buried in Darenth Church and the marriages must be solemnized there ; the sick are to receive Holy Communion and Extreme Unction from the Vicar of Darenth, but children may be christened in the Chapel. There is no mention made of any separate clergyman. Wills from 1473-1533 speak of repairing the Chapel.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, EDENBRIDGE. EDELMESBRIGGE.
EATONBRIG.

This Church is mentioned in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. Till 1866 it was reckoned as a Chapel of Westerham. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of South Malling. It afterwards became part of the Deanery of Tonbridge, in the Archdeaconry of which it was placed when restored to Rochester in 1905. There is an Early Norman Window in the north wall of the Nave. There is an Early English Lancet Window in the south wall of the Aisle, showing, with the Nave, Arcade and part of the Tower and certain windows in the Chapel, that there was much alteration in the thirteenth century. Numerous windows were inserted in the north and south Aisles, the East Window of the Chapel was rebuilt, as also the Chancel, the Tower, Arch, and the Nave, in the decorated period, to the early part of which belongs the Font. There is an Ancient Tomb in the Belfry, with an almost obliterated Norman-French inscription, and a beautiful epitaph to a girl of the Jemmet family, and a curious recess in the Tower like an Easter Tomb. The Registers date from 1568, but there are gaps. There are a Chalice and Paten of the date 1671; the Cup was the gift of Michael Spatcherst. There are also some old Pewter Communion Vessels. We notice too a modern Chalice and Paten. Since its separation, the Church has been in the gift of private Patrons. There are six Bells of the date 1807.

1860, Charles Frederick Gore.

1903, Walter John Nesbit.

1906, Hugo Richard Hubbard.

1908, Henry Lawrence Somers Cocks.

There may have been an ancient Chapel on the Bridge, as we find John Glouere mentioned as Chaplain in 1341, and William Tanner, Master of Cobham College, 1390, of the Chapel of the Blessed Virgin Mary, supra pontem. At the time of the Commonwealth Edenbridge was separated from Westerham, and had one John Head as "painfull minister" here and Vicar of Edenbridge.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, ELTHAM. AELTHESHAM.

There was a Church here in Domesday times and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it became part of the Diocese of London, but in 1867 it went back to Rochester. In 1877 it was placed in the Archdeaconry of Southwark, and in 1905 it became part of the Diocese of Southwark, Archdeaconry of Lewisham, and Deanery of Woolwich. The Church was rebuilt in the seventeenth century, but this Church was taken down and a new Church erected in 1877, when the wooden tower and shingle spire were alone left standing. The Church Plate, which is silver gilt, consists of two Flagons, two Patens, two Chalices, one Spoon, three Alms Dishes, one presented by the Rev. K. Shaw Brooke. The Bells are six in number, five dated 1790, and the sixth 1794. The Patronage was with the Abbey of Keynsham till the Reformation, when it went to the Crown. Henry VIII. granted it to Sir John Hendley, after which it remained in private Patronage. The present Patron is C. Polhill

Turner, Esq. When the Church was restored most of the old Memorials appear to have been lost, but there are a number of Tablets placed in the Church and its porches. The Registers date from 1564, and contain many curious entries, especially those of John Fourde, Vicar, 1623-1628. One records the Burial of the Right Rev. George Horne, D.D., Lord Bishop of Norwich, Jan. 17th, 1794.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, ERITH, OR LESNESS. EARHETHE.

This Church was in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was reckoned to the See of Canterbury and the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of East Dartford. It is now in the Deanery of Dartford. The Church is recorded as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The round arches in the north wall of the high Chancel are declared Saxon. There was discovered (in 1877 when the Church was restored) a Norman Window in the Chancel. The south Aisle was added about 1200 A.D., and the Tower is early thirteenth century work. There are masons' marks on the jamb of the south door, which was a custom in the fourteenth century. The Sundial is inscribed "Redibo tu nunquam." There are eight Bells, of which two are dated 1703, and two 1763. The Flagon was given by John Wheatley, 1736, the Chalice and Paten are dated 1803. The Lord's Table, after the fire, is said to have been made from one of the oak piles from Dover Harbour, and the lower part and two Sanctuary Chairs from the beams of the old roof of the Church. The Church was in the Patronage of the Brethren of the Holy Trinity, London, till the Reformation; it was afterwards given to the Walsinghamhs, and has continued in private Patronage. In 1905 the Church was restored to the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and placed in the Deanery of East Dartford. The Registers commence 1625, but were destroyed by fire, so that the Baptismal Registers are only wholly preserved from 1625-1752, and partly from 1830-1878; the Marriage Registers wholly preserved from 1625-1753, and partly from 1813-1858, and the Burials from 1625-1640, and partly from 1813-1837, and from 1837-1876. #### LESNESS ABBEY. LESNA.

The Abbey of Lesness was founded by Sir Richard de Luci in honour of Thomas à Becket and the Blessed Virgin, in the year 1178. There are considerable remains in a farm house near what is called Abbey Wood, and certain excavations and researches, made mainly under the direction of Mr. R. T. Vincent, who has kindly allowed me to correct the list of Abbots, have brought to light much that is interesting of the old Abbey (A.D. 1909 and 1910). The Abbey was founded for Canons of the Augustine order, and on its suppression by Henry VIII. its revenues were received by Cardinal Wolsey to endow Christchurch, Oxford. De Luci's third son was Archdeacon of Richmond and Bishop of Winchester; he was a great benefactor to the Abbey, and willed to be buried here. Weever records his epitaph and his father's, who is also buried here. The Patronage of the Abbey consisted of Newington-next-Sittingbourne and Marden in Kent, and Aveley, Elmendon and Rainham, Essex.

ST. MARTIN'S, EYNESFORD. AENESFORD.

There was a Church here in Domesday times and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. Till 1846 it was in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Rural Deanery of Shoreham as a peculiar of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Rectory was in his gift, when that was done away with the Vicarage remained in his Grace's gift, and the sinecure Rectory on the first vacancy died out at the death of Canon Moore in 1865. The Church was in 1846 transferred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Rural Deanery of East Dartford; in 1905 it returned to the Bishopric of Rochester and its Archdeaconry. The Church has a Tower with a fine Norman door, the apse has fragments of Norman mouldings, but appears to have been altered in the thirteenth century. On the south side of the Chancel are fourteenth century windows, but on the north side they are Perpendicular. The clerestory windows and porch are 13th century. The columns that carry the arches that separate the Nave from the Aisle are fifteenth century. The Church is curious as being apsidal and cruciform. There are squints to the central Altar, which have been blocked. The Font is highly ornamented. There are curious faces on the Nave roof-rests. There are six Bells, four of the seventeenth and two of the eighteenth century. The Registers date from 1538. The Plate is modern.

EAST FEARNLEGA, EAST FARLEIGH. ST. MARY?
OR ST. HELEN?

This Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but being a peculiar of the Archbishop it was reckoned to the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it became part of the Diocese of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of North Malling; in 1905 it became part of the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge in the Bishopric of Rochester and in the Deanery of Malling. As East Fernlega it is mentioned in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The advowson first belonged to the Crown; it was afterwards granted to the hospital for poor travellers in Maidstone, founded by Archbishop Boniface, and on its dissolution it went back to the Crown, which has held it ever since. Some think it was dedicated to St. Mary, but St. Helen has long held a place round East Farleigh, and the N.E. position of the Church points to a Saints' Day when the sun is north of the line, as is the case on May 3rd (Inventio Crucis). There are three seventeenth century Bells. The Registers commence 1580. There is a quoin or two of tufa, which give evidence to a Norman Church: the Nave was entirely rebuilt a few years ago, and the architecture of the rest of the Church is thirteenth or fourteenth century. There are a silver Flagon of curious shape, a Chalice and two Patens, all given to the Church by the will of E. P. Douespe, and a brass Alms Dish.

ALL SAINTS', WEST FARLEIGH.

This Church is mentioned in the Domesday record. It was originally, till 1846, in the Bishopric of Rochester and its Archdeaconry, and the Deanery of Malling; it was then placed in the Archbishopric of Canterbury, in the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and the Deanery of North Malling; in 1905 it was placed in the Deanery of Malling, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and in the Bishopric of Rochester. The first stone Church appears to have been opened in 1119. The Steeple was still being built in 1523, as we learn from the will of William Coveney. There are three old Bells. The Flagon, Chalice, Paten, and Alms Dish were all given by John Brewer, Esq., in 1719. The Patronage was in the hands of Leeds Abbey till the Reformation, when it came into the hands of the Dean and Chapter of Rochester.

ST. GILES', FARNBOROUGH.

Farnborough paid 6 denarii chrism fee only to the See of Rochester as a Chapel, according to Textus Roffensis. It was served from Chelsfield in the time of Bishop Langdon (1430), and in the Parliamentary returns we learn it had become a Chapel of Ease to Chelsfield. It had only one acre of land and an old house belonging to the Parsonage, being worth at most thirty pounds per annum, one Master John Montague being the Minister. The Bells are two in number. The Paten was the gift of Rev. J. E. Tarleton to the Chapel of Farnborough, 1836. A Chalice and small Paten are inscribed Farnborough Chapel. The Flagon has the date 1848. The Alms Dish was given by Mrs. Mary Crossby, 1787. The Registers commence 1558. The Church has been rebuilt, but on the north side Mediæval Windows are left.

- 1385, John de Dountone (Courteneye 350).

 1876, George William Durrock Hingston.
 1885, Frederick Jessop Kelly.
 1898, Graves Lombard.
 1904, Ebenezer Joseph Welch.

Farnborough was separated from Chelsfield in 1876, and became an independent Vicariate, but it has always followed that Church in its position in Deanery, Archdeaconry, and Bishopric.

S.S. PETER AND PAUL, FARNINGHAM. FAERNINGEHAM.

This Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but being a peculiar of the Archbishop was held to belong to the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of East Dartford. In 1905 it was transferred again to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but continued in the same Deanery. It now forms part of the Deanery of Dartford. This was perhaps one of the two Churches mentioned as belonging to Eynesford in Domesday : according to Textus Roffensis this paid 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester. The living was in the presentation of the monks of Christchurch, Canterbury, till the Reformation, when it passed into the hands of the Archbishop. There are remnants of the old Church in two Norman Windows, one in the northern the other in the southern Nave : the latter looks into the organ chamber. The Font is most curious, being carved with the Seven Sacraments, according to Roman use, in as many panels—(1) Baptism. (2) Confirmation by the Bishop. (3) Ordination by the Archbishop. (4) Matrimony. (5) Holy Communion. (6) Penance. (7) Extreme Unction. A Rood Screen, of which the staircase leading to the loft still exists, is traceable at the north east angle of the Nave. Of five Bells, three are dated 1656, the other two are eighteenth century. There are amongst other monuments five Brasses : and a costly Mausoleum to the Nash family. The Registers date from 1589. The Paten Cover is ancient ; the Cup is of the date 1678 ; and there is also a Paten given by T. Polhill, Esq., 1706.

ST. MARY'S, FAWKHAM. FALKENHAM.

A Church is mentioned here in Domesday, which paid, according to Textus Roffensis, 9 denarii to the See of Rochester, in which Diocese, Archdeaconry and Deanery it was, till 1846, when it became part of the new Deanery of Cobham. A window on the south side of the Church has istram fenestram (other words gone) what may be the Virgin and Child, an oak leaf, stars, and the Plantaganet leopards. There are remnants of the old Church in Norman Windows in the Chancel and the Nave : one on the south side and the other on the north. There is an Early English double Piscina. There are a north and south Porch, a canopied recess to the south in the Nave, and another to the north in the Chancel. There are several Brasses and two handsome Monuments, one to Bennet Warde, and the other to John Walter. There is one Bell, dated 1634. The Chalice is dated 1862, the Paten 1797-8. The Flagon was the gift of H. Hohler, Esq., 1887. The living has always been in private Presentation. The Registers commence 1558. There was a Chantry here dedicated to St. Katharine, founded by William de Faukeham, 1274, of which John Bishop was the first priest. It was probably in the Church. We trace the other Chantry Clerks in the Registers of Rochester, 1319-1404, and give them in a parallel column with the Rectors. The Representatives of T. C. A. Adams and S. B. B. Bouverie Pusey alternately are Patrons.

ALL SAINTS', FOOT'S CRAY. FOTESCRAIE.

This Church paid 9 denarii to the See of Rochester for chrism fee according to Textus Roffensis. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was included in the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Rural Deanery of East Dartford; in 1905 it remained in the same Deanery, but was transferred to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester. It is now held in the Deanery of Dartford. The Patronage belonged to the Convent of St. Mary Overy till the Reformation, when it lapsed to the Crown, which has presented ever since. The Church has been so added to every way that the original Church only forms a kernel. There is a fine old font of Purbeck marble. There are three modern Bells. A Flagon and Paten, the gift of Henry Spurlow, are dated 1704. There is also a Chalice without marks that appears Jacobean. The Paten is about 1712-13, and besides there are a Flagon, with Chalice, Paten, and Alms Basin, also a large Paten, and another dated 1844. The Registers commence 1559.

ST. ANDREW'S, FRECKENHAM, SUFFOLK.

This Parish was granted by King Alfred to Buhric, Bishop of Rochester, in 895. William I. granted it to Lanfranc, who handed it, with the advowson of the Church, to Gundolf, Bishop of Rochester. It continued a peculiar of Rochester till 1846, and was in the gift of the Bishop till 1760, when St. Peter's College, Cambridge, obtained the Patronage. The Church consists of a Tower, two Aisles and a Chancel. At the end of the north Aisle is a Chapel, with Piscina, probably the ancient Chantry. The Church is mentioned in Domesday. The present building is Perpendicular. The parish is situated in the Deanery of Fordham, Archdeaconry of Sudbury, and Diocese of Ely, but the Deanery of Fordham was, previous to 1846, a peculiar of Rochester. A curious carving in alabaster was discovered in 1776, while repairing the Church, showing a Bishop or Mitred Abbot holding in his right hand the leg of a horse, recently torn off, and striking the hoof with a hammer. Near him stands a horse on three legs, with the shoulder bleeding whence the fourth leg has been torn. The horse is held by a person, whose legs appear under the horse, having peaked shoes on the feet ; in the background is a furnace, and round it horse shoes and tools of a smith. Some said it was St. Anthony of Padua, who was a farrier, who cut a horse's hoof off while paring it, which he immediately made whole, for which reason he was held to be a protector of horses and beasts shod with iron. Others said it was St. Eligius, known as St. Eloys, or St. Loys, Bishop of Noyou, who is related to have pulled off the leg of the horse when he put on the shoe, and with the sign of the Cross restored it to its original place. He did this because he had once been kicked while shoeing a horse. Others think while the Church belonged to the Archbishops it was placed here to commemorate St. Dunstan. A bronze Seal was found here twelve years ago of thirteenth century work, with David playing on a Harp and the words "Memento Domine David." There are five Bells, of which the second and third are dated 1623. The Cup is pronounced Elizabethian. The first Paten is dated 1723, the second is dated 1890, and the Flagon is dated 1854. The Rev. W. S. Parish says he had the Cup repaired, and also the second Paten made of the same size as the first, and for this and the Restoration paid £4 3s., deducting the value of a small silver Paten which he sold, which was a priceless relic of former ages. Freckenham had both a Rector and Vicar, so we give them in parallel lines ; at the end of which the list of Chantry Priests follows. The Chantry was in the Church.

ALL SAINTS', FRINDSBURY. FREANDES BURI.

This Church has always been in the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Deanery of Rochester, but lately has been placed in the new Deanery of Clyffe. It paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. At the time of its reparation, 1883, the Church showed three Windows in the east wall, and three more in each side wall, and that these windows were blocked in the fifteenth century and larger windows inserted. In the north Window on the west side is a figure thought to be St. Leonard, in the east is a figure of St. Edmund (the name is above him), evidently Edmund, Archbishop of Canterbury, sainted in 1247. The south Light had a Bishop, perhaps Laurence de St. Martin, opposite is the figure of a woman. On the jamb of the north Light is St. Lawrence, and on the south Light on the north side is what may be Mary Magdalene; on the south a Palmer (perhaps William of Perth). The plain Norman Arch that opens into the Chancel remains. The Chancel has low side windows of the Perpendicular period at the west end of its north and south walls. On the south side outwards there is a Priest's Door, and west of it an hagioscope. The Font has eight panels, four with the letters I.R.N.R., and four with a coat of arms, one panel having I., another the arms, the third R., the fourth a coat of arms, etc. There is a very curious tomb, with an opening in it as if to show the interior. There are six Bells, most of them ancient. The monuments to Watson, Needler and Butler are worthy of notice. There are a Flagon, a Chalice, two Patens, and an Alms Dish. The Alms Dish is inscribed as the gift of William Gibbs, 1811, the rest was purchased 1818. The Registers date from 1734. The Bishop of Rochester has always been Patron.

ST. PHILIP AND ST. JAMES, UPNOR.

This Church was erected in 1878, from which time the Registers date. It has a modern Bell. The Bishop of Rochester is Patron. There are a plated Flagon, Chalice and Paten, of the same date as the Church, also a Chalice and two Patens of silver, presented by the parishioners in 1905.

ST. MARY'S, GILLINGHAM.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, to which Diocese and Archdeaconry the parish has always belonged, but till 1846 was reckoned to the Deanery of Shoreham; at that date it was transferred to the Deanery of Rochester. There are eight Bells, six of which are eighteenth century, and the two others are dated 1811. There are traces of the old Norman Church at places in the walls. The fine Tower is of the decorated period. Some of the pillars are square, some octagonal. The three fine Sedilia on the south side point to the time probably when the Archbishop was Visitor. Gillingham was one of his peculiars. An opening near the bottom of the Chancel outside was probably a squint. The figure of the Virgin was noted as our Lady of Gillingham, to which pilgrimages were made; it stood over the west door. The Patronage was once in the hands of the Convent of Ticehurst, Sussex, but was early transferred to the Convent of Minster in Sheppey. At the Reformation it escheated to the Crown, but was granted by Queen Elizabeth to Edward Hobbys, of Queenborough. Afterwards it came into the hands of S. Radcliffe, Principal of Brasenose, Oxford, who left the presentation to the college, who kept it for fifty years, after that they presented alternately with the Governors of the Free School, Middleton: after 1729 Brasenose presented alone till 1822, when John Page presented himself, and since then it has been altogether in private patronage. The Registers date from 1558; in them is recorded the christening of James Adams, the discoverer of Japan. The Communion vessels consist of a silver Chalice, dated 1571-2; another Chalice inscribed 1787; a third inscribed 1753; a silver Flagon, the gift of John and Mary Luck, of Woodland, 1862; a Paten of silver, bought by the parishioners, 1752; a second Paten inscribed 1819, and two Victorian Patens, all of silver; also two silver Alms Dishes inscribed 1753, and a pewter plate inscribed 1710. The present Patrons are the Executors of the late W. Rumney, Esq.

Upberry is frequently mentioned with Gillingham, and was a parish temp. Henry I. and Edward I. Between 1380 and 1385 John Phillipot erected a chapel at Grange, to which the Rector of Gillingham was also appointed, and this was valued at the dissolution at £6, and in Hasted days it was used as a barn. Lydsing was another chapelry which was united to Gillingham. It is mentioned as being in existence in Textus Roffensis, and paying 6 denarii as a chapel to the See of Rochester. It was dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene, and was given to the Abbey of Minster in Sheppey with Gillingham by Henry I. In 1642, in Parliamentary Proceedings in Kent, Richard Tracy, Vicar of St. Mary's, Hoo, is said to be parson of it. The Chapel stood in a wood some distance from Gillingham. It was re-built in the last century, but there being only a farm house in the parish when Bredhurst Church was re-built it was allowed to fall into decay, and in 1886 it was taken down altogether.

ST. JAMES', GRAIN. GREAN OR GRAYNE.

This Church was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was placed in the Deanery of Rochester. It has always belonged to the Diocese and Arcdeaconry of Rochester; it is now in the Deanery of Cliffe. There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was a peculiar of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Patronage was in the hands of the Abbess and Convent of Minster, in Sheppeny, till the Reformation, since which time it has been in private hands. Its one Bell was recast when the Church was restored. The thickness of the walls and the setting of stones show relics of the Norman Church. Over the Porch is written : "This Porch was built and the Church repaired in the year of our Lord, 1815, John Smith, Churchwarden." Probably at this time the north and south Aisles were taken down, as the brick buttresses that support the present walls show, and an interior wall now removed was built to make a Belfry. There are two Aumbries and two Piscinæ. There is a curious niche in the east wall, near the Altar, the use of which is unknown ; it may have been used for an Easter Sepulchre or Credence Shelf, we hardly think to bake bread, as suggested. The chased zig-zag pillars supporting the lofty Chancel Arch are noticeable. The way to the Roodloft is in the north wall. The two arched recesses on the north and south of the Chancel Arch perhaps were intended to lead to future Chapels or Chancels. There are two frescoes of Bishops, perhaps Hamo de Heth and John de Sheppeny to the south of the these. There are a Cup, gilt inside, and a Paten Cover of the date 1569, there is a Paten also of base metal, given by Rev. G. Davis, and a modern silver Paten and Spoon. The Registers date from 1664. The Church has just been restored and a Tower built, and amongst the contributors are Edward VII. and the Emperor of Germany. The Patron is the Rev. H. Macpherson.

ST. GEORGE'S, GRAVESEND.

This Church was originally consecrated in honour of St. George on April 3rd, 1510, by Bishop Fisher, as a chapel to the Parish Church, but it was not to be used to the detriment of the latter, so it would be unlawful to bury the dead or baptize infants there or aliquod sacrum alium in eadem capellâ ministrare præter quam consecrationem corporis domini. This Church was destroyed by fire, as was also the Churchyard in 1727. The Church was rebuilt in 1731, when £5000 was given by Act of Parliament and £1,000 by George II. towards the rebuilding. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and was in the Deanery till 1846, after which it became part of the new Deanery of Gravesend. The Burial Register dates from 1547, the Baptisms from 1651, and the Marriages from 1653. The Communion Plate consists of two Chalices, two Patens and Flagon, of modern silver, and a brass Alms Dish. The eight Bells were given originally in 1736, but several have been recast. The patronage was in the hands of the Wyatts, from whom it came to the Brookes of Cobham, with whom it continued till the 1st of James I., it then escheated to the Crown, which held it till 1886, when it was passed to the Bishops of Rochester.

ST. ALPHEGE'S, GREENWICH. GRENEWIC.

The Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. The Presentation belonged to the Abbey of Ghent till Act Henry V., 2, suppressed all Rights of Presentation of Alien Priories; it was then given to the Abbey of Shene, where it remained till 23rd, Henry VIII., when the King obtained it by change; it has since remained with the Crown. It was in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Rochester, and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was placed in the Diocese of London. In 1867 the Parish was restored to the Rochester Diocese, and gave its name to a new Rural Deanery, which was in the Archdeaconry of Rochester. In 1905 it and its daughter Churches were transferred to the Bishopric of Southwark, Rural Deanery of Greenwich, and Archdeaconry of Lewisham. The old Church was first built here in memory of St. Alphege, Bishop of Canterbury, who was slain near-by by the Danes in 1012. It was burnt to the ground in 1614. In 1617 the Steeple was rebuilt and the Church; the latter was rebuilt again in 1710, when the remains of the old Church were worked into the new. The Steeple was again rebuilt in 1710. The carving of the Church is by Grinling Gibbons. The Churchwardens sold the picture of Queen Elizabeth's Tomb at Westminster with the portraits of Charles I., Queen Anne and George I. belonging to the Church for a few pounds. The Registers date only from 1615, those previous to this date were burnt, evidently in the fire, as the earliest existing are partly scorched and burnt. There are one gilt Cup, the gift of John Wardall in 1631, and two Patens bearing his arms, and also a second gilt Cup dated 1657, two Flagons the gift of Mary Squib, 1671, an Alms Dish, presented by Mrs. Ann Adam, 1684, a Basin, given by Mrs. Dorothy Brewer, 1707, for Baptisms, a Spoon dated 1708, and a Paten, the gift of P. Watton, 1711. There is a window to General Wolfe with a figure of him, and as a monument a replica of his coffin lid.

ROYAL HOSPITAL CHAPEL, GREENWICH.

In January, 1779, the dome roof and the interior of the Chapel were destroyed by fire; in September, 1851, it was re-opened after restoration; and in 1882 it was completely renovated. There is a vestibule with Statues of Faith, Hope, Charity and Meekness, by West, and Tablets in Memory of Officers and Men of the "Orpheus" and "Dotterel," and of Rear Admiral May; from this a flight of steps lead into the Chapel, over the entrance to which is the organ gallery, with an organ constructed by Samuel Green, 1787, and renovated 1872. Under it are a bust of Sir R. G. Keats, G.C.B., sculptured by Chantrey and presented by William IV., and Sir T. M. Hardy, G.C.B., Nelson's Captain. Over the lower range of windows are eight paintings, on each side, of Gospel scenes. Over the Altar is a painting, by West, of the Preservation of St. Paul from Shipwreck on Melita; above are two Angels, one bearing the Cross, and the other the emblem of the Eucharist, and above all a painting of the Ascension. The Pulpit is supported by six columns, handsomely carved, between them six scenes from the Acts of the Apostles. The Burial and Baptismal Registers date from 1839. There is a Baptismal Bowl of silver gilt, 1818, and a massive Communion Service of silver gilt, of which the Chalice is inscribed as purchased 1713 by money left by Hans Hendrick, a poor pensioner, for pious uses.

ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST AND APOSTLE, GROOMBRIDGE.

This parish is now joined on to the adjacent parish of Speldhurst. A Chapel was finished here by Joan, relict of Henry de Cobham, and dedicated, as above, by William and Hawyse Russell in 1239. Of this Chapel we find mention in the Registers of Hamo de Heth only. No mention is found anywhere else.

KING CHARLES THE MARTYR, GROOMBRIDGE.

A Chapel was erected here in 1625 by John Packer upon the ruins of the old Chapel. An inscription over the door says "C.P.D.O.M.S. ob felicissimum Caroli Principis ex Hispania redditum sacellum hoc. d. d. 1625, J.P." It was afterwards dedicated, like its predecessor, to St. John the Evangelist. Here is a tablet to William Cotton Osweill who discovered Lake Ngami. It seems to have been generally attached for ministration to Speldhurst, and these two only separate clergy have transpired.

ST. MARY'S, HADLOW. AUDLO.

There was a Church here in the time of Domesday, and it paid 9 denarii to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis, and in 1287 the Advowson was given to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, who held it till the suppression of their Order, in the thirty-second year of Henry VIII. Edward VI., in his first year, granted it to Sir Ralph Fane, and after passing through various private hands in 1797, the Rev. P. Monypenny presented himself to the living, and in the hands of his family it has since continued. There are eight Bells, one of which is dated 1690, five 1695, and two 1775. The Church was held to be in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was referred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling; in 1905 it became once more part of the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Malling. The Church has been often restored in modern times, so that much that is ancient has been swept away, but there are traces of the Norman Church. The Steeple was evidently begun in Norman times and added to later on. There is a decorated entrance to the vault of the Rivers family, inside the Church; other monuments are modern. The Registers date from 1558, but were kept in much confusion; there are several curious entries. In Bishop Lowe's Register there is a curious Admissio heretica by one Richard Herbert of this parish. The present Patron is C. J. B. Monypenny, Esq.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, HALLING. HALLINGAS.

This Church has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and also in the Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it was placed in the new Deanery of Cobham. There was a Church here in Domesday times and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. There are traces of Norman work in the Church, though most of it has been added in later times. There was an ancient painting over the Chancel Arch of Halling, which is variously described as the tale of an unfaithful wife, or an emblematic representation of the seven deadly sins. Amongst other Memorials are two Brasses, one to John Colard, and the other, a very curious one, to Sylvester Lambarde. There are five Bells of the date 1675. The Register dates from 1705. The Presentation was given to Strood Hospital in 1192, and at the Reformation was transferred to the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. About a mile from the Church stood the ancient Chapel of St. Lawrence, of which some remains are found in a cottage. We give those Chaplains we have found, in parallel columns with the Vicars. The Bishops of Rochester had a place here, now swept away.

ST. MARGARET'S, HALSTEAD. HALSTEDE.

The earliest mention we find of this Church is in the Taxatio Papæ Nicolai IV. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and as a peculiar of the Archbishop in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846; it was then reckoned to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of Shoreham; it was, in 1905, kept in the Shoreham Deanery, but restored to the Diocese of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, it has since been made part of the new Deanery of Sevenoaks. The Church was restored and enlarged by Sir Thomas Watson in 1609, but was most ruthlessly pulled down in 1881, a small piece of the west end, which is covered with brambles, and a grave or two being all that is left. The Cemetery Chapel, a mile away, was turned into the Parish Church, and the Monuments were placed in it. It is a disgrace to this country that the relics of this ancient Church should have been ruthlessly swept away at such a date. There is one Bell. The Flagon, Chalice and Paten, all of silver gilt, date from 1869 to 1870. The Registers commence 1561. The Archbishop is Patron.

ALL SAINTS', HARTLEY. HAESELHOLTE.

This Church was anciently known as Haeselholte, and as such paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Bishopric, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it was placed in the Cobham Deanery. There are two Bells. There are modern Stoup, Chalice, and Paten. A peculiar entry in the Churchwardens' accounts is for the possin block £1 1s. The Registers commence 1712. There are two little Norman Windows on the north and south still left, the perforations for these in the ancient walls have been boarded on the top by ancient chestnut or oak beams long long ago, as also a window in the south of the Chancel. There is an eight-sided Font with quatre foils in each side, supported upon eight pillars, and a centre piece much older than the Font itself. There is a curious wooden box under a stained glass window in the south-west part of the Chancel. There is a Sedile on the south side of the Chancel, and a Squint on the north-west. There is an ancient doorway. The Patronage has always been in private hands. The present Patron is Sir William Chance, Bart.

ST. MARY THE VIRGIN, HAYES. HESE.

This Church, though it is mentioned in Domesday, yet is not recorded in Textus Roffensis. There are fragments of the Norman Church, and Roman tiles built into the walls, which speak of ancient times, but the Church has been modernized by the Victorian restorer. The Church has always been a peculiar of the Archbishop and as such was in the Deanery of Shoreham, but in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and is now placed in the Deanery of Beckenham. In 1846 it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of West Dartford, and in 1905 it was replaced in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of West Dartford. There are six Bells, of which four are modern ones, of the other two one is dated 1670 and the other 1602. There is a pewter set of Communion vessels dated 1717, and a silver modern service of Chalice, Paten, Spoon, and mounted Flagon. The Registers date from 1539. The Patronage was in private hands, but is now in those of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

ST. MARY'S, HENLEY ON THAMES. OXFORDSHIRE.

In 1287 this Church, with Mixbury, was received by the Bishop of Rochester, from Edmund, Count of Cornwall, instead of St. Burien in that county. This was formerly in the Bishopric of Lincoln, but in 1542, it was placed in the Deanery of Henley, Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Oxford. The Bishop of Rochester was Patron till 1852, after which the Bishop of Oxford appoints. There was a Chantry in the Church, founded by John Elmyns, and a Chapel in honour of St. Katharine, founded by Thomas Clobber. The Tower of this Church is said to have been built by Cardinal Wolsey. There was a Chapel of St. Ann near the Bridge, and a Chapel of St. John in the Church, and the Chapel of John Elmyns, founded 1460, and dedicated to St. Leonard. There are eight Bells, hung in 1813. The Registers begin 1558, and contain the Baptism, July 4th, 1591, of William Lenthall, Speaker of the House of Commons; January 2nd, 1642, Burial of Soldiers killed in the Parliamentary Civil War; also of Francis Blandy, August 17th, 1751, who was murdered by his daughter Mary, whose execution at Oxford, April 6th, 1752, is recorded. There are two Chalices and two Patens, also a Cup and Paten of Elizabeth date, an Alms Dish of silver, also one of pewter given by Richard Jennings, 1711. The early Patron was the King before the Earl of Cornwall. The Rectors are from a list supplied by H. M. Davenport, Esq., Registrar of Oxford (except where otherwise mentioned), or from Burns' "History of Henley."

ST. PETER'S, HEVER. HEURE.

This Church is recorded in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the Church at Rochester. As there is no mention here of a Church at Domesday time, it was most probably first built in the end of the eleventh century. It was in the Diocese of Rochester and its Archdeaconry, and as a peculiar of the Archbishop in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was reckoned in the Diocese of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of South Malling. In 1905 it became a portion of the Diocese of Rochester once more, and was placed in the new Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and in the Deanery of Tonbridge, which latter it had been previously reckoned to when it was formed a few years before. The Church was restored in 1894, and little of the Mediaeval Church outside was left; the rounded pillars inside and other work give us traces of Early English work. There are an Aumbrey and Piscina, and there also remains the Rood loft door, near which are parts of an old Fresco; there is also a fine old oak Pulpit. There is a life-sized Brass of Sir Thomas Bullen, the father of Queen Anne, and also Brasses to Robert Humfreys, Sybbell Greene, William Todde, and John de Cobham. There are six Bells, three of which are of the date, 1703. The Cup and Paten are of the date 1576, and the Alms Dish, 1585. There are also a Paten given in 1702, and a Flagon of 1780. The Registers date from 1632. The Patronage of the Living was in the hands of Cumbwell Priory, Goudhurst, till the Reformation, when it passed into private patronage. The present Patron is the Rev. R. C. L. Brown.

ST. PAUL'S, FOUR ELMS, HEVER.

This Church was erected in 1880. The Patronage was in the hands of the Archbishop and is now in those of the Bishop of Rochester. There is a modern Bell. There are a Paten and Chalice, which are plated. The beautiful Baptistry is noticeable.

HIGHAM NUNNERY.

This Monastery, which was originally known as Lillecherche, was founded by King Stephen in 1151 for sixteen nuns of the Order of St. Sulpice. In the last years of the thirteenth century the Abbey was removed from Lillicherche to Higham, and close to the old Church they built a new Nunnery, either using the stones of the old Abbey for that purpose or allowing it to fall into decay. There is, in St. John's College, Cambridge, a Memorial Service of the Abbey, which records the names of the Prioresses down to 1445, nearly perfect in all probability. All in this list are taken from thence, except where otherwise stated.

The Nunnery was dissolved on October 21st, 1523, by the King, and the possessions of it, including the Presentation to the Living of Higham, was given to St. John's College, Cambridge. At the dissolution there were only three Nuns, and the characters of two were questionable.

ST. MARY'S, HIGHAM. HEAHAM, HEGHAM, AND LILECERCE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, and Lillecherche 6 denarii as a Chapel. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and was in the Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it became part of the new Deanery of Gravesend. In 1909 it was made part of the new Deanery of Clyffe. There are remains of Norman, if not of Saxon work in the old Church, which was the southern and northern Aisles and southern Chancel. The northern Chancel was built for the nuns. The Font has places for the salt, the chrism, and the taper. The northern door and a northern window are bricked up. The Screen, though handsomely carved below, has even marks of the axe at the top, the old oak Pulpit is also handsomely carved. There is an aumbrey in the northern Chancel, and a Piscina in the southern one. The Altar Slab, which has still the marks on it, is in the northern Chancel. There are a curious Brass to Robert Hylton, another Brass to Elizabeth Boteler, and a Lombardic inscription to Vyllem le Mary, partly illegible, amongst other monuments. There is also a very ancient Chest. There was a Crypt perhaps to the Church, as William Rolff, 1485 and James Fulk, 1441 Will to be buried in the Chapel of St. James, beneath the Parish Church of Higham. Here may have been the Chantry, of which we have only a record in 1449, when Thomas is mentioned as Chantry Clerk of Higham in the Will of Richard Moyse, and in the Valor Ecclesiasticus its value is given as £vj xiijs iiijd. There are two Bells dated 1713. The Registers commence 1653.

ST. JOHN'S, HIGHAM.

This Church was opened in 1862. The Bells are of the same date. The Baptismal Register dates from the same year. It has never been separated from the Parish Church. There are a modern Stoup, Chalice and Paten. The Churches of Higham were always reckoned in the Diocese, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when Higham was reckoned to the new Deanery of Gravesend. Higham was in the Patronage of the Nuns till the Reformation, when it was bestowed on St. John's College, Cambridge.

ST. MARGARET'S, HIGH HALSTOW. HALGESTO.

This Church has alwaays been in the Bishopric, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester, but now forms part of the new Deanery of Clyffe. It would appear to have been originally reckoned as a Chapel of St. Mary's, Hoo, but as early as the times of Textus Roffensis it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Cup and Paten Cover are dated 1664. The Registers commence 1653. There are little or no traces of the Norman Church, except the Font. There are two side Aisles, with an arcade of rounded pillars and the Church is elongated on both sides so that there were evidently side Chancels, in each of which we find a Piscina; the one Chapel is that, perhaps, of St. James, and the other the Virgin. There are two curious Corbels in the eastern wall. The Patronage has always been in private hands. The present Patron is Rev. T. W. Longfield.

HOO UNION.

There is no Chapel at the Union Workhouse and no Communion Vessels. The Vicar of Hoo has always acted as Chaplain, and all registrations are entered at that Church.

ST. MARGARET'S, HORSEMONDEN. HORSBUNDENNE.

This Church is first mentioned as paying 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester. The Church till 1846 was in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Rochester, and Deanery of Malling.

It was then transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of South Malling. In 1905 it was placed again in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Tunbridge Wells. There is some fine weather boarding over the Porch. The Font, which is octagonal, has one plain side, the other seven are filled, one with a St. Andrew's Cross, the second has a pomegranate, the third a Latin Cross, the fourth a pomegranate, the fifth a wedge, the sixth a flowered Cross, the seventh a blank shield. The north Aisle is divided from the centre one by one rounded and one octagonal pillar, the end arches have two slender half columns against the wall; the south one is separated by two rounded pillars, but the end arches have only two capitals let into the walls. There are six Bells, two of which are dated in the eighteenth century. The Paten, Alms Dish, Flagon and Chalice are all of silver gilt, given by Alexander Courthope, Esq. The Registers date from 1558. There was a Chantry here founded by John de Grothurst, as we learn from his inscription, of which we give the Chantry Clerks we have found. The living was always in private hands. The present Patron is the Rev. H. F. S. Marriott.

ST. MARY, HORTON KIRBY. HORTUNA.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and in Textus Roffensis we learn that it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was reckoned in the Diocese of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of East Dartford. In 1905 it was replaced in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but remained in the same Deanery, but now belongs to the new Deanery of Dartford. The advowson of the Church belonged to Cobham College till the Reformation, when it passed into private hands after 1558, having been with the Crown for some forty years. Amongst the Monuments are a Brass to a Bathurst and a Monument to De Ros. The Church had its Chancel extending farther east than at present, but the original east windows were rebuilt in their present position. There are north and south Transepts, both of which had Piscinas. The north doorway is blocked up, the south doorway is fifteenth century. The Chapels have, on the north, two recessed pointed arches ; on the south side, three round splayed arches; on the west side, two round arches. The Tower and one of the Transepts are partly rebuilt of brick. There is some ancient Roman Pavement in the Church. There are three Bells. The Flagon is dated 1620, the gift of Henry Bathurst. The Chalice is dated 1599. Rev. William Hopkins gave the old Paten in 1733. The new one, in memory of Thomas Millhouse, was presented October 8th, 1899. The Registers now commence 1678, but Denne refers to earlier ones. There was a Chantry founded in honour of the Virgin in the fifteenth century, of which we give the Priests. The present Patron is the Rev. H. B. Rashleigh.

ST. MARY'S, HUNTON, OR HUNTINGTON, OR HUNTINTUNA.

This Church is mentioned as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but being a peculiar of the Archbishop was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was placed in the Diocsee of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Rural Deanery of North Malling. In 1905 it was placed in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Malling. It has always been in the gift of the Archbishop, and the long intervals in early times between the Rectors may be accounted for by the Archbishops not having presented, but only appointed Curates to do the work of what was a small, but valuable parish. The Church has been rebuilt on the south side. The porch we learn from wills was built between 1513 and 1532. There are six Bells, all of the date 1717; they were perhaps cast in the Churchyard, as bell metal has been found there. There are a Cup and Paten Cover, with the arms of Boteler of Teston, dated 1654, presented by Lady Anne Fane, of Burston, 1666; gilt Cup and Paten for the sick, 1714; the Flagon and Alms Dish were both presented by Thomas Turner. The Registers date from 1585.

ST. DENY'S, IBSTOCK. LEICESTERSHIRE.

This Church originally formed part of the Diocese of Lincoln, but in 1542 it became one of the parishes of the Diocese of Peterborough, and is in the Archdeaconry of Leicester, and first part of the Deanery of Sparkenhoe. The Presentation of this Church, together with two Chantries, was given by the Lord Bergavenny to the Bishops of Rochester and their successors for ever, in the year 1531. There would appear to have been a Norman Church, as is shown by certain early Rectors being mentioned in 1170, 1219, etc. The present Church was built in the 14th century, and consists of a Tower and Spire, Nave, north and south Aisles, and large Chancel. The Clerestory was added in the fifteenth century. Evidently there was a Chantry Chapel at the east end, both of the north and south Aisles. The Nave was restored forty years ago. The Chancel was restored through the efforts of the present Rector at the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, for £1,000. Two fine Mediæval Windows were discovered, then blocked up and plastered over; they had contained rich stained heraldic glass. The windows were restored like the old ones. Two leper windows were also opened. There are Aumbreys on the north and south sides of the east wall, and a Piscina in the south wall; the head of a sunken Panel also on the south wall. There is an aperture, and the present Rector thinks there was here a Calvary. The Bells are six in number, two of which are dated 1632, perhaps a third of the same date or older, and a fourth 1711. The Flagon, Chalice, and Paten of silver are all new. The brass Alms Dish is quite modern. The Registers date from 1569. We only trace the Rectors since the date the Presentation was in the hands of the Bishop of Rochester. The Presentation since 1846 has rested with the Bishop of Peterborough.

ST. MARY'S, IDE HILL.

There was a Church built here in 1807, by Bishop Porteous, but the present Church was consecrated in 1865. It has always been in the Deanery of Shoreham, but changed from the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, in 1846, to the Diocese of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and in 1905 it returned to the Diocese of Rochester, and was placed in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge; it is now placed in the Sevenoaks Deanery. The Pulpit is a beautifully carved piece of marble, and there are some fine stained glass windows. There are a modern silver Flagon, Chalice and Paten, and there is a small Alms Dish dated 1807; there is also a pewter Alms Dish dated 1726, evidently given from some other Church. The Baptismal Registers date from 1852, and the Marriage and Burial Registers begin in 1853. The Patron is the Rector of Sundridge.

ST. MARGARET'S, IFIELD, OR SHINGLEWELLOR IUELDA.

This Church is mentioned as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. The Church was rebuilt in 1597, and there is little remaining of the more ancient building. The solitary Bell is dated 1851. The Parish Registers only commence in 1751. The Flagon of Ifield is modern; the Alms Dish was presented by Rev. W. D. Johnston, 1845; the Chalice and Paten are probably seventeenth century, but the marks are not plain. The Patronage has always been in private hands. The Church has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but as a peculiar of the Archbishop was in Shoreham Deanery till 1846, when it became part of the Deanery of Cobham. The present Patron is Major-General Edmeades.

ST. PETER'S, IGHTHAM. EHTHAM OR EIGHTHAM.

This Church is recorded as paying 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester. Tradition says this Church was dedicated to St. Peter, but the only saint mentioned in connection with it is St. Mary. The Registers commence 1559. Two Flagons were bequeathed by Lady Howell, and the Alms Dish given by Dorothy Thornycroft. The Cup is inscribed 1734, Guilielmus James donavit ecclesiae de Ightham. The Chancel is eleventh century work, most of the rest of the Church is fifteenth century; the great oak door was erected in Edward VI's time, the Reredos is formed from the Jacobean pulpit. The Bells are five in number, one is seventeenth, the other four eighteenth century work. The tomb to Sir Thomas Cawne and the memorials to the Selbys are noticeable, most especially that to Dame Dorothy Selby, who is said to have revealed the Gunpowder Plot. The presentation has always been in private hands. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and in the Deanery of Malling till 1846: it was then transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of Shoreham; in 1905 it remained in the same Deanery, but again was reckoned to the Diocese of Rochester and to the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. Mrs. Macfarlan is now Patron.

ST. ANDREW'S, ISLEHAM OR ISELHAM, WITH ST. MARGARET'S CHANTRY, CAMBRIDGE.

This parish was in the peculiar of the Deanery of Fordham, which was reckoned to the Bishops of Rochester till 1846, and was in the gifts of the Bishops of Rochester till that date; it was then transferred, with the rest of Fordham Deanery that is in Cambridgeshire, to the Diocese of Ely. The Church is of the late Decorated and Perpendicular periods, and has a Chancel, two Aisles and Transepts and Nave. The Tower of the Church fell down in 1862, but no Bells were broken. The east window of five lights is of the Decorated period; the Piscina on the south side and the Sedilia with Misericere Stalls are Perpendicular. The Elizabethan rood screen was removed in 1870. There are five Bells: two dated 1516, a third 1680, and a fourth 1819, the other is inscribed "S<sup>ce</sup> Gabriel ora p aiabus Johis Bernard milit et elene uxis et Thome Peyton Armigi et Margarete uxis sue filie et herd pdictor Johis et elene"; it has also the arms of Bernard and Peyton. The Church Plate consists of two Flagons, one large Paten, one small Paten, and one Chalice. The handsome brass Lectern, which has an eagle with three lions (arms of Sir Christopher Peyton) is of the fifteenth century. On the roof of the Nave is inscribed "Pray for the good prosperitie of Crystofer Peyton and Elizabeth hys wyfe, and for the sowles of Thomas Peyton sqwyer and Margarete hys wyfe, fader and moder of the sayd Crystofer wych dyd mak thys rofe in the yere of owre Lord MCCCCCLXXXV., beyng the x yeare of Kyng Henry vii." The Registers date from 1566. The Church was built on the old foundations by the Bernards and Peytons, to whom there are numerous Monuments. There are inscriptions on the Flagon and on the Chalices and Patens, stating that they were given by Maria Adams in 1686 and 1685. There still stands the ancient Chantry of St. Margaret to the west of the Church, which was formerly a cell of the Abbey of St. Jacutus de insula in Dole in Brittany. The east end is apsidal, and a circular arch, supported by narrow arches, formed the entrance to the Chancel, and the piers and springs of another arch were at the entrance to the Apse ; the windows of the Apse are small and narrow ; at the west end is one window of similar character ; there are also two circular windows ; the south door is square-headed and trefoiled ; the northern door is pointed transitional Norman. The Bishop of Ely is Patron.

CIMINSINGA, ST. MARY, KEMSING, AND SS. PETER AND PAUL, SELE.

This Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it became part of the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of Shoreham; in 1905 it was replaced in the Diocese of Rochester and reckoned to the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Deanery of Shoreham. It paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Patrons were the Abbot and Convent of St. Saviour's. Bermondsey till the Reformation, when it was held by the Crown till Queen Elizabeth's days, since which time it has belonged to Lay Patrons. There are two Bells. The Kemsing Cup and Paten are dated 1564. The Registers commence 1561 and 1562. Though the Church has only a shingle top and spire, there is evidence, by the buttresses, that provision had been made for building a stone Tower. In the south wall appear traces of the Norman Church: there is placed upon an Early English support a Norman Font in which is a place for a candle. There is an ancient wooden Porch with a fourteenth century door. The north Aisle is quite modern, and an ancient Aumbrey has been replaced by one of modern style. There is a very ancient Chest. There are three Consecration Crosses. There is some ancient glass in the window and a fresco of St. Katharine may be traced; other frescoes appear in the plaster which, being carefully removed, might tell the history of the Church. There are two floreated Coffin Lids, one with a Chalice and Paten. The Screen has been renewed, and the ancient Dooorway to the rood loft remains. All traces of St. Edith's Chapel, which once stood in the Churchyard, are gone. Sele was separated from Kemsing in 1874. In addition to the above-mentioned there is Communion Plate, dated 1875. There are notable Tombs to Michael Jermin and Thomas de Hop. Lord Sackville is Patron now.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, SELE.

The Church has thirteenth century work and it would appear there is no mention of it till the end of that century. There is a Stoup for Holy Water at the door, a Niche for an Image over the porch, and Inner Door and Tower all about the same period. The Registers date from 1568. The Communion Cup and Paten Cover were the gift of Mr. Buck, Vicar, 1674. A handsome brass Chandelier was the gift of his wife. There are six Bells, four of which are seventeenth, and the fifth eighteenth century; one was recast, and the sixth presented in 1886. There are a Chalice, Paten, and Flagon, given by Captain Randolph, R.E., 1853, and two Candlesticks in memory of John Charles, Marquis of Camden, who died 1872. The Patron is Lord Sackville. This Church, with the following, has been added to the Sevenoaks Deanery.

1874, Charles Edward Few.

ST. LAWRENCE, SELE.

A Church was erected here in 1867. The Registers commence 1868. There is one Bell of the same date, and a silver Flagon and Chalice of the same date. Horace Wilkinson, Esq., is the Patron. On the Foundation Stone we find it was laid October 8th, 1867.

1867, Benjamin Peile Thompson.

1908, Arthur Shawe Hill Scott.

ST. MARGARET'S, UNDERRIVER.

This Church was erected in 1867, but not separated from Sele till 1877. There is a peal of five Bells. The Chalice, Paten and Flagon are of base metal, but there is a second Chalice of silver. The Baptismal Register dates from 1878, and the Burial from 1889. The Patron is the Bishop.

KESTON.

No traces have been given of the Dedication of Keston. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but, as a peculiar of the Archbishop, was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Rural Deanery of Dartford West. In 1905 it was restored to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester but remained in the same Deanery; it is now in the Deanery of Bromley. The Bell is dated 1624. There is an ancient Cup, the Paten is pewter, of the same date. The Church has the peculiar Corbel known as "the grinning monk." The Early English Piscina has a credence shelf, and half the stone basin projects from the wall. The Communion Table is inlaid, with a Cross at each corner, and an elaborately carved Cross Bottoneè, in which are the words "The Keston mark," and at the bottom "In hoc signo vinces." The Bell hangs in a little square wooden turret. The Burial Register commences 1538, the Marriage one 1540, and the Baptismal 1542. There are, besides the Communion Vessels mentioned above, a Flagon, two Cups and two Patens inscribed 1847. The Patron is the Archbishop.

ST. BLASIUS, KITEBROC. CHITEBROC.

The Church of Kitebroc is mentioned in Textus Roffensis, and also in the Taxatio of Pope Nicholas. It was given to the Prior and Canons of St. Mary Overy, Southwark, in 1427, as it had become a sinecure, and Bishop Langdon permitted it to be vacated. We learn from Valor Ecclesiasticus that the Bishop received for it £—ij*s*—. In Hasted's time there was a ruin here.

ST. JAMES', KIDBROOK.

This Church was built with a stone Tower with Spire 160ft. high and consecrated in July, 1867, almost, if not quite, on the old site. The Registers date from 1867. The Bell is dated 1866. There are a silver Flagon and two silver Chalices inscribed "St. James', Kidbrook, Easter 1878," and two silver Patens similarly inscribed 1879, and a large silver Paten of the same date, and a silver Alms Dish which is inscribed "In memory of J. S. Winch, October, 1880." There are also a silver Chalice in memory of Henry Boys, 1904, and a gold Spoon, richly carved with a branch with grapes and leaves, in memory of Patrick Cumin Scott, January, 1908. The Patron is N. Absolom, Esq. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and the Deanery of Woolwich till 1905; it is now in the Diocese of Southwark, Archdeaconry of Lewisham and Deanery of Woolwich.

ST. GERMAN'S CHAPEL, KIDBROOK.

This Chapel was built through the instrumentality of Mrs. Graham, who died 1698. The Bell is dated 1769. The Chapel has a stucco front. The Communion Plate consists of a silver gilt Flagon, Chalice and Paten. The oldest Register commences in 1865, and except from what is in it, and four entries of Incumbents in the Bishop's Registers, we cannot get farther details. It was a proprietary chapel, but now is in the gift of the Bishop of Worcester.

ST. EDMUND THE MARTYR, KINGSDOWN.

The earliest mention we find of this Church is in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas IV. The Church was in the Bishopric, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it became part of the new Deanery of Cobham; it is now in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Deanery of Shoreham. The whole Church is covered with plaster. There is an ugly Early English Tower to the south. The brick porch has been built before the ancient Norman door. The Presentation to this Benefice was given to the Monks of Rochester by Benedict, the Bishop of Rochester; up to that time it had been held a Chapelry of Sutton-at-Hone. Woodlands was held as a Chapel of this till Cardinal Pole united it to Wrotham, according to Hasted. The Bell is dated 1713, and also the Cup and Paten; but new was given, by his old pupils, in memory of the Rev. S. Dewe. At the dissolution the Presentation was given to the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. The Registers now commence 1725, but an entry in the Burial Register, 1814, tells us William Phillips the Clerk, in his wisdom, burnt the older ones.

"The plaster was removed in 1908 and show two early arches on the South leading into what seem to have been two Chapels, now taken down. On the sides of the recess of an early window are Cain and Abel sacrificing, and Cain with uplifted jawbone of an ox killing Abel, whose legs as he lies prostrate, alone remain: both are in the twelfth century peasant dress."

ST. KATHERINE'S, KNOCKHOLT.

This Church is not even mentioned in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas IV., but we find there was a Church here in 1406, from the will of William Brampton. The Church was held a Chapelry of Orpington till 1837, and appears to have been served with Downe. Thomas Browne held them both, and was buried here in 1788 (Par. Reg.), and was succeeded by Henry Fly. The Tower was built seventy years ago, and is a hideous compound of brick, plaster and flint, perhaps covering up some old work. We find an Early English Window inside. A side Aisle was built twenty-five years ago, and looks like a modern National School. There are two eighteenth century Bells. The Paten and Cup were the gift of Henry Meyrick Hoare, Esq., and the Flagon was presented 1883. The Living was in the gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury; it is now in that of the Bishop of Rochester. Till 1846 it was in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and in the Deanery of Shoreham. It has always been in the same Deanery, but it changed, at the date mentioned, into the Archbishopric of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and in 1905 into the See of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge; it is now held in the Deanery of Sevenoaks. The Registers date from 1548.

ST. MARY, LAMBERHURST. LAMBERHERSTE.

There is no Church mentioned here in Domesday, but in Textus Roffensis we find it paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was held to be in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of South Malling ; it is now placed in the Bishopric of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Tunbridge Wells. The Presentation was in the hands of Leeds Abbey till the Restoration ; since then it has belonged to the Dean and Chapter. There are six Bells of the date 1779. The Norman Church stood more easterly, but there are traces of it. There is a Norman pillar sunk in the ground, four feet below, on the south side of the Chancel ; its eastern companion is imbedded in the wall. The old stem of the Font has been used for an imitation Jacobean Pulpit, while, in 1874, the old Basin was carved and put on a Gothic stem. There is a Norman Piscina and a Window in the north wall of the Church, and a niche in the same wall which, it is suggested, was a Piscina. The two Sedilia and south door are Early English. The arcading of the Chancel and the Chantry of St. Katharine on the south side of the Church are of the Decorated period. The wall was thickened in the Perpendicular period to admit a staircase up to the rood, which still exists. The Church was much altered in 1874, and new windows inserted. The Communion Vessels consist of a Chalice of the date 1633, a Paten inscribed 1670, a silver Flagon of the date 1800, and a Basin of French plate silvered over. The Registers date from 1562.

ST. MARGARET'S, LEE, OR LA LEE.

This Church was rebuilt in 1812, and again in 1841. A portion only of the Tower of the old Church remains in the Churchyard on the other side of the road. The earliest mention we find of it is in the Taxatio Papæ Nicolai IV. There are eight modern Bells. The Patronage of the Church went with the Manor till Thomas, Marquis of Dorset, changed it away with Henry VIII., since which date it has remained with the Crown. The Communion Plate consists of a Cup, the gift of Nicholas Annesley, 1593; a Flagon, given by Christopher Boone, 1673; a Paten and Alms Dish, both dated 1704. The Church was, to 1846, part of the Diocese of Rochester, and the Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford, but in that year it was transferred to the Diocese of London, Archdeaconry of Southwark and Deanery of Greenwich. In 1867 it was restored to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and formed part of the new Deanery of Woolwich. In 1905 it became part of the new Diocese of Southwark, and the new Archdeaconry and Deanery of Lewisham. The Registers commence 1579.

ST. MARY'S, LEIGH.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it is mentioned as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of South Malling. In 1905 it was restored to the Diocese of Rochester, and became part of the Deanery and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. The Church has been much modernised, but the round pillars separating the south Aisle speak of the mediæval Church, as also does the open Belfry with its arch. The north Transept was, perhaps, the Chapel of St. Thomas, which we find mention of several times in the thirteenth century. There is a fine old Stuart Pulpit, with an ancient hour-glass. There is an old ironstone pillar, which is embedded in the north wall, and may mark where the Norman Church extended to. There are five Bells, re-cast in 1871. There are a Cup and Paten of the date 1618-1619 ; on the foot of the Paten are pricked the initials A.C. The Registers commence 1639, but the Burials from 1653-1740 are lost. The Church has always been in private Patronage. The present Patron is S. H. Morley, Esq.

ST. MARY'S, LEWISHAM. LUESHAM.

This Church was originally in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of London, Archdeaconry of Southwark, and Deanery of Greenwich. In 1867 it was restored to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and in 1905 it became part of the new Diocese of Southwark, and Archdeaconry and Deanery of Lewisham. It paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the Diocese of Rochester. The Church was altogether rebuilt in 1874. The Bishop of Rochester gave the Patronage in the thirteenth century to the Convent of Ghent. In the time of Henry V. all foreign patronage was done away with, and Lewisham was transferred to the Convent of Shene. At the dissolution of the Monasteries the Crown obtained the Patronage, which it did not finally part with till the time of the Revolution, when it was granted to the Ramsays, who passed it to Reginald Graham, Esq., who sold it to the Legges, who became ennobled as Earls of Dartmouth, and still have possession. The Communion Plate consists of a silver gilt Chalice dated 1686, and also a similar Paten and Flagon; a silver Flagon of the same date; a silver gilt perforated Spoon, the gift of Hon. Rev. Henry Legge, 1715; a Bread Knife, also his gift, both given about 1831; a silver gilt Chalice dated 1806; a silver Bowl, given by Thomas Hawtre, of Deptford, in 1735; a silver gilt Paten with Sclavonic inscription, dated 1887, "The gift of Honble. and Reverend Augustus Legge, Vicar." He also gave, in 1885, a silver gilt Alms Dish, there are also besides a Charles II. Spanish antique silver Chalice, a silver-mounted glass Cruet, a glass Flagon with electro-plate mountings, two silver Staves, dated 1843 and 1848, two oak Staves with a Ball and Cross, and two brass Candlesticks. There are eight Bells, six of the eighteenth century. The Registers begin about 1556, but were so damaged by a fire in 1830 that little but the names or other portions of many entries remain.

CHRISTCHURCH, SYDENHAM.

This Church was built about 1760 to carry on the work began by Mrs. Quicke (widow of John Quicke, Nonconformist Minister, who preached privately during the reign of Charles II., and more publicly after the indulgence of James II.), who, at her own charge, carried on the Ministry of the Gospel "in the poor ignorant village of Sydenham." Mrs. Quicke died in 1708. The first Minister was a Mr. Barron, who held it until the lease expired in 1794; it was then licensed as a Church by Dr. Horsley, Bishop of Rochester.

On the resignation of Stevens, in 1866, Christchurch was sold, and purchased by Mr. Edward Covell, who leased it to Samuel March, a Nonconformist Minister, in 1873, who called it the Free Church; he was ordained, and became Curate to Dr. Legge, then Vicar of St. Bartholomew's, who took over the lease; since then it has been a Chapel of St. Michael's. The Registers of early times have been lost. There is one Bell. Two plated glass Cruets, a silver Chalice and Paten, the latter presented by H. C. Guild, and a brass Alms Dish are the Vessels for Holy Communion.

There is much Norman work about the Church, especially on the north side. On the Font are the places where the taper was fixed, and the salt or chrism deposited. There is here a Heart Shrine, said to be that of Sir William de Leybourne, who died 1271. The Tower is modern. ## ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, LULLINGSTANE. LULLINGESTANA,

This Chapel paid 6 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. Lullingstane was united to Lullingstone, as the stipend was so small and there were only two families in the parish, by Bishop Yonge, in 1412. The Chapel was evidently neglected, for there is no return of it in the Valor Ecclesiasticus, nor in Edward VI.'s Commission. The Chapel had fallen down, we learn from the Parliamentary return, in 1650, and in 1712 it was finally united to Lullingstone. There were ruins in Thorpe's days, but since his time these have disappeared, and a depression in the ground, with signs of foundations of the north and south walls, are now all that remain. It stood near the north entrance to the park.

MALLING ABBEY.

This Abbey was founded by Bishop Gundolph (1077-1107), and it must have been finished prior to his death, as he appointed Avicia the first Abbess. The Gateway and the Gateway Chapel, the Church Tower, partly decayed, with the south wall and Transept, and the beautiful Cloister, built into a Stuart dwelling house, are now all that exist of the Abbey. We find several persons wished to be buried in the Church, and in the burying ground, and in the Neese or Nesse. There was a high dignitary connected with it in præreformation times, who had a prebendal stall, and who was styled Prebendarius magnæ missæ in monasterio de West Malling, of those who filled this office we have a succession in the Bishops' Registers. The livings of East and West Malling, and the Cell of St. Leonard, were in the gift of the Abbey.

ST. MARY'S, WEST MALLING. MEALLINGETES.

There was a Church here in the Domesday time, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. Till 1846 it was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and in the Deanery of Malling, and in that year it was placed in the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling. In 1905 it was once more placed in the Diocese of Rochester and Deanery of Malling, but in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. The Tower and the Chancel show Norman and Early English work, but the Nave was rebuilt in Georgian fashion in 1778, and in 1901 was again rebuilt. There was a Chapel of the Virgin on the south side of the Church. There are eight Bells. There is a handsome Altar Tomb to Sir Robert Brett, and there are Brasses to William Millys and William Skott and Dame Fitzjames, and the remains of one to Lady Dethick amongst other monuments. There is the Royal Coat of Arms of James II., thought to be a Grinling Gibbons, and a Picture of the Last Supper. There are two modern Flagons, and Chalices and Patens of silver, and there used also to be an ancient Stoup of Delft ware, with silver gilt straps hall marked 1581, which was disposed of in February, 1903. The Registers commence in 1700. The patronage has always been in private hands since the Reformation, previously it belonged to the Abbey. There was a Chantry in the Lady Chapel, of which three Chaplains (which we give with the Vicars) were found in the Bishop's Registers. The present Patrons are the Trustees of W. Lawson, Esq.

MAPISCOMBE. MAPELDRESKAMPE.

This Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was joined to the parish of Kingsdown in 1638. The Church was apsidal in form. The west wall is 30 feet high, and the side walls are 14 feet high and there are two Windows left. The size of the Church was 21 feet broad and 51 feet high. Its Norman architecture can be traced. The ancient Altar was a Sarson stone, which perhaps shows that the place was sacred before the Christian religion was established in this country.

This Church was rated as a Chapel in Textus Roffensis, paying 6 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was ruined in the days of Henry VI. It stood in a line half-way between the old parish Churches of Higham and Shorne. Hasted says it was 7 paces broad and 15 paces long. There are no ruins left now. The sinecure Rectory is worth about £89, and the Patron is the Lord Chancellor. #### ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, MEOPHAM. MEAPEHAM.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester. The Church was given with Darenth by the Saxon Duke Eardulf to Canterbury, and was afterwards rebuilt by Archbishop Simon de Meopham in the fourteenth century, and hence there are no traces of a Church previous to that date. The Church was in the Diocese of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but as a peculiar of the Archbishop, was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was placed in the Deanery of Cobham. The Chalice was bought in 1680, also a Paten. The Flagon was the gift of George Masters, 1757. The Bells are four in number, of the seventeenth century. The Bells, we learn, were partly made from old brasses. The Registers commence 1573 and 1575. The Archbishop has always been Patron. There are no old monuments except the Brass to the Rev. J. Fulsham.

ST. LAWRENCE, MEREWORTH. MAEREWORTH.

The present Church was built in 1746, when the Earl of Westmoreland pulled down the old one to build his family residence, when he removed all the ancient Monuments of his family to the new Church, for which purpose he erected the Fane Chapel, and put in the windows which traced their decent from the Plantaganets. There was a Church that paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and the Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was placed in the Archbishopric of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and the Deanery of North Malling; it is now in the Deanery of Malling, the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and the See of Rochester. The six Bells were hung when the Church was built, and are a little older than that date. The Cup of Mereworth is 1624-1625. The Alms Dish is inscribed 1680. The Paten is dated 1698. There is also another ancient Chalice dated 1562-1563, also a silver Paten marked 1893, and a brass Alms Dish. The Patronage has always been in the hands of the Lords of the Manor of Mereworth. The Register dates from 1557. The present Patron is Lord Falmouth.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, MILTON. MELETUNA.

There was a Church here at the time of the Domesday survey, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it became one of the parishes of the new Deanery of Gravesend. A Chantry was founded here in the beginning of the fourteenth century, by Aymer de Valence, the famous Earl of Pembroke, in honour of God and the Blessed Virgin Mary, and the Blessed Apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and he appropriated the Living for its maintenance. In Thorpe's day it had been turned into a dwelling house, and the upper part of the building had become a lodging room. It was purchased by the Crown in 1780, and, with some neighbouring buildings was pulled down. The Bishop, by an agreement with Sir Henry Wyatt (who willed, in 1537, to be buried here), kept one turn of Presentation, while Sir Henry had two; these turns went to the Crown, so now the Lord Chancellor has two turns and the Bishop one. The Tower, and what was evidently the south Porch, which has a Stoup for Holy Water, and a Piscina, and what was perhaps an Aumbrey inside, and the inner wall of the Church are all that remain of the late thirteenth or fourteenth century work, the rest is modern. There are six Bells, five of the seventeenth century. The Registers date from 1558, and contain many references to shipping. The Paten was the gift of Elizabeth Barker in 1639. The Flagon was bought by the parishioners in 1746, two beautifully embossed Chalices were procured in 1834, and Rev. W. Crawford gave the Paten in 1822; there is also a Spoon dated 1842.

ALL SAINTS', MIXBURY. OXFORDSHIRE.

This parish was in Lincoln Diocese, Archdeaconry of Oxford, and Deanery of Burcester, till the formation of the Bishopric of Oxford in 1542, when it was attached to the Bishopric of Oxford, and was placed in the Archdeaconry of Oxford and Deanery of Bicester. The living was conferred on the Bishop of Rochester in 1287, and remained in his presentation till 1846. There was a wooden Church here in Saxon times. A stone one was built in the Norman days, of which the south doorway belongs to the later period. In 1842 the Chancel Windows were discovered to be Norman. The Nave, north Aisle, west Tower, and Chancel are early decorated, the Windows of the Aisle have beautiful tracery.

To the ancient Bells were added two, inscribed "God save King James, 1609." "God save King Charles, 1627." The old Chalice and Paten are dated 1681. There are a new Chalice, two Patens and a Flagon about fifty years old. The Registers of Baptisms begin in 1645, Burials in 1656, and Marriages in 1660. Since 1846 the Bishop of Oxford has been Patron.

ST. BOTOLPH'S, NORTHFLEET. NORDFLEOTES.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and according to Textus Roffensis it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but being a peculiar of the Archbishop it was in the Diocese of Shoreham till 1846, when it was made one of the parishes of the new Deanery of Gravesend. It was a Rectory and Vicarage till 1546, when the Rectory was impropriated, and the Archbishop changed away the presentation of the Vicarage with the Crown. Of the six Bells three are eighteenth century. The Registers date from 1538. The Plate consists of a silver gilt Chalice and Paten, also a Flagon, Chalice, and Paten with foot, all of silver, with the date 1720 on them; also an Alms Dish given by Sir George Molesworth, 1769. The Church is principally of the Decorated period; there is, however, a Norman south door blocked. There are a Sedilia and a Piscina in the south Aisle; there is also a Piscina with shelf and modern Sedilia in the Chancel. Arcades of octagonal pillars divide the north and south Aisles from the Nave; there are clerestory Windows. The arch under the Tower has been blocked. There are steps up the outside of the Church on the south side, which are very unusual, perhaps intended for use in beacon days. An inscription tells the Steeple was rebuilt 1717. There are several Brasses and two alabaster Monuments, one to Edmund Allanson and the other to Edward Browne.

ST. MARY'S, NORTON.

There was a Church here in Domesday times. It was bestowed by Fulco de Nivenham on the Church and Monks of Rochester, which was confirmed by Robert de Campania, and agreed to in the King's Bench in 1163. In 1247 it was held to belong to the Bishop alone; previously the Bishop and Prior had appointed. In 1846 it was given to the Bishop of Worcester, why, it is impossible to say. The Church stands in the See and Archdeaconry of Canterbury and in the Deanery of Ospringe. The Chalice and Paten Cover were given by Lady Poultney and others of the household of James (afterwards II.) 1672, and the Flagon at the same date by Lady Elizabeth Keeling, widow of Sir James Keeling, Lord Chief Justice. The Alms Dish, of the same date, by Thomas Thynne, Esq., and others of James' household, and the Paten of silver, also of the same date, by Lady Frances Villers and the Duchess of Essex. All these were the fruit of the efforts of the Rector, Mr. Edward Lake, who was Chaplain to their household, and Tutor to the Princesses Mary and Anne. There are a few traces of the Norman Church in tufa coigns and stone settings, but the main part of the Church is of the Decorated period. The Tower has been sadly patched with bricks, and modern innovations have removed the traces of earlier times. An ancient Bowl for the Font lies behind the new one. There is one Bell. The Registers commence in 1559, and amongst other entries record a Rate for gathering the Clerk's wages.

ST. MILDRED'S, NURSTEAD, OR NUTSTEDE.

This Church is mentioned in the Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester. It had always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it was placed in the Rural Deanery of Cobham. The present Church is built of flints, and has a Porch of the same. There is a Perpendicular Tower, which has a Belfry with an arch leading into the main Church. There is an ancient Piscina and certain curious Windows inside the Church, giving light to the Staircase to the top of the Tower. A niche near the entrance was most likely for holy water. There are numerous slabs to the Edmeades, also a monument to Susanna Wentworth. The Church Bell is said to have been hung in a tree for some years. The Flagon is of the date 1863; the Chalice and Paten are of the eighteenth century. The old Register, we learn from an entry, was injured by damp, having been thrown into the Churchyard one wet night when thieves broke into the Church and found nothing. The Registers date from 1651. The patronage has always been in private hands. Major General Edmeades is the Patron.

ALL SAINTS', ORPINGTON. ORPINTUNA.

This Church is mentioned in Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Shoreham as a peculiar of the Archbishop till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of West Dartford. It is now in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and in 1909 was made part of the new Deanery of Bromley. The Rectory was in the gift of the Archbishop, and was a sinecure. The Vicarage was presented to, by the Rector, and to it were once annexed the Rectory of Knockholt and the Curacy of St. Mary's, Cray. The Vicarage was endowed by Richard, Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1173, and further by Archbishop Courteneye in 1393, and again by Robert Say, Provost of Oriel, who was Rector 1660-1696. In 1846 the Rectory was done away with, and then the Archbishop became Patron of the Vicarage. There is one Bell. The Church was rebuilt in 1810. There is a square central Tower, and there is a Norman Door on the north and a Window in the tower. There are Roman tiles and some old Norman work in the tower, which tell of the ancient Church, but the windows are much more modern. At the entrance is a Holy Water Stoup, and a fine Tomb partly dismantled. There is one Brass, and some Gravestones to the Spencer family. The silver Paten was the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Polley, 1681-2; the silver Cup was presented by F. E. Davis, Esq., 1873: and a silver Bread Box, "In Memoriam, H. T. L., December, 1894." There are besides an old Cup and Paten Cover, having the date 1634-5. The Registers commence 1600.

ST. ANDREW'S, ORPINGTON.

This Church was erected in 1893. It has a modern Bell and Communion Service and is served from the Parish Church. There was also, in ancient times, a Chapel at Crofton, in Orpington, but no Clergy of it, and no particulars can be found.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S, OTFORD, OTTERFORD.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The parish was a peculiar of the Archbishop, who had his palace here, and thus it belonged to the Deanery of Shoreham, and for several hundred years was a Chapelry of Shoreham. In early times we find these Incumbents :

- 1242, Ralph de Neketon (Arch. Cant. XX.).
- 1272, Peter (Arch. Cant. XX).
- 1338, Peter de Limoges (Winchelsey 12).
- John Parker (Chichele I. 107).

In 1425, William Lyndesword was presented to Shoreham-cum-capella, Otford, on the death of John Parker. In the year 1645 we find the Parliamentary Reports say that the Vicar of Shoreham, Mr. Emerson, is a good man, but the services of the two parishes is too heavy for him, but both livings are too poor to be separated, and that an Assistant Curate was paid for Otford by Sir Robert Heath's benevolence. The are two Bells, one of the seventeenth century and one of the eighteenth, given by Elizabeth Polhill in 1764. The Polhill family gave the Communion Service in 1666. The Tower wall, which is Norman, is four feet six ins. thick. In the west wall is a hole called the lepers' hole, through which the Holy Communion was given to lepers, from a small room now used as a Vestry, to the north of the Chancel. The south Aisle is fifteenth century work. A Piscina, also placed in the east end of the southwest wall, and a Tomb of the same date at the north of the Chancel are proofs of building going on here at this date, which is further testified to in the will of William Roger in 1745. A Screen and wooden Porch were added in 1637. From the year 1825 we find Vicars of Otford, according to the Registers, which date from 1635. The Patrons are the Dean and Chapter of Westminster.

- 1825, G. H. Greenall.
- 1845, Robert Biscoe Tritton.
- 1878, John Hunt.
- 1907, William Edward Lutyens.

ST. JOHN'S, DUNTON GREEN.

The first stone was laid on 22nd August, 1889, and the Church was consecrated in 1890, from which time the Baptismal and Marriage Registers date, that for Burial commencing in 1893. There is one Bell, The Communion Service consists of a small silver Chalice and Paten. The Archbishop is Patron. It is a district Church of Otford; it has lately been placed in the Deanery of Sevenoaks.

1890, James McGibbon Burn Murdock.

1904, Francis Walter Barton Ford.

1906, Arthur James Micklethwaite.

ST. BENEDICT'S, PADDLESWORTH CUM DODE.

The ancient Norman Church of Paddlesworth stands in the Pilgrims' Way, near Snodland. This Church is used as a barn, being deserted since 1660. In 1367 the ancient Church of Dode, consisting of a small Norman Chancel and Nave, was added to the Cure of Paddlesworth, being just across the hill; neither were mentioned in Textus Roffensis. This Church has lately been roofed in by the owner. We give, in parallel columns, the Vicars, as the two places so soon became united into one parish only.

PAULINE'S CRAY, POWLE'S CRAY, PAUL'S CRAY, OR ST. PAUL'S CRAY, ORIGINALLY RADULFSCRAIE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and we learn from Textus Roffensis it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it became part of the Deanery of East Dartford, in the Archdeaconry of Maidstone and the Diocese of Canterbury; it is now in the Deanery of Bromley, and Archdeaconry and Diocese of Rochester. There are a Norman window and mediaeval windows on the north side, and arches inserted for a north side Aisle. There is a trace of an Early Norman doorway and window in the north Chapel, and of a fine Early English east window; here was probably St. Katerine's Chapel. Except this Chapel, the Church outside is quite modern. Inside are pillars, one with a monk's head, the rest foliated. On the west door is a curious old lock inscribed:

John Mock
Made this lock.

A foliated coffin lid is built into the wall of the Church. There are three Bells, two old, the third recast in 1859. The Chalice was the gift of William Scrafton, Esq., 1718; the rest of the Plate is modern. The Registers commence 1579, but there are none during the Commonwealth, 1642-1661. The patronage has always been in private hands. There are two Brasses. The present Patron is the Hon. R. Marsham Townsend.

ST. MICHAEL'S, EAST PECKHAM. EAST PECHAM.

There was a Church here in Domesday times which paid 9 denarii cnrism fee, according to Textus Roffensis, to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Shoreham as a peculiar of the Archbishop of Canterbury till 1846, when it was placed in the Diocese of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of North Malling. It is now in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Malling. It was in the gift of Christ Church, Canterbury, till the Reformation, when it passed into the hands of the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury. Before the Reformation there were both a Rector and Vicar, the latter nominated by the Rector, who was chosen as above stated. There are six Bells, four of the eighteenth century. The Registers date from 1583. The Tower's several Windows, with the Doorways to the ancient Porch on the south side, are Early English. There are many remains of the Decorated period. The Church is divided into north and south Aisles by an arcade of rounded pillars. There appear to have been Chapels to St. Michael and to the Virgin, as some ancient stained glass testifies. There is also a place for her image. There are numerous monuments to the Twysdens. There are a modern Flagon of silver and Brass Alms Dish. There are a Chalice, a large Paten, and a smaller one dated 1794, which replaced what had been stolen. We give the Rectors and Vicars in parallel lines.

ST. DUNSTAN'S, WEST PECKHAM.

The Church has been much altered, but there is still some Norman work about the Tower, and the Font is also Norman. There was a Church here in Domesday times, and the Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was placed in the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling. It is now again in the See of Rochester, the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and the Deanery of Malling. The Advowson was granted by Edward I to the Prior and Convent of Leeds, with whom it remained till the Reformation, when it was given to the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. There are three seventeenth century Bells. The Chalice was the gift of John Stanley, Esq., 1630, and the Flagon and Paten were given by Sir Humphrey Miller, 1699. A Chantry was founded early in the fifteenth century in the Churchyard, which from the will of John Tutsam it would seem was dedicated to St. Anne. There were ruins left in the Churchyard in 1724. We give the Chaplains in a second column to the Vicars. There are Brasses to Colepepper and Stanley and monuments to the Dallisons.

PEPPINGBERIE ST. PETER'S, PEMBURY, ALSO ST. PETER AND ST. PAUL, AND ST. PETER AND ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST.

We find these various dedications in wills of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. The Church is mentioned in the Textus Roffensis as paying 9 denarii to the See of Rochester as chrism fee. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and the Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was placed in the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of West Malling; it is now in the See of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Tunbridge Wells. There was a Chantry founded in 1380 in a new Chapel, in honour of the Blessed Virgin Mary, in the Churchyard, all traces of which are now swept away. The Patronage was given by Simon de Wahull to the Abbey of Bayham in 1315, and remained with it till the Reformation, since which time it has been in private hands. There is an Early English Tower, and a Porch with a niche for the Saint above. There are few traces of the Norman Church, but a Lancet Window by the Porch. There is an ancient Priests' door, blocked up on the inside. There are two modernised Sedilia which, with the Font, have replaced the old. The Chancel Arch, and the Arch into the Belfry, are Early English. A Piscina in the south wall before the Church was probably close to the Altar of St. James, mentioned in the will of Alice Lorkyn. Here is an ancient Helmet, and Tombs to Elizabeth Rowe and Richard Amherst. The Bells are three, of the seventeenth century. There are a silver modern Flagon, two Chalices, and a Paten, also a smaller Flagon and two brass Alms Dishes. There is a Paten, the gift of Elizabeth Whitaker in 1793, and a Pyx dated 1905. The Registers commence in 1657. A new Church, which stands on Pembury Green, is served from the old Church. The present Patron is R. Clifford Smith, Esq.

ST. NICHOLAS, PLUMSTEAD. PLUMSTEDA.

This Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was given to the monks of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, and from them at the Reformation it lapsed to the Crown. Henry VIII, however, granted it to E. Broughton, Esq., in his thirtieth year, since which time it has been in private hands. The old Church stood near the side of the river, and its architecture proved it Norman. A Stone, called the Roman Stone, probably a Lombardic Stone, is within the Church. The Church had become very ruinous, and was repaired by the efforts of the Gossage family, temp. Charles II. It was again ruinous and repaired in 1808 ; on the last restoration, 1907-8, the thirteenth century Doorways were found, and probably the Norman Church, which had been altered in the thirteenth and fifteenth centuries. There are four Bells. The brick Tower is Jacobean, and was built at the expense of John Gossage. There are a Flagon, two Chalices, and two small Patens. The Registers date from 1865 ; the old Registers commence 1653, and are now at St. Margaret's, which at the former date was made the Parish Church. This parish was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester till 1846, and the Deanery of Dartford ; at that date it was placed in the Diocese of London, Archdeaconry of Southwark, and Deanery of Greenwich. In 1867 it was again placed in the Diocese of Rochester and its Archdeaconry, and in the Deanery of Woolwich, and now it is in the Diocese of Southwark, Archdeaconry of Lewisham, and Deanery of Woolwich. From 1254-1416 there are no records of incumbents ; perhaps this was served from the neighbouring Augustine Convent of Lesness.

The Vicar of Plumstead is now Patron.

ST. PETER'S, RIDLEY. REDLEGA.

There is a Church mentioned here in Domesday, and we learn from Textus Roffensis that it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It has been always in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but in 1846 it was put in the new Deanery of Cobham instead of the Deanery of Rochester; it is now placed in the new Deanery of Shoreham and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. There is little left of the old Church, but a Window to the left of the Porch is Norman. There is, in the shingle Tower, one Bell. The Chancel appears to have been rebuilt in the Decorated period. The Nave has been covered with plaster, but the little Norman Window testifies to the antiquity of this part of the Church. The Registers commence in 1632. Mrs. William Selby, in 1702, gave a silver Paten and Chalice (perhaps the present ones), according to the Registers. The Patron is W. G. Lambarde, Esq.

This Church was finished in 1421, and the first Vicar appointed in 1423. It has always been in the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Deanery of Rochester. On the Font is well carved in ancient characters CRISTIAN. The Pulpit is Jacobean. The Church was rebuilt in 1624. There are two seventeenth century Bells. There is a Cup and Paten Cover, the gift of Edward Harlowe. There is another Cup with Paten Cover dated 1602, also a Paten and two Flagons similarly inscribed. There are also an Alms Dish, given by Francis Brook, Town Clerk of Rochester, and one presented by Alderman George Gordon. The Registers date from 1624, from which time there is a list of Vicars. #### CHAPEL OF ROCHESTER CASTLE.

There was a Chapel which was endowed with fifty shillings a year by order of Edward I., but there are no Chaplains given in the Bishops' Registers, and no other mention is made of it.

There were Chapels to St. Thomas and St. Katharine, which are mentioned in wills, but there are no traces of them left, and the names of officiating Clergy are not to be found.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S, ROCHESTER.

The Church, which is a fine old Norman structure, was connected with the Hospital; founded by Bishop Gundolph for poor folk, lazars and lepers, and was completed about 1120; it was probably served from the Monastery of St. Andrew. Dean Pratt (1706-1728) repaired it and Dean Stevens made it fit (1840-1846) for Divine Worship. In 1867 it was provided with a Communion Set and other accessories of service, since which time there have been regular Chaplains.

ST. MARGARET'S, ROCHESTER. SANCTA MARGARITA.

There was a Church here in the time of Textus Roffensis, which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. Bishop Glanville gave the Presentation to the Brethren of the Hospital of Newark, in Strood, about the beginning of the thirteenth century, with whom it remained till the Reformation, when the Presentation was transferred to the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. It has always been in the Bishopric, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester. A modern Church was built on the site of the ancient one, which was pulled down (except the fifteenth century Tower) in the early part of the last century. There are six Bells, two of which are seventeenth century. The Paten was the gift of Eliza Wood in 1700; the Flagon, of the same date, was the gift of William Bockenham; and there is also a silver gilt Cup purchased in 1754. The Register dates from 1639. There are frequent notices of plague. There are handsome Monuments to Sir Francis Head, Paul Stigant, Thomas Manley and others.

ST. DENIS, ROTHERFIELD. RITHERFELD OR REDREFELD, SUSSEX.

Gilbert de Tonbridge gave Rotherfield to the Church of Rochester in William II.'s reign; it would seem soon after to have come into the Presentation of the Bishop of Rochester, and would appear to have become a peculiar of his; in 1846 the living passed into the hands of Lord Abergavenny. It was reckoned to the Deanery of Pevensey, Archdeaconry of Lewes, and Diocese of Chichester, in the Valor Ecclesiasticus, and it now forms part of the fourth division of the Pevensey Deanery. There is a stone that records that the Church was repaired in 1730, at the cost of £1,680. The old Font is on the floor. The Pillars of the south Arcade are octagonal; of the north, rounded. There are traces of frescoes of "Our Lord in Glory," and "The Weighing of Souls" over the principal Arch, and over the north Chapel "Mary, Queen of Heaven, with Stars." There are restored an Aumbrey, Squint, and Sedilia. There are a Lady Chapel and fine Arch into the Tower.

The Jacobean Pulpit is worthy of notice. There are traces of Norman work, but the Church is really a fine specimen of the Decorated period, in which it seems to have been built. There are also remains of a fresco of "The Martyrdom of St. Lawrence." There are five Bells; they are, at the latest, seventeenth century. The Church Plate consists of a Flagon, Chalice, Paten and Alms Dish of the Camden design, and all, except the Chalice, which however is the same date and pattern, were the gift of Sir Henry Fermor, Bart. The Registers commence in 1539, and are very continuous and well kept.

ST. MARTIN'S, RYARSH. REIESCE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and according to Textus Roffensis it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The presentation was in the hands of Merton Convent from 1237 to the Reformation, after which it fell to the owners of Addington Park. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling. It is now again in the Diocese of Rochester, in the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and the Deanery of Malling. There is much Norman work in the Church ; the Piscina is held worthy of an engraving in Parker's Glossary. The Tower is Early English ; the Church was greatly repaired in the Decorated period. The Bells are three in number, one of them of the seventeenth and another of the eighteenth century. The Registers date from 1559. There is a pewter Flagon presented by Henry Livett (1617-1632). The present Patron is P. S. Whitburn, Esq.

ST. WERBURGH'S, HOO. HOU.

There was a Church here at the time of Domesday survey, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church has always been in the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Deanery of Rochester. It now forms part of the new Deanery of Clyffe. St. Mary's, All Hallows, and High Halstow appear in very early times to have been Chapels of this Church. The Church is Early English, with a shingle spire. The Windows belong to the Decorated period. The present entry is on the north, but it used to be to the south, and that part of the Church appears to be the oldest. There are six Bells, one of the sixteenth century, two are seventeenth, and two are eighteenth century. The Flagon, Cup, Paten Cover and Paten, given by Peter Gunning, Bishop of Ely, in 1864, were barbarously exchanged by Vicar Benson for modern silver. There is some ancient stained glass. The Registers are complete from 1587-1599, when they are missing till 1646. The living was presented to by the Priory of Rochester till the Reformation, since that time it has been in the patronage of the Dean and Chapter. John Wodgrene, 1533, left XX<sup>s</sup> "To the reparacon of the organs in Hoo." There are several Brasses.

SEVENOAKS. SEAUNENAKA.

There was a Church in Domesday time, here, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was held as a peculiar of the Archbishop till 1846, and was placed in the Deanery of Shoreham, Archdeaconry and Diocese of Rochester ; after that date it became one of the Parishes of Shoreham, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Diocese of Canterbury ; it was placed in 1905 in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Deanery of Shoreham, but in 1909 was made head of the new Deanery of Sevenoaks. There are eight Bells, seven of which are dated 1769, one 1771. The Church has little that reminds one of the Norman Church, though perhaps some of the stones let into the south porch are part of a Norman Window. The Font has eight sides and a leaden basin, the first side and the fifth have a shield, one with the bearings obliterated, the other with them ; the third is the same as the first, the second and eighth have pomegranates, the fourth and sixth a rose, and the seventh a garter. There is an open Arch to the Belfry. In the south Chapel is a Piscina, this may have been

St. Mary's Chantry. There is another Piscina and Credence Table to the High Altar. There is a carved Pulpit. The Church was nearly rebuilt in the Perpendicular and Decorated periods. The Lambard family have a Chapel in the north-west part of the Church. There are several monuments to the Amherst family. The Registers date from 1559. There is a Cup with Paten Cover given by George Scott in 1618, Cup and Paten 1633-4, Flagon, the gift of F. Cranfield, Countess of Dorset in 1638, and Paten dated 1680. The Presentation was with the Archbishop till Cranmer changed it with the Crown; it was for a short period granted away, but was soon with the Crown again, but was granted away again and passed into private hands. A Vicar was appointed by the Rector; there was also a Chantry. We give below those that occur. E. J. Preston, Esq., is the Patron.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, GREATNESSE, IN SEVENOAKS.

There was a Chapel here which paid 6 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It stood at the bottom of the hill on which the Church of St. John's now stands. Its endowment was increased by William de Chutwode and Walter de Multon (temp. Archbishop Islep). There are no Chaplains mentioned as appointed after 1386, but the value is given as  $xvjs\ iij\frac{1}{2}d$  in Valor Ecclesiasticus, so it was probably served from Sevenoaks.

ST. GILES', SHIPBOURNE. SCRIBURNA.

This Church paid 6 denarii as a Chapel to the Bishop of Rochester for chrism fee, according to Textus Roffensis. It was held as a Chapel of the Knights of St. John till the Reformation. It soon afterwards came into the hands of the Fane or Vane family, and in the time of the Commonwealth was rebuilt by Sir Harry Vane. In the vaults beneath are stone Coffins, one of which has carved on the lid the figure of Sir Harry Vane, the younger, with the mark across his neck showing how he was decapitated. The Church was again rebuilt in 1722, and again by Mr. Cazalet, of Fairlawn, in 1880. There are two modern Bells. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846. It was then transferred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of North Malling. When the Tonbridge Deanery was formed it became one of its parishes, and has since with the other parishes of that Deanery become part of the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Diocese of Rochester. The Chalice and Paten Cover have the arms of Sir Harry Vane, and on the Cup is inscribed, "Ex dono Margaritae dominae Cutts." The Parish Register dates from 1625, but the old Registers were lost, it is said, by Mr. Towers. The present Patron is W. M. Cazalet, Esq.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, SHOREHAM. SCOREHAM.

This Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the See and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but as a peculiar of the Archbishop was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was still held as a parish in the same Deanery, but placed in the Archbishopric of Canterbury and Archdeaconry of Maidstone. It has once more changed its Diocese and Archdeaconry for those of Rochester and Tonbridge. The Church has a Chancel and Transept. On the north side of the Chancel is the Vestry. There is a south Aisle, with an oaken Porch. There is a low brick Tower. The present Church is evidently of the fifteenth century, as is shown by the pillars and arches inside. The Perpendicular Rood Screen is marked by its fine mouldings of vine and pomegranates. There is access to the top of the Screen by a spiral Staircase; there is no Chancel Arch. There is a Monument here to Anne Borrett. There are four seventeenth century Bells, and one later. The ancient Plate was stolen, but there are a Flagon, Chalice, and Paten, presented by Henry Bingham Mildmay, 1877. The Registers commence 1558, and on the fly leaf we read :

Nomina praesertim connubia funera passim
 Hic sunt inserta continet iste liber,

Toὺς λοιπρῶ βάπτες τοὺς Θειῶ δεσμata ἡεώξε καὶ τοὺς κοιμῶντας το λεῦχος ἔχει.

RURAL DEANS OF SHOREHAM.

Shoreham gave its name to one of four Deaneries into which the old Diocese of Rochester was divided ; it was scattered all over West Kent, and consisted of the parishes of it that were peculiars of the Archbishop till 1846 ; after that date it gave its name to a more compact Deanery, which included Sevenoaks. In the Lambeth Registers we find a few scattered names of the ancient Rural Deans.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, SHORNE. SCORENE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Patronage was given by Henry I. to the Abbot and Convent of Rochester, with which it remained till the Reformation, since then it has remained with the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. The Church has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and was also in the Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it went to form the new Deanery of Cobham. There are some fine Monuments to the Pages, and a notable Tomb to Henry de Cobham, known as le Uncle. The Chalice is of the date 1597, and the Paten is inscribed 1733. There is an ancient closed Window—thought by some to be Saxon, at any rate Early Norman—but the Church, though there is much Norman about it, was much altered and repaired in the Decorated period. The Font has eight sides, seven of which are engraved as follows : (1) I.H.C.; (2) St. Michael Weighing Souls; (3) Baptism of the Lord; (4) The Eucharist; (5) The Resurrection; (6) St. Peter; (7) Agnus Dei. The old Rood Screen was replaced by Rev. A. L. Coates. There are six Bells of the early part of the last century. The Registers date from 1538, but there is a gap of 27 years in the Commonwealth time.

ST. KATHARINE'S, SHORNE.

There is an ancient Chapel at the back of a house just opposite Pipe's Place, in Shorne, but with the exception of the mention of it in wills, one of which gives its dedication, there are no records we can find of its history.

ALL SAINTS', SNODLAND. SNODELONDE. ESNOILAND.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and, till 1846, was in the Deanery of Rochester; since that date it has belonged to the Deaneiy of Cobham. There are still traces of the Norman Church, but the greater part that is old is of the Decorated period, and when it was restored, some forty or fifty years ago, this work was copied, and no doubt much that was older was destroyed. The Village Cross was erected in the Churchyard at the same period, and the Window to the Marion Martyrs inserted. There is some really ancient Glass in the Church. There are one or two Monuments to the Tylghmans, but the most noticeable is that to Thomas Fletcher Waghorn, who first devised the overland route to India. There are five Bells, one of which is sixteenth and the other seventeenth century. The Registers commence in 1560. The Chalice and Paten are about 1740. The Bishop is the Patron.

The Baptismal registers commence 1538, the Marriage 1559 and the Burial 1558. The Patronage of Speldhurst was in private hands till 1346 when it was given to the College of St. Laurence Poulteney, till the Reformation; the Masters of St. Laurence Poulteney were ex-officio Rectors, and for their names I am indebted to the present Rector (1346-1448), since which time it has been in various private hands. The present Patrons are the Misses Saint.

ST. MARY'S, STANSTEAD. STANSTEDE.

This Church paid 6 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church appears to have been ministered to by the Rector of Wrotham till 1568, but in that year it is said to have been looked after by the Vicar of Wrotham. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and as part of the Deanery of Shoreham, since it was held to belong to the parish of Wrotham, which was a peculiar of the Archbishop till 1846. At that date it was made a separate parish, and held in the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of Shoreham. It is now reckoned to the See and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Shoreham. The Church is mainly of the Perpendicular style, and the Tower is of the Decorated period. The Registers commence 1646. There are two ancient Bells and one modern. There are no old monuments. The Cup and Paten Cover are of the date 1694-5. The patronage is in the hands of the Bishop of the Diocese.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, STOKE. STOKES.

The Church is mentioned in Domesday, which paid 9 denarii according to Textus Roffensis. There are traces both of Norman and Early English work. The Pillars on the south side are Norman, with fluted capitals ; those on the north side are rounded. In the Chancel is a Piscina and Priests' Door to the south. One Window exhibits Norman and Perpendicular work together. In the south Aisle is a Piscina with the figure of a fox's head and lion's head carved upon the top of the niche. The south Aisle is thought to have been the Malmayns' Chantry. It had a vault beneath, which was filled with water at the time of the restoration of the Church ; the last arch is in consequence much sunk. The Tower was built from about 1470-1550, as would appear from wills. The Church was in the Diocese, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester, till in 1909 it was placed in the new Deanery of Clyffe. It was in the gift of the Abbey of Boxley till the Reformation, since then it has been in private hands. The Registers date from 1666, but the Society of Antiquaries possess some older ones of this parish. There are three Bells, one of the sixteenth and another of the seventeenth century. The Communion Plate consists of a pewter Flagon and large pewter Chalice. There is a silver Chalice dated 1745, a silver Paten, the gift of M. H. C. Hall, 1893, and two electro plate Salvers, 1875. There was a Chantry called Malmayns, founded by John Carew in 1390, the Chantry Priests of which we give in a parallel column with the Vicars. There are Brasses here to Wilkins and Grimestone, daughters of Mr. Coppenger. The present Patrons are the family of the late J. Foord, Esq.

ST. MARY'S, STONE. STANES.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and was in that Deanery till 1846, when it was placed in the Deanery of Gravesend. It has always been in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester. The Church was rebuilt in the second half of the thirteenth century; the Vestry was added in the fourteenth century, and more solid pillars were made to support the Belfry. The Wilshyre Chantry was erected in the sixteenth century. The beautiful thirteenth century mouldings of the north Aisle Door, and the pillars of Betersden, marble topped, with dog tooth and foliage capitals are noteworthy. A fire in 1638 damaged the Church. There are, amongst other Monuments, Brasses to William Carew and Annie Carew, Robert Chapman, Robert Bonfant, William Laken and William Banknot, as well as the remains of that of Sir John Willshyre. There are a modern silver Chalice and Paten, also a second Paten and a silver-mounted glass Flagon. The Registers date from 1718, but there is a gap for nearly thirty years at the end of that century.

ALL SAINTS', STOURMOUTH.

This Church was given by Hamo, son of Vitalis, to Gundolph and the monks of St. Andrew at Rochester. In 1392 the monks exchanged the alternate presentation for the Church of Boxley, since which it was in the gift of the Bishops of Rochester till 1846, when it was conferred on the Bishop of Worcester. It is in the Deanery of East Bridge and Archdeaconry and Diocese of Canterbury. The pillars that support the south Aisle are alternately octagonal and circular, and at the foot of the easternmost is a curious massive Stone. There is a Piscina at the east end of the south Aisle, and there are remains of curious coloured glass. The Norman window in the Chancel is blocked. There is a Norman Font, and there is an old Porch to the south Door. There is a Brass to Thomas Mareys, and a tablet to Carl Culmer, gent, born January 1st, 1735, died January 10th, 1835. There are three seventeenth century Bells. There is an original copy of Fox's Book of Martyrs on a desk in the Church. There is an ancient Chalice with Paten Cover of silver and a large Paten of silver, also a Paten and Flagon of electro plate. The Registers date from 1538. In them is mentioned what are the lawful times of marriage, viz., from January 24th to the Saturday before Septuagesima ; from the Monday after Low Sunday to the Saturday before Rogation Sunday, and from the Monday after Trinity Sunday to the Saturday before Advent Sunday.

ST. NICHOLAS, STROOD. STRODES.

The Church of Strood paid 6 denarii chrism fee, as a Chapel, to the See of Rochester. In 1193 Gilbert de Glanville converted it into a separate Church and gave it to the Newark Hospital, the Masters of which were ex officio Incumbents of Strood, until the Reformation. The Newark Hospital, besides Strood, also presented to St. Margaret's, Rochester, Aylesford with its Chapel of St. Blaise, and Halling, and also a Chapel (now no more) at the Strood end of Rochester Bridge. The old Church was pulled down and a new one erected in 1812, which, being burnt down, a new one was erected in 1902. The Communion Plate consists of a silver Flagon, Chalice and Paten dated 1815, a siver Chalice and Paten of the date 1870, and a silver Paten of the date 1902, and two modern Spoons of silver. The Bells are modern. The Registers are very interesting and date from 1565. The Patronage has been with the Dean and Chapter of Rochester since the Reformation. Down to the Reformation, in this list, we give the Masters of Newark. The Church has always been in the See, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester.

ST. MARY'S, SUNDRIDGE. SUNDERESCE.

This Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. It was in the Bishopric and Archdeaconry of Rochester, but as a peculiar of the Archbishop was in the Deanery of Shoreham till 1846, when it was transferred to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of Shoreham. In 1905 it was placed in the Deanery of Shoreham, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and See of Rochester, but now forms part of the new Deanery of Sevenoaks. The Chancel was destroyed by fire in 1802. What there is of the old Church is Early English, with a Perpendicular Tower. During the thirteenth century the north and south Aisles were added, having Chapels at the east end, divided from the Chancel by two Arches. At the side of the east Window are the remains of an Early English Window. There is a double Early English Piscina on the south Wall of the Chancel. The Nave is divided into three Arcades, of which the north is earlier than the south. In the fifteenth century the Aisles were heightened to give access to dormers leading on to the flat roof, which is now hidden by gables, which block the Clerestory Windows of the Nave: at this time the west Doorway and Rood Screen were added. There are five Bells, three of which are seventeenth century. The Cup and Paten of silver were the gift of John Hyde in 1663. The Sacryng Bell still hangs in a Cote outside the Tower. The Registers commence in 1562. The Archbishop is Patron. There are some fine Monuments to the Hydes and Isleys. A painted Image of the Virgin, lately found, is in the Church.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, SUTTON-AT-HONE. SUDTUNA.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and according to Textus Roffensis it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was given by Bishop Laurence to the monks of Rochester in 1253, and at the Reformation the Patronage was conferred on the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and in the Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, the Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and the Deanery of East Dartford ; it is now in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford. The Church was destroyed by fire in the seventeenth century, and much of the previous building was ruined, but there are an Early English Piscina, and some Windows, and a fifteenth century Tower. There are handsome Monuments to the Hills and Sir Thomas Smyth. There are three Bells, two of the eighteenth century. There are a Cup and Paten, without foot, of the seventeenth century, and a curious old Flagon, and another Paten given by Mrs. Eliz. Leigh, Dec. 25, 1709. The Registers date from 1607; perhaps earlier ones were burnt in the fire which took place in 1615.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, SWANSCOMBE. SWANESKAMPE.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and in Textus Roffensis it is recorded as paying 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and was in the Deanery also till 1846, when it became one of the parishes of the new Deanery of Gravesend. The Church was much damaged by a fire on Whit Tuesday in 1802, and the shingle Tower, together with the roof of the Nave, were totally destroyed in a thunderstorm, in the summer of 1902. The Norman Font which was split in pieces by the fire, was put together again and leaded inside. There is a Saxon Window in the Tower. The Stairs up to the Rood Loft remain. There is in the south Chancel a Piscina and Aumbrey. These were for use at St. Hildeferthe's Altar. This Saint, who was supposed to cure madness, was much sought after in mediæval times in Kent. The central Aisle, bounded by an Arcade of rounded columns on each side, has Clerestory Windows, three on the south, and two on the north. Two lofty Early English Arches lead to the Nave and the Belfry. There is a Norman Door, blocked, also a Chancel Window. The Porch was re-built by the Freemasons in 1877. Inside the north Door is a Holy Water Stoup, and there is a Piscina to the north Altar. There are handsome Monuments to the Weldons and to Stoman. There is a fine embossed metal Alms Dish. The Flagon was the joint gift of Thomas Blechyndon and Walker Weldon in 1730. The gilt Paten at the same date, was given by Thomas Blechyndon. The Cup is dated 1623. The Registers date from 1549. It was presented to by the Crown till the time of James I. whence it passed into private patronage, and in 1737 it was obtained by Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge.

SWANSCOMBE ALL SAINTS', GALLEY HILL.

A Church was built in 1894 and there is a modern Bell ; previously there had been an iron Church. The Parish was separated in 1883. The Register dates from 1885. The Plate consists of a silver gilt Cup and Paten, given by Frederick Anthony White, Esq., in 1901, and a Cup and Paten inscribed "From R. Chapman, Minister ; R. Boardman, Warden ; Burton Wood, 1748." The Bishop and Messrs. White are alternate Patrons.

SWANSCOMBE, GREENHITHE ST. MARY'S.

John Lucas founded a Chapel here (Edward III. 19), dedicated to the Virgin. There are no Chaplains given in the Episcopal Registers, but we find it mentioned as suppressed (temp. Edward VI.). Thorpe tells us the length of the walls north and south were 27ft. 4in., and the breadth east and west was 16ft., and that it was built of flints, and had been even then built into a house. A new Church was erected here in 1855 and 1856. The Registers date from 1857, and the Marriage from 1858. There is one Bell. The Patronage is in the hands of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The Communion Plate consists of a silver gilt Flagon and Chalice and a Paten, besides a silver Set presented by the Committee of H.M.S. Worcester.

ST. ETHELBERT, TANNINGTON OR TATTINGTON CUM BRUNDISH, SUFFOLK.

This Church has always been united to Brundish. They were in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester till 1846, when it passed to the Bishop of Norwich. The Communion Plate consists of two Patens, a Chalice and a Flagon, inscribed "Presented by the Rev. S. Barker, Vicar" (he was only Curate). The Baptismal Registers commence at Tannington, October 26th, 1539 ; at Brundish, June 28th, 1562. The Marriage : Tannington, September 18th, 1539 ; Brundish, June 22nd, 1563. The Burials : Tannington, May 13th, 1539 ; Brundish, October 26th, 1563. The Church of Tannington has a Piscina and Sedilia ; besides the above there is a brass Alms Dish. There are five Bells. There is a Norman Doorway on the north, on the south a Porch, on which, in 1808, was an inscription. The Font is octagonal. There are remains of Stairs leading to the Rood Loft. There are also a Piscina and Sedilia at Brundish, the former of which is highly decorated. The Holy Water Stoup is on a pedestal on the right of the inner door. There are two silver Patens, and a Chalice with silver handles, and a plated Flagon, in memory of F. C. Bond, 1898. There are two Bells. We give the Chaplains of Brundish in parallel column with the Vicars.

There was a Church here which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it became part of the Deanery of North Malling, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Diocese of Canterbury; it is now in the Deanery of Malling, Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester. In the early part of the nineteenth century the Clergyman used to have to go outside and go through the Church wall into the Pulpit. Little remains of the Old Church as it has been greatly altered by so called restorations. There are two Sedilia of the Decorated period. There are three modern Bells. The Flagon is of the date 1696, and one Paten is of the date 1685, and another of the date 1757. The Registers commence in 1583, but they were destroyed from 1784-1810, and during the rest of Mr. Kennedy's incumbency were very badly kept. The Patronage was with Leeds Abbey till the Reformation, since which time it has been in private hands. The Present Patron is Sir T. F. Buxton, Bart.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, TONBRIDGE. TONEBREGGE.

This Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was held in the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of South Malling. It now belongs to the Deanery and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and the See of Rochester. The Church belonged to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, but since the Reformation, it has been in private hands. The oldest part of the Church is the twelfth century Chancel. The Arch and the Tower as far as the Belfry floor, was probably built early in the thirteenth century. The north Aisle was added in the fifteenth century, when perhaps the Tower was raised to its present height. The Nave and south Aisle were rebuilt in 1812 and 1876. There are eight eighteenth century Bells. There are some noticeable Monuments, amongst which, those to Richard Children, Esq., Sir Anthony Denton, and those to Dr. Vicesimus and Dr. Thomas Knox are most remarkable. There are a Paten and Alms Dish that are inscribed "The gift of an Unknown Parson, Decbr. ye 25 1719 to ye Church of Tonbridge." ## SS. PETER AND PAUL, TROTTERSCLIFFE. TROTTESLIUI.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church was originally in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and the Deanery of Malling, till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, and Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Deanery of North Malling ; it is now in the Diocese of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and the Deanery of Malling. There are signs in the building of an erection earlier than Norman. The Chancel was built in Early Norman times ; the east and north walls of the Chancel give good examples of this Norman work. The Tower was built in the thirteenth century, but was repaired about 1509. A huge Sarson Stone is built into the Church. The Pulpit once belonged to Westminster Abbey. There is a decorated Piscina. There is also a decorated Window, with coloured glass, representing the Trinity. The Bell is dated 1639-40. The Chalice is of the date 1576-7 ; the Paten dates from 1699-1700. A silver Alms Dish was given by Rev. W. Crawford in 1821, and there is a modern Flagon. The Registers commence in 1599. The Living was in the gift of the Bishop of Rochester, but early in the last century it passed into the hands of the Lord Chancellor until the present Rector became his own Patron, his father having obtained the Living. There is a Brass here to William Cotton.

ALL SAINTS', TUDELEY. THEUDELEI.

There was a Church here in Domesday times which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. The Church has a square red brick Tower, built perhaps in 1765, as in the Chatham Register we learn that the Church was rebuilt at that period, and much of its early details have been destroyed, either then or during the last restoration. There are three eighteenth century Bells. There is a Brass to Thomas Stydolph. The Registers begin in 1660; in them we read that the parish was so neglected that no alms were given at all from 1756 to 1783; the Registers have themselves been kept most carelessly, and some are lost. The Cup and Paten Cover are dated 1569. The Patronage belonged to the Tonbridge Monastery till the Reformation, when it was given by Henry VIII. to Wolsey for his new College, which, however, enjoyed it only for four years, when it was again forfeited to the Crown. Edward VI., in his first year, granted the advowson to Sir Walter Hendley, since which time it has been in private patronage. The present Patron is Lord Falmouth.

ST. MARY'S, WESTERHAM. OISTREHAM.

The Church is mentioned as paying 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester, and was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Malling till 1846, when it was transferred to the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of Shoreham; in 1905 it was placed in the Diocese of Rochester, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Deanery of Shoreham. In 1909 it became part of the Deanery of Sevenoaks. Nearly the whole Church has been rebuilt and was reopened in 1883. There are, however, some remains of the early Church, notably a fourteenth century 'Priests' Door on the north and some old masonry near the Tower. There are eight Bells. There is a Communion Cup with Paten Cover of the date 1586. There is a Flagon given by Nicholas Manning, Esq., in 1720; also an Alms Dish, presented by Nicholas Crisp, Esq., in 1691; and a highly Decorated silver gilt Cup, probably of Nuremberg work surmounted by a Warrior, perhaps St. George; it is most likely not ecclesiastical, it is sixteenth century work; and two silver Alms Dishes, the gift of Thomas Hardy, in 1720. The Registers commence in 1559, and are very well kept, but they were transcribed by order of Archdeacon Denne; they contain the Baptisms of the notorious Bishop Hoadly, and the famous General Wolfe and his brother. There are numerous Monuments to the Warde family, and Indian and Crimean heroes, but more especially we must call attention to the one to General Wolfe. The Registers bear testimony that the principal employments of the villagers in days gone by were weaving and hawking. The Living, which had attached to it, Edenbridge, till 1860, was given by Queen Eleanor, in 1290, to the Prior and Convent of Christchurch, Canterbury, with whom it remained till the Reformation, when it became the gift of the Crown; afterwards it was granted to Sir Thomas Gresham, in whose family it remained for seventy years; since then it has been in several hands. A Font given by Mrs. Bosworth, in memory of her sons, displaced the old Font which was given to Tatsfield; this Font, of the Decorated period, which is octagon, on a shaft, has now been restored to Westerham. The present Patron is J. Board, Esq.

ST. MICHAEL'S, EAST WICKHAM, WICKHAM.

This Church was long a Chapelry of Plumstead, with which it was held till 1854. It is a small structure of flint and stone, and the Chancel is scarcely to be distinguished from the Nave. There is a decorated Font, and the whole Church appears to belong to this period. The early Registers and the Plate were stolen, but there are a handsome highly decorated hand beaten Chalice, and modern Paten of silver, and a silver plated Alms Dish, presented by Revd. T. E. Wynne in 1883, and a handsome bronze Alms Dish. In the Church is the famous iron Treasury Chest presented by Sir John Hawkins, Queen Elizabeth's famous admiral. The lock covers the whole lid inside and is engraved with fanciful designs of mermaids. The Church was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and Deanery of Dartford till 1836, when it became part of the Diocese of London, Archdeaconry of Southwark and new Rural Deanery of Woolwich. In 1867 it was with the rest of Woolwich Deanery restored to the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester. It now forms part of the Deanery of Woolwich, Archdeaconry of Lewisham and Diocese of Southwark. The Patrons now are the Dean and Chapter of Southwark.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, WEST WICKHAM. WICHHAM.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester according to Textus Roffensis. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was transferred to the See of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of Croydon. The Registers date from 1558. One Chalice and two Patens dated 1790 and a Chalice and Paten dated 1889 are of silver. A Flagon, Paten, and Alms Dish are plated, and there is also a pewter Chalice. The living has always been in private patronage. The Lich Gate is very ancient. There is also a handsome screen. The Brass to William de Thorp in 1407 is noticeable. Probably Hasted's date of the Church is too late. The present Church (according to Hasted) was built in Henry VII.'s days. The Windows of the Lady Chapel are very ancient, and perhaps of fifteenth century glass. They represent the Virgin and Child, a kneeling skeleton with the arms of Heydon, St. Christopher bearing Christ, St. Anne teaching the Virgin, the Mater Dolorosa, St. Dorothea offering a rose to Christ, and St. Catharine of Alexandra. There are five Bells, four of which are seventeenth century. The present Patron is Sir H. F. Lennard.

ST. MICHAEL AND ALL ANGELS', WILMINGTON. WILMINTUNA.

The Church paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. It was in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846, when it was placed in the Diocese of Canterbury, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Deanery of East Dartford, and now it is in the Diocese and Archdeanery of Rochester, and Deanery of Dartford. In 1253 the advowson was given by Bishop Laurence de St. Martin to the Monks of Rochester; it was then held as a Chapel of Sutton-at-Hone, as was also Kingsdown; it was, however, then provided that each parish should have its own Vicar. At the Reformation the advowson was given to the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. The Bells are three, of the seventeenth century. The Tower and wooden Spire are preserved on the west by singular facings of cement and cement buttresses, all are quite modern outside. There is a Norman Font and Piscina and Jacobean Pulpit. The Registers date from 1683. The Cup was given by Anna Bathurst, also the Paten in 1697. The Registers are very dilapidated till the time of Rev. J. Percival. There is a Brass Inscription to Oliver Godfrey, but the figure is gone.

ALL SAINTS', WOLDHAM.

There is a Church mentioned as being here in Domesday times, and, according to Textus Roffensis, it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It has always been in the Diocese and Archdeaconry of Rochester, and was in its Deanery till 1846, when it was placed in the Deanery of Cobham. There appear to have been two Chapels in the Church, one was dedicated to Our Lady, and the other to St. Blaise. The Church, it would appear, was largely rebuilt in Henry VI.'s time. The Font is Norman. There are four Bells, dated 1624. There is a curious pewter Basin, and Stoup of the same metal. The Chalice is dated 1572, but the stand is of Edward VI.'s time. The Paten is dated 1717. The Registers commence in 1538. The Bishop was Patron till lately, but now the Lord Chancellor presents. In the Churchyard is a monument to the Purser of Nelson's Ship "Victory."

ST. MARY, WOODLANDS, OR WODELONDE OR WATLANDS.

There was a Church here according to Textus Roffensis, which paid 9 denarii chrism to the See of Rochester. It was originally a peculiar of Canterbury. It afterwards became a Chapel of Kingsdown. Finally Cardinal Pole united it to Wrotham and the Church fell into decay, so that the ruins alone were visible in Hasted's day. The Vicars of the early Church we have traced as follows.

- 1401, Richard Howtyng or Hynton (Arundel I, 276).
 1402, Robert Lythom (Arundel 282).
 1404, John Leeham (Arundel I, 290).
 1304, John Malur (Arundel I, 294).
 1406, Anselm Reynewell (Arundel I, 210).
 1409, May, John Major (Arundel II, 38).
 1409, Dec., John Thomas (Arundel II, 56).
 1414, John Gardyner (Chichele I, 61).
 1415, John Lillye (Chichele I, 70).
 1418, Thomas Portyngton (Chichele I, 113).
 1421, William Porter (Chichele I, 132).
 1422, William Wylls (Chichele I, 135).
 1430, William Playner (Chichele I, 184).

A new Church was built (mainly through the efforts of Dr. Vincent, the Father of the first Incumbent) where the old one stood in 1850. It has one Bell. The Registers commence in 1850. There are a Flagon, Cup, and Paten of silver, and a brass Alms Dish. It was in the Deanery of Shoreham, and the Diocese of Canterbury, and Archdeaconry of Maidstone till 1905, when it was placed in the Diocese of Rochester and Archdeaconry of Tonbridge. The Bishop is Patron.

- 1850, Richard Vincent.
 1860, John Harward Jessop Handcock.
 1908, John Waugh Boden.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE, WOOLWICH. WLEUWIC.

There was a Church here which paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester, according to Textus Roffensis. Gundolph gave the disposition of the Vicarage, which was confirmed by Archbishop Anselm, to the Monks of Rochester. Henry I. granted the whole tithe of Woolwich to the Bishop of Rochester, and the Priory of St. Andrew there, for the good of himself and his family. Gilbert de Glanville, however, divested the Monks of all rights in the Church, except seven shillings annually, out of the profits, and the Bishop of the Diocese has since been Patron. The old Church was pulled down and an entirely new one built in 1726. There are eight Bells. The Registers commence in 1669. Unfortunately, when the old Church was pulled down all the ancient Monuments were lost or destroyed. There is a silver Flagon, the gift of Richard Hamman in 1740. A Paten, 1695, the gift of the Goldsmiths' Company. A Chalice, of the same date, given by Thomas Argoll, also another Chalice of the same date, a gilt Spoon and two silver Alms Plates. It was in the Archdeaconry and Diocese of Rochester and Deanery of Dartford till 1846; it then became part of London Diocese, Archdeaconry of Southwark and Deanery of Woolwich. It was in 1867 restored to Rochester but in 1905 became part of the new Diocese of Southwark and Archdeaconry of Lewisham.

ST. GEORGE'S, WROTHAM. WROTEHAM.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. As a peculiar of the Archbishop it was in the Deanery of Shoreham, Archdeaconry and Deanery of Rochester till 1846, when it passed into the Deanery of Shoreham, Archdeaconry of Maidstone and Diocese of Canterbury; it is now in the Deanery of Shoreham, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge and Diocese of Rochester. Woodlands was absorbed into this on the Church falling into decay in the fifteenth year of Queen Elizabeth; it has since been rebuilt and made a separate parish again. Platt and Plaxtol have also been separated. Wrotham is both a Rectory and Vicarage, but long both have been held by the same person. The ancient Altar Stone is under the Communion Table. The Church is of the Decorated period. The capitals of the westernmost piers of the Arcades are fluted. The lofty Tower Arch is Perpendicular work, also the Vestry on the north side. The Rood Screen is of the same period; on it are several candlesticks, once thought to be metal, but now known to be wood. There is a square-headed Window of the Decorated period in the south wall of the south Aisle; near its eastern end there is a Holy Water Stoup, with a rectangular Basin, deeper than usual, inside the south door. Through the base of the Tower there is an open arched passage for the Churchyard path. There is a Gallery formed in the thickness of the wall over the Chancel Arch, with loop holes into the Nave and Chancel. There are eight Bells, of the date 1754. The Registers date from 1558. The Plate is modern. There are numerous Brasses and Monuments, especially to Nicholas Miller, the Betensons, the Peckhams, William Clerke, Sir John Rayney, and others.

ST. MARY'S PLATT,

This parish was separated from Wrotham in 1846, and a Church built in 1843. The Registers date from 1883, as the earlier ones were stolen. There are a Flagon, Chalice, Paten, and Alms Dish of silver. There is one Bell. The Patron was the Archbishop, and is now the Bishop of Rochester.

- 1846, John Mickleburgh.
1854, Francis Thomas Gregory.
1898, George Billing.
1907, John Brand.

PLAXTOL

There is no dedication found of the Church. It was built in 1648. The old building has been hideously added to in true Victorian Gothic, so that little of the original structure, except the Tower, is visible. It has always followed Wrotham as regards Diocese, Archdeaconry and Deanery. There is one Bell, dated 1709. There are a Cup and Paten, dated 1711, and a second Cup is dated 1802, and has the Dallison Alms above. The Registers date from 1648, but are much mutilated. The Church was enlarged at the expense of W. M. Cazalet, Esq., 1894. The Chancel was erected in 1885, in memory of Lieut. Maximilian D. D. Dallison, and the Church was previously enlarged by the Revd. R. Mayo. The Patron was the Archbishop and is now the Bishop of Rochester. The Clergy are from the Registers.

1648, William Thomas.

1656, James Crawford.

At the Restoration, Plaxtol got absorbed in the Rectory of Wrotham, and Rev. T. Curteis signs as Rector of Wrotham and Plaxtol.

1727, John Hayward.

1754, S. Mackreth.

1758, John Saunders.

1768, Thomas Dalison.

All these sign themselves Curate, till John Williams, in 1802, becomes perpetual Curate, as were also 1821, John Welshman Wynne.

SS. PETER AND PAUL, YALDING. EALDINGA.

There was a Church here in Domesday times, and it paid 9 denarii chrism fee to the See of Rochester. It was in the Deanery of Malling and Archdeaconry and Diocese of Rochester till 1846, when it was transferred to the Deanery of North Malling, Archdeaconry of Maidstone, and Diocese of Canterbury, and now is in the Deanery of Malling, Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, and Diocese of Rochester. The Church was granted, together with Brenchley, which was only esteemed a Chapel to it, by Richard de Clare (temp Henry II.) to Tonbridge Priory. At the Reformation the advowson remained with the Crown, till the tenth year of Queen Elizabeth, since which time it has been in private hands. There are six Bells, four of which are seventeenth century. The Flagon, Alms Dish and Paten of silver are inscribed "John Kenward, 1700-1701." There is also an ancient Cup, dated 1562 ; another was added in 1869. The Register commences in 1559, but there is a gap during the Commonwealth, and the first Register is much mutilated from 1648 to 1698. The Cupola on the corner of the Tower strikes every beholder. The Church has north and south Aisles, each of which has a separate Arch. There is an Altar Tomb with the Brass gone ; there is a Piscina with Credence in the south Aisle : perhaps this was a Lady Chapel. The high Chancel has a Piscina and Credence. There is an Arcade of hexagonal pillars. There is a Priests' Door to the south of the Chancel, and a south Porch to the Church. There are notable Monuments to John Ousnam, Robert Kenward, Thomas Bliss, and the Warde family.

He was born at Asporley, in the county of Leicester, of which his ancestors were for successive generations, born patrons and incumbents. He married Anna, daughter and sole heiress of Bargrave, by whom he left issue, four sons and one daughter. His early ministerial career was passed in Italy, where he resided five years as Chaplain to the British Factory at Leghorn. He was afterwards Vicar of this parish forty two years. During the last twenty six years of which period he held also the office of Archdeacon, of the Archdeaconry of Leicester. Distinguished in his generation for literary taste and mental accomplishments, he was not the less admired as a Preacher, and confided in as a learned, sound and judicious divine. And while his benevolence of heart, and unostentatious charity endeared him to the poor amongst his flock, the mildness of his disposition and unaffected urbanity of manners won for him the respect and esteem of all. He died at Blackheath, in his 80th year, on the 9th of March, 1812; Anna, his wife, died on the 19th of the same month, aged 76 years. Their mortal remains were interred together at Hungarton, in Leicestershire, and thus, by a merciful dispensation of a kind Providence, they, who for more than forty two years had been lovely and pleasant in their lives, in their deaths were not divided."

He was grandson to John, Earl of Bridgwater, but received less honour from his noble descent than from his own personal qualifications, for he had a strong memory and most excellent parts, both of which were greatly improved by a learned education, and as his birth gave him an opportunity of being brought up and living in the best company, so he made a suitable improvement from it, happily mixing the scholar with the politeness of the gentleman ; he had talents peculiarly fitted for conversation, for with a great vivacity he had a command and influence of words which he well knew how to express to such advantage as might make him either entertaining or instructive. Thus accomplished it was no wonder he was distinguished in his profession, being made Chaplain to two succeeding Kings, Rector of Penshurst and All Hallows', Lombard Street, Chancellor, and Prebendary of Hereford, and Prebendary of Canterbury. Hugh Fraser, M.A., 32 years the esteemed Rector of this parish, who died on the 14th day of April, 1837, aged 73 years. He was endowed with the simplicity of a Patriarch and the virtues of a Christian. He erected the mansion near the Church as a refuge for his old age, and for future Rectors of Woolwich, and which he lived to enjoy 24 years. His active mind, however, could not rest here; he discovered that a legacy had been left 20 years before to the poor of this parish. He recovered this legacy, and the poor have for sixteen years received a distribution of three hundred loaves per week for nine weeks during the severity of the winter. He survived all his children, one daughter and four sons; the eldest and last of whom died at Cheltenham at the age of 19. This he often declared was the greatest trouble he ever knew. He is gone, but has left us an example that all must desire to follow tho' few can hope to equal."

But this being refused, the Houses sent down Col. "Farewell, vain world, I must be gone,
Thou art no home, no stay for me,
With faith and hope I'll travel on Until another world I see.

Now up, my soul, the distance view,
Thy outstretched pinions try,
Quit the dull earth, thy flight pursue
And seek thy native sky.

Happy indeed, if no rude let,
No obstacle appears,
No grand impediment be met
To bar my entrance there.

That sin and death, with hell-born spite,
Press hard upon my rear ;
Gainst me their utmost strength unite,
And fill my soul with fear.

To thee, O Lord, for help I'll flee,
To thee for succour fly ;
Help for all depends on thee,
O save me or I die."

EPISCOPAL AND PARISH REGISTERS.

THE BISHOP'S REGISTERS.

---

Owing to the great kindness of Messrs. Knight, Arnold and Day, we have been allowed free access to these Registers which have been carefully renovated by Messrs. Arnold and Day in a most public-spirited manner. They contain much valuable Church history, not only referring to our diocese, but to it as a sort of pulse, by which in many a dark age we may feel the motions, and observe the errors of the English Church, as well as see it in its best form. The Registers commence in the time of Bishop Hamo de Heth, and are continuous from about 1314 or 1315 till 1467, when a gap occurs, till the rule of Bishop Savage: after that with the Muniments, of which there are two volumes, and the Acts of the later Bishops, which are in the hands of Messrs. Day and Son, of Great George Street, Westminster, to whom also I am indebted for kindly allowing me to search, they are continued to the records of Bishop Murray. Besides these we have several volumes of the Acts of the Archdeacon's Court, very useful in covering the above-mentioned gap. In these we have trials for Divorce, Adultery, Ill-behaviour in Divine Service, Witchcraft (in Queen Elizabeth's and James I's time), Contumacy, Slander, etc. There is also another volume which has almost been wholly reprinted by Thorpe, in his 'Registrum Roffense'. In these books we find not only the institutions to benefices, but also much other matter which it would require a long time to decipher, as they are all written in the court hand of their respective periods, and the early portions in Latinised Norman-French. There are the ordinations of every year, not only of priests and deacons in the early ones, but also of the old minor orders, and from them we learn that some were ordained at Halling and some at Trotterscliffe, where our old bishops resided: indeed, the time of earlier bishops was divided between these two; Bishop Hamo was charged with spending too much time at these places, and this Bishop's fondness for Trotterscliffe is still shown by his window in the Church there, in which is an idolatrous representation of the Trinity; all that remains of these two palaces now are the house next the vicarage at Trotterscliffe and a piece of an old wall in the cement works behind Halling Church, which alone tells where Halling Palace stood. The Bishop accords to Speldhurst, East Malling for Newhythe, and other churches, provision for the Vicar. He speaks of a Chantry in the Cathedral. Bishop Trilleck records his decision to unite Dodecirce to Paddlesworth. Bishop William of Bottlesham records the foundation of Allsoven Chapel on Rochester Bridge, of Malmayn's Chantry in Stoke. Bishop Yonge, in 1412, dates from Rochester, while Bromley is a much later episcopal residence.

We find in the Registers answer to the king's questions, and reports of these from time to time: thus we read of the enquiry into alien priories holding benefices, and also what foreigners had livings in the diocese, and Bishop Hamo says that the Abbey of Ghent holds Lewisham and East Greenwich, and Peter of Boyleau is Vicar of Eltham. In another enquiry it is stated that the Knights Hospitallers possess the Churches of Hadlow and Burham and Tonbridge, with its Chapels of Shipbourne and Capel.

We have also a notice of the foundation of Dartford Monastery. Bishop Brinton appropriated Cudham to the Priory of Kilburn, and Horton Kirby to Cobham College. John de Bottlesham mentions the founding, by Sir John Colepepper, of a Chantry in Pembury Churchyard: also the settling of a dispute between the Rectors of Snodland and Wouldham as regards the tithe of fish. Bishop Yonge tells of arranging matters between the monks and certain inhabitants of Rochester who had worshipped in the Cathedral, at St. Nicholas' Chantry, by building the Church of St. Nicholas. In Langdon's Register we have John Hodesole permitted to have mass in his private chapel at Kemsing, and Richard Brauncespeth allowed to choose his own confessor, and then we have several confessions of heresy, one of which showing the errors of the Church at the time and how fast England was drifting into Roman heresy, we give in the language of the day: "In the name of God, fader and sone and holy ghost, I, Richard Herbert, of ye parish of Hadlo in your diocese of Rochester, well knowing myself that I have wetyngly and wilfully kept covered and hid, certain bokye of Englysh conteyning puerse doctrine against the determination of the church of rome: to be the suspect of error and heresye agenst myn othe and my trouth where that I seyd and swore before you my worshipfull fader in gode Bysshop of Rochester that I no such bokye never had no knowne hid in my kepyng and moreover this I as a p'son convict and suspect that I schould have seyd that holy ymages in holy Church representing to our frail memory holy and glorius sancts blyssed and glorified with God in heuene shall not be honoured and worshipped in memorie of them that they represented and moreover had in honour of many good and kyrstan people and for asentour and receyvour as such as be called heretikye erroneous m' commenting lollards; hopyng and trusting that Almighty God wol have mercy upon a sinfull man that with clene and all his hert will recouer and cry mercy onto hym by you worshipful fader in god. I avouch and wyth al myn heart and make avury on and may be the bok of the holy euangelists that from this time forward I shall never holde teche ne preche heresy, errors, other any erroneus docum ageynst catholic faith other ageynst the faith and determination of holy churche of rome no I shall neuer no such maner of tyme p't mercy and defend nother no man that techeth or pretcheth such manners errors and heresy nother by me nor myn person privately ne apert.

Moreover I shall not be a fautour nor recevore nor councellour nor defensur of non heretyks nor of suspect persons of heresyne of lollardie ne I schall not wetyngly believe assent no favoure nor be conversant in their felsshys ne comfort them with gyfts and with other erthly godes neither receive rolls bokys or quayr yt contenyng errorrs or heresys of such suspect if leise than they be examined and pued by my ordinaire. And moreover if any persons suspect of errorr and heresys and any such bokys conteyning errorr* or heresy I may aspyr or know without my faut malengelyn or desert as well as suspect persons as them that makyth conventicles and conspiracys fautores of other false consull and suspect ageynst the faith of our holy moder holy church and more especially agency and the determination of the church of rome to you my worshipfull fader in god other to your office other to such that have and shall have d(o)m(i)n(io)n power upon me I shall treuly and faithfully decette and close over. So help me god and the holydom and these holy euangeles by me bodily touched." We further learn that for his heresy Richard Herbert was ordered to do public penance before the high altar in Rochester Cathedral, and in the Churches of Hadlow, Tonbridge and Malling; we might mention other cases but we will shorten these records as much as possible.

We find Laurence Horwood, rector of Ash, did not provide a clerk at his own cost to officiate in the Church on Holy days. We find persons sentenced to be whipped in markets and churches for clandestine marriages, and in one case we find John Howthorn, of Tonbridge, Feb. 28, 1462, ordered to be thrice whipped round market and church for marrying Deonyisia Thomas, who was goddaughter to his first wife. Bishop Lowe hears a case against John Pure, Vicar of Malling, for having used divers incantations over the bread in the Lord's Supper, and administering it to persons suffering from fever: he had, he admitted, taken the wafers (not consecrated ones) and scored them with a knife using the words "Petrus autem jacebat super Petruno," and having observed this form with six wafers and given them to diseased persons who were to eat one of them a day. Some of his patients informed him they had recovered, but of this fact he professed ignorance: from them be owned he received money, but said he spent it on the church.

Such entries tell of the idolatry and superstition that had taken the place of real religion in the fifteenth century. We find enquiries also at this time into the state of the ruined churches of Merston and West Barming, and also into the affairs of the Prebendary of the Great Mass of Malling Abbey. We find the people of Snodland and Halling summoned in the Bishop's Court for playing tennis in the time of Divine Service, on Thursday in the week of Pentecost, and were ordered to walk barefoot in the procession on the Lord's day, each bearing a half-penny taper which the Snodland people were to offer at the Holy Cross : but the Halling people were to offer two at the high altar there. Henry Spencer, Vicar of Birling, 1452, had to make a public profession of his error in not praying for his Bishop during Divine Service. With Bishop Fisher's Register we enter still more into the times : he made Richard Gavell, of Westerham, recant : his errors were declaring the feast of St. Thomas (i.e. : à Becket), should not be observed ; holy water and offering days are needless, and the curse of the Church should not be observed. He also punished two persons for speaking disrespectfully of the Holy Communion.

* This obsolete word means ill-contriving.

The enquiry into the Abbey of Higham is also mentioned. And here we should mention there are enquiries in the early Registers into the Abbeys in the Diocese, and many references to them ; they were Higham, Tonbridge, Dartford, Lesness and Malling. The consecration of the new Church in Gravesend (St. George's) is related, and the convention, 1518, of the clergy ; but we must not, if we would, take our readers through all the entries, as we said. We notice in Bishop Gryffith's Registers the deprivation of numbers of the clergy for not being Papists, and others put in their place who in their turn were deprived, and the old ones restored or fresh men instituted by Bishop Gheast. He orders every non-preaching parson, Vicar or Curate, to learn the Epistle to the Romans against the Archdeacon's next visitation, that he may be examined in it, and then the First Epistle to the Corinthians, and so on ; children, he says, are not to be admitted to the Holy Communion under thirteen or fourteen, being well instructed and learned in the Catechism, and no adult that cannot perfectly say the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments ; he also bids a decent cup to be provided for the laity, and orders no bell to be rung in time of service, referring, no doubt, to the use of the bell in the Communion service. He and several of his successors ask certain questions at their visitations ; he himself asks whether morning prayers are said between five and six, of the chapter for the scholars : whether they and the Dean preach in their course ; what bread is used at Communion. Bishop Freake asks the clergy whether they call the people to prayer on Sundays, Holy Days, Wednesdays, and Fridays ; whether the parish clergyman says service daily and teaches the Catechism ; whether he admonishes notorious sinners ; did he obtain his post by simony or fraud ; and of the people he asks whether idolatrous monuments are removed ; do they learn the Catechism ; are games or fairs or markets allowed at times of Divine Service, on Holy Days, on Sundays ; or are there any suspected of witchcraft in their neighbourhood. Yonge ordered the Divinity Lecture to be read in the Cathedral ten weeks in every quarter once, and the Holy Communion to be administered monthly ; the Canons to appear in their habits, and enjoined the Vicar of Higham to declare his loyalty in Divine Service, 1588. In this the Vicar declares he will in no way speak or write anything against the Queen's Majesty, etc. Then Bishop Barlowe issues an order in 1605 to allow no more incumbents to be instituted to Paddlesworth after due enquiry. At this period we find enquiries into Church plate ; and in Warner's time we have a list of the Churches, with the value they were to their incumbents. In the remaining Registers we find licenses given to schoolmasters and doctors ; permissions to dissenters to have conventicles and also faculties granted for pews in churches. All these Registers therefore give us a short commentary on the Church history of nearly four hundred years, valuable as being written down as it occurred, without bias, colouring, or even party feeling, for the records of Fisher, Ridley, Griffiths, and Gheast are in one volume uncorrected by the next chronicler into more Roman or more Anglican views.

Ifield, 1751.

Charlton Registers are illegible till 1867.

Modern Churches' Registers date from the building of the Church, but the early Registers of Platt were destroyed when the Church was broken into in December, 1885. The cause why the Churches' Registers differ so in commencing is that the earlier ones have been lost or destroyed.

In Kingsdown Burial Registers we learn that in 1814, William Phillips, the Parish Clerk, burnt the old Registers of that parish, as, in his wisdom, he thought they were so much waste paper.

The Registers of Chalk were lost down to 1768, by the Church being broken open and the safe stolen; some parts of the contents were afterwards recovered, but the records are very imperfect down to the commencement of a new book, some fifty years ago.

In all the more ancient Registers we find "buried in woollen, or woollen," or an affidavit made which refers to a statute passed 30th of Charles II., and not repealed till 54th of George III., which imposed a penalty of £5 upon every burial where the corpse was not shrouded in woollen, and thus Pope in his Moral Essays makes the vain beauty of the day say :

" Odius in woollen, 'twould a saint provoke,
Were the last words that poor Narcissa spoke,
No, let a charming chintz and Brussels lace
Wrap my cold limbs and shroud my lifeless face,
One would not sure be frightful when one's dead,
And Betty, give this cheek a little red ! "

In all the Registers that go through the Commonwealth times, as a rule we have the name given of the Registrar who was then chosen according to an Act of Parliament by the people for the parish; also at that time we have frequent entries of the marriages during the Commonwealth by Justices of the Peace, the banns being first published in the market place or in a place of worship. We have the formal Marriage Register put forward in 1751: this was succeeded by another in 1814, and that by the present one in 1837. In some Registers the Government duty of 3d. on all baptisms and burials, made in 1783, and repealed in 1791, is mentioned.

In the Higham Register we have this curious entry alluding to this duty : " 1787, Feb., Mary Anne, d<sup>r</sup> of John and Anne Prebble his wife. A Revolter. Memorandum. If the Commissioners or their deputy shall visit this Register they will please to observe that the parent of the above infant John Prebble has refused to pay the Government duty of threepence which they will levy or not as they shall think proper, it was not refused till the Article was inserted. If the Min<sup>r</sup> shall receive it he will account for it and take notice of it," Across this is twice written "scandalous," and it has been crossed off.

We have in the West Farleigh Registers this strange agreement on fees and tithes between Richard Bystone and his parishioners in Feb., in the 32nd year of Queen Elizabeth :

A communicant for the first time pays 1d., afterwards 2d.

Baptizing a child 4d. or the crisome, which he will.

Churching a woman 1d., offering  $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

Couple joyned in matrimony 1s. 6d., to the Clerk 3d.

Burying a man or woman 8d., burying a child 4d.

For the milk of a cow 1d., the fall of a calf 1d.

Every Bullock of one year 1d., of two years 2d., etc.

A Like Order for Colts,

Sheeps' wool to pay tithe, also every tenth lamb due at St. Mark's Day, those that come after to be accounted for next year.

Of seven lambs, to have one, allowing 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to the owner, under seven to have  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. a lamb.

Pigs, to have the tenth ; if 7, to have one, allowing  $\frac{3}{4}$ d. to the owner ; under seven,  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. a piece.

Herb garden 1d., if sowed with any grain, a tenth.

The tenth handful of hemp.

Acre woods and coppice woods to pay tithe, and not else, as of tops of trees, not. Of grass, to have the tenth cock.

There is also a note in reference to a dispute concerning pews, dated 1690, from which it would appear the women sit on the south side, the men on the north.

Many Registers begin with an account of their purpose, " the Register Book of —, in the county of Kent," with the date, and in many we have Briefs, by which we learn that various sums were gathered from time to time towards the building and repairing of different Churches, not only in the Diocese, but also in England, and even in foreign countries also to relieve the distress of neighbourhoods visited by some sickness or famine, or for some body of men who were in trouble. In some Registers we find the books have been in the hands of scholars who have aired their Latin, though in some cases we find a doubt whether spinster should be properly expressed by virgo puella or ancilla.

In the Hunton Register we have a remarkable case of this show of scholarship in George Latham's last entry, who was the Puritan Rector, where he writes, Aug. 17, 1662, "Ultimo die praeditandi ministri moraliter morientis George Latham plus quam viginti annos indivinis administrationibus in ecclesiae Hujus Hunton seu Huntyngton. ὡς αποθησκόντες καὶ ιδόν γῶμεν (II Cor. vi., 9). It is also asserted (Isaiah xxvij., 9) Thy dead men shall live."

At the end of the Higham eighteenth century Register is scribbled,

"Oh bona fortuna cur non es omnibus una."

This reminds us that in the Register Book of Edenbridge, for 1653, John Seyliard, of Delaware in that parish, appears to have used the book to scribble in, and the Register of Hadlow of the same date seems to have been similarly treated. From scribbling, is but a step to the careless entries of some Registers, of which perhaps these few may suffice :—

"Birling (Feb. 10, 1758, Son of a stroller ) Burial Register."
 | Sep. 13, 1758, Stranger boys two )

"Addington, 1582, the eleventh of March, a gentlewoman of rich birth from Mr. Davis was buried."

"Snodland, 1750, August 12th, Buried a man his name unknown a stranger. 1750, August 17, Buried the wife of ye above mentioned stranger."

"Higham, 1794, Bett, daughter of some strollers accidentally babp."

Of these cases of indifference and carelessness in entering, some registers are full, while others are free from them, but it would take a long time to go through them all, and no purpose would be gained by it. Most of the Registers are silent during the times of the Commonwealth, or are very indifferently filled in then. Some of the older Registers have been preserved by the Vicar, at some period having transcribed the Registers, as we learn from entries in the book. With a few remarks on some of the Registers we will conclude this chapter.

The Registers of Addington contain a number of marriages under Cromwell's Act, but nothing much else strikes us beyond the carelessness of some of the entries.

The early Registers of All Hallows', and those of Stoke, have somehow got into the possession of the Society of Antiquaries, in London, who ought to restore them; what remain are much mutilated. The Church books are very interesting, and date back to 1551.

The Allington Registers are remarkable for the number of marriages solemnized there at one period: no less than 154 couples being married in this tiny parish in the six years beginning 1648, and ending 1653. Several cases of persons drowned in the Medway are reported as being buried.

In the Ashurst Registers we find an account (1760) of the glebe of five acres, which had then 35 Ash trees planted in it in place of old ones. Was this meant to preserve the name? In 1701 we have an account of the new ceiling of the Church, and also the railing-in of the Altar (perhaps for the first time); also presentation of an Altar Cloth and Communion Linen, Pulpit Cushion and Cloth, and Valents for the Reading Desk; the Commandments were then first put up, and a Salver given for use at Communion; these last two at the charge of Mrs. Catherine Cornwallis, and the former of Sir George and Lady Rivers. In 1759 we find the Commandments freshly done.

In Aylesford Registers we have also a number of marriages from 1661 to 1668, and again in 1701 and 1735, when the number reaches 40; this was probably owing to the place being easily accessible by river—a way in which marriages, to avoid the law, could be best carried on in those days. In 1662 we find Elizabeth, the daughter of George and Mary Burde, baptized the 30th day of January, being the first baptised in the new font after the "inequities of tymes" had broken down the old one. The Parliamentary Troops we know occupied Maidstone and Rochester, and the right bank of the Medway, and this, like the damage done in the Cathedral, was some of their work. In 1709 we have mention of the sect of "Anabaptists," or "Dippers" as the Registers call them. There are also these two curious entries: "A travelling man who sold earthen pots and other earthenware being found dead in Thomas Smith's barn was buried in the said Thomas Smith's Orchard, the said seventh day of February, 1665." A curious record of burial in unconsecrated ground, unless this was one of the Chapelyards of Tottington, Cossington, or the Carmelite Priory. "John Philpot a stranger being taken blind at Rochester the nineteenth as was expressed in his pass, then dated and given under the hand and seal of the city of Rochester aforesaid, to convey the said John from officer to officer to Snargate, in the county and shire of Kent, his former place of abode, was brought hither ye xxth, and died ye xxist and was buried here ye three and twentieth day of Nov." There are besides several cases of the interment of drowned persons. Some of the Barming Registers' leaves have been torn off; in them we find a curious entry, "This man was the greatest lyer in the parish; died regretted by nobody." In the Beckenham Registers we have the baptism of Grote, the historian, who was born at Clayhill in the parish in 1794. In the Burial Register is the record of Margaret Finch, the Queen of the Gipsies. The Bexley Registers tell us that Mr. Cooke gave a silver plate value £3 3s. 4d. in 1635; that the iind Alms plate was given by Sir John Sidley two<sup>l</sup> towards o<sup>n</sup> Almes Dish, Aug. 19, 1638. Mrs. William Gouldwell (illegible) Jo Gouldwell 3<sup>l</sup> towards ye lesser Flagon, in 1641. Mr. Coppin, brother to Sir William Coppin, was founder of 3d. and lesser Flagon three pds: we find Mr. Harding, Vicar, 1833-74, changed the larger Flagon for a plated one, and a silver cup (heu !); he calls the Flagon a Chalice.

In the Bromley Registers we read "On the night of the 13th of April, 1791, the vestry room door was broken open and the chest of deal in which the plate was kept was robbed of the following articles: 1 large Flagon with a lid fixt, 1 quart Chalice, 1 rich chased Chalice and loose cover with a straining spoon, 1 large Paten and 1 small Paten; the above were all gilt." In the Burials, "The 14th of May, 1605, the Reverend Father John, Bishop of Rochester, had his funeral solemnised, his sonne, Mr. John Yonge, being the chief mourner;" "On July 8, 1774, Zyachary, D.D., Lord Bishop of Rochester, was buried."

The Chatham Registers contain frequent references to the plague. With the exception of Pyham, Vaughan, and Loton being mentioned in the commencement of the Register, and one signature of Loton, and one by his Curate, we have no mention of the clergy in the books. The Archdeacon of Rochester, in his 'Upon a Brief,' mentions that more than eleven hundred Cathedrals, Churches, and Parishes were helped, as the Register shows, by Brief, from Chatham, amongst these Eynesford, Chalk, Tudely, West Malling, and Chatham are mentioned, showing probably that these places were undergoing extensive repairs to their respective Churches in 1744, 1760, 1765, 1779 and 1788.

From the Chislehurst Registers we learn that, like as at Bromley, sacrilege was committed, 28th of December, 1775, when the old Plate, consisting of a Cup and Cover, a Jug and Cover, a Bread Plate and Collection Plate, together with the Communion Linen and a few other things, were stolen. In March, 1776, we learn a Cup and Cover, a Flagon, and two small Patens of silver double gilt, chased with glories, and each stamped "the Parish of Chislehurst," were subscribed for by the parish.

In the Registers of Clyffe we have several references to the plague: moreover to this being in byegone days reckoned as a seaport. Clyffe Creek was no doubt a fair sized harbour for small craft, and traditions of smuggling hung about the place to a late date. There is also a record of the Armada in it: in this as in some other Registers mention is made of the various hamlets of the parish.

The Crayford Registers contain many curious Latin entries, at the outset; of these the few following may suffice: "1560 Obijt senex quidam nomine Arthur. Obijt filia cujusdam peregrini. Obijt quidam lactonans Londinensis. 1561 Obijt quidam per lapsum ex arbore. 1597 Quaedam paupercula nomine Christiana sepult 14<sup>o</sup> Januarij, 1599, Lewes spurius sepultus fuit 3<sup>o</sup> Maii."

In the Dartford Registers the plague is frequently mentioned; we have "25th of June, 1642, a mare of John Shrivell was buried"; probably intended by some Nonconformist of the time as an insult to the Church. "John Powle Faber Murarius et Anna Sandall Vidua 21 die Aprilis conjugio juncti sunt anno millesimo sex centesimo sexagesimo tertio p me John Powell Clicum Vicarium de Dartford."

In the Registers of Deptford Old Church are the two historic entries, "William Hawkyns Esqre was buried the ninth of October, 1589"; against the entry in the margin is written 'he was captain of a ship against the Armada.' "Anno Dom. 1593: Christopher Marlowe slaine by Francis Fraser ye 1 of June."

The Ditton Register tells us in the beginning that "Every acre of woodland in the parish of Ditton by immemorial custom pays tithe to the Rector." There is also this interesting inventory of Church goodes made in 1759: "Silver Paten inscribed 'Tuum est Domine tibi reddo donum Thomas Tilson rector 1735.' Silver Chalice for Communion 'the gift of Mary Brewer to ye parish of Ditton for ye use of ye Church Jany. 4th, 1689.' One small Paten of uncertain silver, N.B., no proper Carpet to cover ye Communion Table in time of Divine Service. Pulpit Cushion of crimson velvet, linen cloth with words, 'The Communion Table Cloth of Ditton, Will Seagar Churchwarden, 1721'; A Napkin of the same; large Surplice of holland, no Hood, Cope, or Vestment, Folio Common Prayer Book, printed 1745. Folio Bible last Translation printed by Robert Barton, 1615. Quarto Common Prayer Book for ye Clerk, printed 1746. Three small Bells, the smallest broke; the second has date only round it 1656; the third circumscribed 'Edw. Middleton, Ch. W. 1717.' Deal Chest for Parish Book and Registers, Font for Baptism, no Book for Homilies."

There are many Latin entries in the Edenbridge Registers; in the churchwardens' account, bell ringing seems to have been well paid for and used largely on State occasions.

In the Eltham Registers and Account Book, as the present Vicar (Revd. Elphinstone Rivers) shows in his charming book on Eltham, are many interesting entries: "1562, Item paid to the boys for the Maypole. 1615, Nov. 24, Hester buried, being an excommunicated person, in the churchyard according to ye lxvij canon therein provided. 1620, Mar. 9, Old Baltan, excommunicated person, buried at the permission of Dr. Pope, Chauncellor to the Right Reverend father in God the Lord Bishop of Rochester." There are a number of entries of the plague, amongst which, "1623, May 26, Mrs. Elizabeth Grimes in the chaunsel by her husband in the night because of her infirmity: 1621, Mr. Cornelius Orts a Hollander servant of the king for providing haukes under Sir Anthony Paul." Revd. John Fourde, the Vicar, puts in these entries (a) "Bull rope Acre is worth 20<sup>s</sup> a year for grass beyond the feed: (b) Let this be a pitifull remembrance of all posterities that in the yeare of oure Lorde 1623, the 26 day of October in the 21st yeere of King James his reigne ther lay frenche ambassador in the blackfriars in London, who beinge att masse the same sabbath day in the afternoone with a multitude of blinde ignorant people there fell in yt chappell in his house a gallery in the said chappell yt crushed to death fower score and sixtene soules besides a great multitude yt had ther armes and legs broken, so much was God offended with their detestable idolatrie. Sep. 23, 1612, Roger Twist, a recusant excommunicated, and com from Rom and repenting earnestly and harteley desired of the bishop absolution and to be received into the Church of God and departed after he had received ye comfortable absolution within five hours after. 1737, Dec. 3, A man shot at Lee Green. 1792, Jan. 26, The Rt. Reverend George Horne, D.D., Lord Bishop of Norwich, ob 17 Jan., aet 68."

Erith Registers have been mostly burnt. Of the Baptismal Registers those preserved are from 1625-1752, and fragments from 1830-78 : Marriage Registers preserved from 1625-1753, and fragments from 1813-58 : Burial Registers preserved from 1625-40, and fragments from 1813-37 and 1837-76.

The Eynsford Registers, owing to the labors of the Rev. Mark Burr (Vicar, 1579-1630), are complete, he having copied them out ; another Vicar, who left a list of incumbents, appears to have followed his example, but later Vicars have allowed them to be injured with damp.

In the East Farleigh Registers we learn that Robert Boteler, alias Butler, became Registrar and took oath to the Commonwealth, as it seems he was a Puritan ; we find another Vicar appointed in 1661.

In West Farleigh we find the Vicar allowing Augustine Skinner and other parishioners to eat meat during Lent ; this same Augustine Skinner was evidently an avowed Puritan, as he was chosen Registrar of the parish, and farther purchased the Bromley property of the See of Rochester from the Parliament. The strong feeling against the English Church on this side of the Medway we trace in the two Farleighs, Hunton, and Yalding.

In the Farnborough Register, so carefully transcribed and printed by our late esteemed friend, H. Wilson, Esq., there is little noticeable except that the Vicars carefully kept them, and they are often in Latin, and there is a record of a charity left by George Dalton, Gent, 1566, which pays 6s. 8d. for a sermon during some Sunday in summer, and to strew the Church on that day with rushes, to which a note is appended that 10s. is given for a sermon on the Sunday next after St. Peter's Day, and 3s. 4d. spent in bread for the poor. The money is to be paid by the occupier and proprietor of Tuppenden's land, and is dated 1775.

In the Registers of Gillingham we find the record of the baptism of William Adams, who was the first Englishman to reach Japan.

In the Hadlow books there is an account of the parish boundaries being "gone," which is very useful for after disputes. In 1562, "The 15 Daye of November, Henry Dell and Elizabeth Roberts, of Great Peckham, were married in ye ceme'ty, ye Church Dore was sealped up" ; what the Church was closed for is not mentioned. "In 1561, the 16th of October, Arthur Porter was baptized, the which child was borne in ye lodge in ye little part of ye stony mound"; where this was is not mentioned. "1569, the 11th day of July, Jone fane natu ffane, ye daughter of Mr. Thomas fane, baptised."

In the Churchwardens' accounts for Hartley we find £1 1s. paid for the "possin" block.

In the Halstead one we learn that in 1775 the undertaker paid £3 3s. for burying in the chancel.

In the Higham Registers we read, "I heard of a traveller was killed upon ye roads, buried aboute Aug. 28, 1701." This reminds one that Gad's Hill, famous from Shakespeare's days for highwaymen, was in the parish. We have also this curious entry, "1719, a stranger a cozen betty was buryed Novemb. 6." A cozen betty was an obsolete term for a female pedlar.

In the Registers of Henley-on-Thames we find: "July 4, William Lenthall filius Johis gener filius bapt." This was the famous speaker of the House of Commons during the Commonwealth. We have several mentions of the plague. "1642, Jan. 22, This day was buried six soldiers whereof four were slaine with the discharging of cannon as they marched up Duck Street to assault the town. 1687, English, a captain of Hors, murdered in bed by Captain Hastings. 1751, Aug. 17, Francis Blandy, Attorney-at-law, was poysoned by his only child Mary Blandy. 1752, April 6, Mary Blandy was this day executed at Oxford for poysoning her father, Mr. Francis Blandy, Attorney-at-law."

John Stevens, Vicar of Kemsing-cum-Seale, tells us in the Registers of the latter parish that the books belonging to that Church are (1) "Jewell's Apology for the Church of England, (2) The first volume of the Paraphrase of Erasmus upon the new Testament, (3) Homilyes for the Church of England. In 1709, Memorandum: that a new Bible in ffolio was given vnto and the sole vse of the Seale Churche at the proper cost and charges only of Mrs. Rebecca Buck, wife of Mr. Max Buck. Mr. Max Buck, Vicar of Seale, D.D.D.Q.D. Dominica Trinitatis. 1718, July 25, Memorandum, Mrs. Max Buck gave a Purple Velvett Pulpit Cloth and Cussion for the sole Vse of Seale Churche and Purple fringe and Tossels."

In Leybourne Register, though it is not even a village, there are two women in the Marriage Register described 'of this town.'

In the West Malling Register we read: "1784, Jany. 22, A stranger woman, name unknown, found dead in the cage."

In Offham Register we have: "Jany. 1st, 1792, Thos. Blake, titheman, buried." We suppose he collected the tithes, but we did not know it was a separate vocation.

In the Mereworth Register we read: "The new Church consecrated, August 26th, 1746." This entry tells of the time when Lord Westmoreland built the present church, one mile from the old one, on the site of which he built Mereworth Castle.

In West Malling Register we read of "a Confirmation on Friday, November 7th, 1712, was held by the Bishop of Killaloe, when between two or three thousand were confirmed." We also find this account of a storm : "There happened a terrible and great tempest of thunder and lightning and set on fire the spire and broke down through the roof and ceiling of the body of the Church and through the Belfry doore, broke down the pendulum of the clock, melted the bottom of the pendulum, went through the head of the Chancesell and did a great deal of other damage, especially to the spire on Munday morning about six o'clock, the seventeenth day of November, 1712."

In East Malling and other parishes we have mention of chrisom children, or children under a month. We may mention, 1570, January 9th, of a child being christened without swathing. We have also notice of hoys : and persons drowned in the Medway.

In Milton Register again shipping is often mentioned, and there we have the quaint entry "A Dutchman yt was drowned belonging to Captain Foyes ye 11th day of July, 1680."

The Norton Registers mention "a rate for gathering the Clarke's wages," and adds "Two Prayer Books, Quarto, given by ye Revd. Wm. Stronge, Rector, to be used for the Communion Table, 1776."

We are informed in the Nurstead Registers that the old Register was injured by damp, being thrown into the churchyard one night by thieves who found nothing.

In West Peckham we find in Puritan times these singular entries : "27th January, 1593-4, Remember death, son of John Comp or Comper was baptized ; Lament Comper, the daughter of John Comper, was baptized the 13th day of May, 1597 ; Sorow (sic) for sin, Comper's daughter, buried the 20th of March, 1612-13" ; Sorow for sin's baptism is not entered, but Remember death's baptism is entered twice on the same page in different handwritings. Also this entry is worthy of notice : "October 18th, Anno dmi. 1603, Richard Clemens, born as he said in Wootton Underedge, in Gloucestershire, was taken as a waif person and punished." And in several other Registers we have Puritan names, as at Westerham, 'Repentance.' Plaxtol Registers are much mutilated.

Ridley Registers commence "I answer to many of the early entries of Baptisms, etc." ; in them we read "In the year of our Lord 1702 in the second yeare of ye reigne of Queen Anne ye 14th of March, Jane the wife of Wm. Selby of ye mote at Ightham Esq., daughter to Mr. Henry Stacey, formerly Rector of this Church, did of her piety devote to ye service of God in ye sd parish Church one Paten and silver Chalice for the Holy Communion." Also "In or about the year of our Lord, 1706, Bridget the wife of Mr. John Ratie, Rector of this Church, did give a new Pulpit Cloath and Cloath for the cushion of the same." There is also a "true terrier" of the glebe of Ridley delivered 16th October, 1666, to the Chancellor of the Bishop that states, "the House has Kitchen, Parlour, three Butteries, three Chambers, one Barn and Barnyard, a Garden of four acres, with codling trees, an Orchard of a rood, a meadow with shaws of five acres, Field once known as Barley dale then as Parsonage Field of 8 acres, another of 10 with a shaw of 10, another of 7 with its shaw, and one other Field known as Newlands of 7½ acres." There is also a list of incumbents from 1562.

In St. Nicholas', Rochester Register there is a list of those who may eat meat during Lent; entries of soldiers, sailors, and Dutchmen, and of the plague. On April 14, 1781, Yorkshire Dick from the Crown, the Lower Crown. There is a list of Vicars from 1624. St. Margaret's Register also gives cases of plague.

In Ryarsh we find "1761, Jany. 22, Rebecca, wife of the above (Solomon Penury) buried in the Church, but they did not ask leave of the Vicar, which I think they ought to have done." Rev. John Liptrott and Rev. Lambert Larking tell how they planted the glebe, and Revd. H. W. Snell speaks of building the schools in 1869 and in 1872, reseating and restoring the Church.

The St. Werburgh's, Hoo Registers have a gap 1599-1646. Rev. Johnson Towers is said to have lost the early Registers of Shipbourne.

We cannot pass by three entries of Snodland, one "1819, July 19, Henry, son of John and Francis Baker, higgler (a name now obsolete we believe, for an itinerant dealer in pigs, poultry, etc.)" Also "1668 Copperthorne, the sonne of Stephen Haycocke, bapt. Oct. 28; buried as Copperthorne, 1674." "1819, Nov. 19, Charles, son of James and Mary Ann Barnfield, of Pomphrey in Paddlesworth, smuggler." We were not aware it was a lawful calling.

We notice that in Speldhurst Registers two suicides are mentioned specially in 1701 and 1713. Notices of the beating of the bounds on Ascension Day, 1708, and Monday in Rogation Week, 1709, are recorded; we read also in 1734, "Robert, son of Robert Mercer, jr., baptized in the Presbyterian way," and 1783, "Ye Elixshener for Speldhurst Borough was Alexander ffry, Charles Stapely for y<sup>e</sup> Wells."

The early Stoke Registers have somehow got into the possession of the Society of Antiquaries.

In the Stourmouth Registers we learn the lawful times for weddings. "The Lawful Tyme of wedding by the Canon cometh in xxiiith day of Januarie, goeth out the Saterday next before Septuagesima; cometh in the Munday after Lowe Sunday, goeth out the Saterday before Rogation week; cometh in the Munday after the Trinity Sunday, goeth out on the Saterday next before Advent."

In the Strood Register we have mention of the plague. Mr. Parfect tells us he dropped the morning sermon. Mr. Beeke mentions having got rid of the Stocks from the Churchyard. We could add much to the notes on these Registers, but must refer to Mr. Smetham's admirable book "The History of Strood," and for Speldhurst to the Rev. H. D. O. Mackinnon's exhaustive book on that Parish.

The state of the Teston and Tudem Registers at periods show how much is lost by want of care of these valuable MSS. In the Registers we learn that in this latter parish no alms were given at all (from 1756 to 1783) which accounts for their state.

The Trotterscliffe Registers have been carefully copied by the present Rector; "In 1647, John Medley, the grey hunter, was buried August the first"; the grey was the old name for the badger. We must notice the high character given the Attwoods: "1600, Samuel Attwode, the good youth was buried the 11th day of May, and, 1669, Edmund Attwood, the honest gent, was buried September ye 13th."

In Westerham we have entries showing how extensively weaving was carried on in the district, and there are several burials of the plague, besides, "1564, March 20, was buried John, son of John Myskine, Awstregor (a falconer*); 1565, Richard Chapman, falconer; 1570, Collyns, the windmiller; 1593, Thomas Benson, called ye cackle of Westerham; 1623, Robert Moore, freemason; 1627, Robert Ivens, a glassman; 1714, Atterbury China was buried October, 7th." But Westerham Registers boasts the name of Wolfe, for here we read, "James Wolfe, son of Collonel Edward Wolfe, was baptized Jan. 11th, 1726-7, was buried at Greenwich"; from Register Nov. 29, 1759. It also records the baptism of Benjamin Hoadley, Bishop of Bangor, Salisbury, and Winchester, famous for his prolix discourses, and for causing the Bangorian controversy, which led to the suspension of Convocation.

We have, of course, only culled a few in many extracts from these Registers to show the signs of the times, but Olympus would be shut before we could enumerate the different families that are here recorded.

ARCHDEACONRIES AND DEANERIES.

The Diocese originally consisted of one Archdeaconry, that of Rochester, and was divided into three Deaneries—Dartford, Malling, and Rochester, and the Deanery of Shoreham which was a peculiar of the Diocese of Canterbury, which, instead of being a compact division, consisted of the following parishes scattered all over the Diocese :—

Bickley.	East Malling.	Hayes.	Otford.
Brastead.	Eynesford.	Hever.	Penshurst.
Chevening.	East Farleigh.	Ifield.	Shoreham.
Chiddingstone.	East Peckham.	Ightham.	Sevenoaks.
Clyffe.	Farningham.	Keston.	Sundridge.
Crayford.	Gillingham.	Knockholt.	Plaxtol.
St. Mary Cray.	Grayne.	Meopham.	Stanstead.
Darenth.	Hunton.	Northfleet.	Wrotham.
Downe.	Halstead.	Orpington.

Besides, the Bishop of Rochester held peculiar powers from a very early time over the Deanery of Fordham in Suffolk. In 1846, when the Diocese of Rochester was first altered, the Archdeaconry of Rochester was suppressed and the Archdeaconry of St. Alban's was created, which consisted of the Deanery of Rochester, so far as our work is concerned, which was divided into the Deaneries of Cobham, Gravesend, and Rochester. In 1863 the Archdeaconry of Rochester was revived, and united to the Archdeaconry of St. Alban's, and those parishes which had been transferred to the London Diocese were restored to Rochester as the Deaneries of Greenwich and Woolwich. In 1877 the Diocese of Rochester consisted, from May till August, of the Archdeaconry of Rochester, divided into the Deaneries of Cobham, Gravesend, Rochester, Woolwich and Greenwich. The present Diocese, now the Diocese of Southwark, has been formed, consists of the Archdeaconry of Rochester with the Deaneries of—

Cobham.	Bromley.	Clyffe,
Dartford.	Gravesend.
Beckenham.	Rochester.

and the Archdeaconry of Tonbridge containing the Deaneries of—

Malling.	Sevenoaks.	Tunbridge Wells.
Shoreham.	Tonbridge.

The first Archdeacon of the new Archdeaconry of Tonbridge, appointed in 1906, was Avison Terry Scott.

Of the Chapels of West Clive, Hescendena, Hawley, near Dartford, Beantesda and Crofton in Orpington, we find no records, nor of Lilintuna (unless it was Linton, in the Canterbury Diocese), and no traces are left of them. Of St. Leonard's, in West Malling, we have the Tower, which was probably built by Gundolf; the advowson of it was given to the Abbey, and in 1343 Elizabeth Grapnel was mentioned as "the custodian of St. Leonard's in 1343." Hescendena, Beantesda, Lilintuna, St. Leonard's, and St. Mary's in the Castle, which has also disappeared, are mentioned in Textus Roffensis as paying 6 denarii to the See of Rochester for chrism fee.

CELLS.

Besides the Monasteries we have mentioned, we find other religious foundations. Tanner speaks of a Cell of Benedictine Monks at Lewisham, which was given to the Monastery of Ghent, but by the Act of Henry V., had been transferred to the Abbey of Shene. There was also a Cell at Greenwich which had a similar transfer. It is certain that Edward III. and Sir John Norbury founded a house at Greenwich, which was suppressed at the Reformation, but restored by Queen Mary and abolished by Queen Elizabeth. Tanner also mentions a Cell at Darenth, bestowed on the Monks of Rochester, 1195, by Archbishop Hubert, but it could not be traced in his days. Juliana, Countess of Brockley, founded a house there for Premonstratensian Canons, which was afterwards transferred to Beyham Abbey. Of all these we have no farther record, but as they were ecclesiastical foundations of the old Diocese, we feel our work would be incomplete without them.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

Rochester, Malling and Dartford, being the old Deaneries, and, with Tonbridge, being the sites of the Archdeacons' Courts, we give photos of the Churches where the Courts sat. The Church of Malling Abbey was used for this purpose; we therefore give a picture of the remains of its Tower instead of the Parish Church.
